enjamin Franklin notwithstand-ıg, sleep researchers have found ıat sound, relaxed sleep usually equires a certain degree of armth. This is not a matter of ositive warmth as measured by ıe temperature of the atmosphere the room may well be below zero) ut of negative warmth, that is, revention of the discomfort aused by the loss of body heat to he surrounding air. We have long ince discovered that body heat is reserved not by a weighty pile of lankets but by one or two blan-ets in a weave designed to trap he outgoing heat. (When body ıeat is thus preserved, you can eally revel in cool contact with mooth fresh sheets.) The low heat of the lightweight automatic elec-ric blanket performs a similar function. Today you can get elec-ric blankets in king sizes with two individual controls (called dual control) which can be adjusted to two different heats to suit simul-taneously the idiosyncrasies of two sleepers. These blankets come with tailored corners to keep them in place despite foot kickers and body twisters, and they are machine washable.

As every insomniac knows, wooing sleep goes beyond the ra-tional hard (or soft) facts of physical comfort. Even non-prob-lem sleepers can be influenced by their mental attitudes on going to bed. Admittedly the most scientific mattresses and blankets cannot erase a major worry or resolve a conflict with your boss or your mother-in-law. But the pleasures of color and pretty patterns can make you feel pampered—a very beneficent state of mind to be in when you lay your head on the pillow and close your eyes. One manufacturer has carried the pam-pering-with-color idea even to the mattress and the bed frame. The mattress tickings are in a classic French toile pattern in a choice of three colors on a white ground. Springs are covered with ticking in solid colors to match, and the bed frames are in the same colors, all good ones to mix or match with colored sheets and blankets.

The newest patterns and col-ors in sheets go far beyond femi-nine floral designs in pretty pas-tels. Some are large and bold, designed to please men as well as women. For the safari-minded, there is a new collection of animal hide prints, each design in one realistic coloring—a zebra motif in black and white, leopard and giraffe prints in tawny tones, life-size peacock feathers in natural peacock colors.

Less daring but equally ap-pealing are an all-over stripe of spicy looking carnations, a bold pinstripe, and a multicolor stripe —all of which would go happily with any number of bedroom color schemes. One new sheet has a dashing plaid border; another is in a delightful seventeenth-cen-tury French damask pattern. Flow-er prints are always with us, but few are as sophisticated as a new one with masses of flower heads scattered over a white surface and another that is a floral dream captured in water-color technique. Some of the new prints have em-broidered borders—a hand-em-broidered border with a tulip motif; Schiffli-embroidered bor-ders on six wonderful new patterns that include a Paisley design. Some of these new patterned sheets are matched in blanket covers.

Nor have the plain colors been ignored. New hues in unpatterned sheets include such colors as apri-cot, mint, lilac, beige, turquoise, deep fern, antique gold. These are marvelous used in matching pairs or in bottom sheets teamed with printed or embroidered top sheets. Scalloped borders on white sheets are also being worked in exciting new colors.

The blanket story this year is as bright and bold or as pretty and feminine as the blankets are light and easy to care for. You will find blankets of wool or acrylic in both winter and summer weights. There are many brilliant and deep tones which should appeal to men—bit-tersweet, sapphire, bristol blue, a sensational parrot green, and tiger lily. Many are handsome enough to serve as bedspreads by day, blan-kets by night. One dashing duo-tone Creslan blanket that comes in exciting combinations such as orange and pink is enhanced by a washable velvet binding.

Ready-made bedspreads have never been so plentiful, so well-made, or so stylish. The newest ones have the smoothly tailored look formerly found only in very expensive made-to-order spreads. There are throw styles, easy to put on and off, in tweedy mixtures that have a fine hand-loomed look, in woven matelasses and Early American samplers. Big plaids reminiscent of racy horse blankets, houndstooth checks, Greek key and Spanish medallion designs compete for attention with elegant corded weaves and those with the increasingly popular velvet look. Many of these spreads come with deep hand-knotted fringes in matching or contrasting colors. There are also tailored styles with separate dust ruffles, and coverlets with outline-quilted patterns in-cluding geometrics, big florals, Persian stripes, and overscaled damask motifs.

Without a doubt, this is the year of the BED.

Assemblage

A collection of individually distinctive pieces, designed and executed for the living and dining area but versatile enough to meet most decorating needs. The variety of woods and veneers used, the classic design and the wide choice of finishes makes this a truly unique ensemble.

What good is a dishwasher detergent if it's no good in your water?

Every dishwasher detergent manufacturer knows that no one dishwasher detergent works equally well in all kinds of water. Yet nobody does anything about it — except the makers of FINISH. They have developed special formulas of FINISH for different types of water. Before they send your Special Formula FINISH into your area they test it in various types of water prevalent in your area. They make sure that your Special Formula FINISH washes dishes cleaner and shines glasses brighter than any other detergent.

It stands to reason that the world's largest producers of dishwasher detergents wouldn't go so far out of their way to give you a better product if it weren't important. Nor would the manufacturers of all 28 makes of dishwashers approve it. Do you consider it important enough to try your Special Formula FINISH in your dishwasher?

Notes for October gardeners

Green grass now; small bulbs next spring; bold winter window plants; trees forever

First weekend

Sod sob story. There is little doubt that laying nursery-grown sod is the quickest way to establish a lawn. In many instances it is also the best. But it is seldom as easy as it sounds—and looks. Because once the ground has been graded, leveled, and prepared (more smoothly than is either required or desirable for seed sowing)—once the manicured sod strips have been laid and fitted and the turf tamped and hosed down, the maturation of true turf has just begun. In the first place, the new sods, so lush and green on top, have no roots below. Roots must develop from the cut ends left when the sods were skimmed by machine from the nursery field. Standard thickness for a commercial sod strip is 1 inch. There are at least two reasons for this dimension: most of the topsoil is retained by the nursery, and (more important, surely) enough of the original root is left in the ground to develop new top growth without reseeding. So while you get enough root stubs with your sods to develop all the feeder roots your lawn may require, you will not by any means get root development automatically.

In the nurturing of newly sodded, properly laid turf, maintenance of subsoil moisture is probably of first importance. In the presence of adequate moisture, good contact will be maintained between the sod strips themselves and between sods and the ground. In the absence of moisture, root stubs will dry out and sods will shrink, letting air into the interstices and causing yellowing and drying of turf edges. If you spot the yellowing lines in time, perhaps dusting fine topsoil into the beginning cracks and getting a good supply of water where it will do the most good will help, but you may also be introducing weed seeds, which will flourish better than the original sod. In addition, as your grass plants weaken elsewhere in the sod strips, weeds may have been present in the nursery soil (no sod nursery is all aseptic) will inevitably appe So, if you are not careful, sods before Labor Day may be in tremis before Halloween.

Time now, then, to make no sods have dried and shru that there are no patches of tell yellow to reveal lack of soil contact; that lines between s have disappeared entirely, grayed out or opened; that the is green and growing lustily. first weeks in a sod lawn's life be decisive. The first two or th months can make all the differe between making the first cost sodded lawn pay off and putt you back at your starting po One suggestion: if you do find necessary to fill gaps between s (and you will if there are a gaps), fill them with a mixture peatmoss, vermiculite, sand, a perlite (in any combination) ra er than topsoil. Because, whatev topsoil is, it harbors weed see The other packaged and process materials do not.

Second weekend

Mini-bulbs. Most of the small spring-flowering bulbs flower ea enough so that they are n swamped by the larger genera th bloom later. This is true of era this (almost the smallest), pus kinia, the first scillas, crocus, sno drop, and a few others. It is not, and large, true of the daffodi among which some of the daintie and smallest are completely ov shadowed by larger fellows wh they flower. For these (and th are well worth going to conside able trouble over) a special sho case must be provided.

A rock garden is the logic showcase, of course. But not eve garden has a rockery. Next best a stone wall that can be made slope backward gently enough provide a number of pockets small but upright-growing narc sus species. You don't need mu height — a foot or 18 inches will –see how phonics can help him

Try it at our risk– for two weeks!

See how your child can learn to read better and spell better in just a few weeks with records that teach him by phonics, at home! Mail Free Trial Coupon below.

Would you like to see your child gain as much as a full year's grade in reading in as little as six weeks' time? These are results parents have seen again and again with this simple home-tutoring course in reading.

Mrs. B. J. Smith of Concord, Calif. writes: "In ten weeks my son advanced from second grade level in reading to the fourth grade level. His spelling improved to the high fourth grade level. We feel fortunate in learning of The Sound Way To Easy Reading."

Mrs. B. J. Smith is only one of over 50,000 parents who have turned to The Sound Way to Easy Reading for help in the frustrating problem of a child who can't read. And over 3,000 schools use it.

Teaches with records

Don't think it's all your child's fault if he hasn't learned to read. Many of our brightest children are not able to grasp the "look-and-say" method taught in most schools today. Yet, many educators insist that at least 40% of our children must have formal training in phonics—that they will never master reading without it!

That is why so many poor readers show remarkable progress with The Sound Way to Easy Reading. It teaches reading by the phonics method (the method by which most parents learned to read years ago). Its phonograph records and charts show your child exactly what to do, so he can teach himself without any help from you.

The records drill him in the sounds of the 26 letters in the alphabet and their blends. Once he learns the 123 basic phonics sounds in this course he can read up to 85% of the words in the English language. It works for children of all ages—in the earliest grades, and even in high school.

Tested and proved

In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

A semester-long study involving 214 pupils in 4 Chicago schools proved that the classes given The Sound Way to Easy Reading showed marked improvement in reading and spelling over the control groups.

Help your child now

Don't wait for your poor reader to reach high school before coming to his aid. By starting your child on The Sound Way to Easy Reading now, you can change his entire attitude toward school—turn his sense of failure into the joy of success. Try it free for two weeks. You send no money—just mail this coupon now!

These are the records and self-quizzing cards that can help your child gain as much as a full year's grade in reading in just a few weeks.

PARENTS DELIGHTED

Advanced two grades—"Larry was having a really hard time in second grade until he took your phonics course. Then, in two months, his grades went from D's and F's to A's and B's. I cannot give your course enough praise."
Mrs. Muriel Rich, Fairfax, Va.

Better marks—"At the end of his first semester in fourth grade, Gerald's highest mark was a D-minus. After working 6 weeks with the records his lowest mark was C." Mrs. William Leger, Buffalo, S. Dak.

Four sons—"In twelve weeks, two of our boys brought up their reading grades from D to B. And our other two came up from D to C. I'll never get more for my money than I already have with your course." Mr. John Gehde, Jr., Cassville, Wis.

TEACHERS ENTHUSIASTIC

Recommends to parents—"Your course has been excellent in standardizing the teaching of phonics in our entire school system. I recommend it to parents as a home tutoring course for poor readers."
R. B. Miller, Supervisor, Monterey, Va.

A pleasure to hear my class read—"I am just delighted. In the last twelve weeks 22 of my 29 fourth grade pupils brought up their scores in silent reading. Their oral reading is so improved it's a pleasure to hear them now."
Mary L. Henderson, Crowley, La.

if poor reading is your child's problem...

More than 11,000 schools and over 40,000 homes use our HEAR-SEE-SAY phonics course to improve poor readers—poor spellers! The popularity of this course is due to the unusual game-like approach.

AVOID TRAGEDY: If your child is not learning to read properly, his grades will be low and he may develop emotional problems from being left behind. Now you can help him to improve his reading ability and place him on the road to success with this remarkable home course in phonics.

PROVEN METHOD: Thousands of poor readers have easily and quickly improved their reading skills with PHONICS—the unique HEAR-SEE-SAY approach to reading. Results prove that many children respond more rapidly to this method of reading instruction than to the "progressive-memory" method used in most classrooms today.

NOW, OPEN UP THE EXCITING WORLD OF KNOWLEDGE: Help your child improve his reading ability in a matter of weeks with the same course in use by more than 11,000 schools today. PUT YOUR CHILD ON THE ROAD TO LEARNING TODAY AND INSURE HIS SUCCESS TOMORROW!

ENDORSED BY PARENTS & EDUCATORS:

"...I am delighted with the set, to say the least. My set was purchased to serve as an aid to the 'slow learners,' but it worked so well with them that the entire class participated at regular intervals. Most of the teachers at our elementary school are using your series."
Mrs. M. F. Madison
Jackson, Miss.

"...I have used your course in my reading class and the children were delighted with the records. Two interested parents want the set for their children."
Sister Mary Emily
Immaculate Conception School
Albany, New York

"Please send me your wonderful HEAR-SEE-SAY course...This is my second order...Course has proved excellent with other child. Please rush so child can benefit through summer..."
Mrs. George Ryserdorph
New York City, N. Y.

"...The books and the recordings will be most helpful for supplementing any child's growth in reading. The materials are well organized and easy to use."
Dr. J. C. Schwartz, Jr.
Audio Visual Director
Beverly Hills Unified School Dist.
Beverly Hills, California

COMPLETE HEAR-SEE-SAY COURSE: It's fun—children join in at home with the "Teacher" and "Alpha Kids" on the records. No parental assistance needed. Complete with four records, book and word games.

Your child must memorize all his multiplication tables to pass in NEW MATH

teach all the tables from 2's through 12's as easily as the words of a song!

Help your child do better in arithmetic—especially in the New Math—by getting him these new multiplication records. Modern Math teachers insist on children memorizing their tables. Now even children of pre-school age can easily learn all the tables from 2's through 12's simply by playing these records.

No urging needed from parents. Children love these records. Each table has its own catchy tune and jingles. And the man on the record quizzes your child so the tables stick in his memory. He must know his tables to learn long division, fractions and decimals.

Send No Money—just mail the coupon for complete details telling how you can let your child try these records right at home on a money-back guarantee. No salesman will call. Mail coupon to Bremner Records, Dept. A-9, Wilmette, Illinois.

School Principal writes: "Your records have a unique teaching approach and a good one. Our pupils are taking new interest in their tables. Excellent as a home-tutoring aid."

A. Blair Owens, Principal, Lexington Elementary School, Lexington, Pa.

Parent writes: "All three of my children used your records and in 6 weeks had learned all the tables from 2's through 12's. Best investment I ever made.

Your real living room and why you should carpet it.

ayroom, the family room, the rumpus room, you call it—your family probably spends e in it than in any other room.

e'll bet dollars to donuts, the most popular our house has the worst floor.

ve're not proposing you carpet it in $19.95 adloom. But Mohawk's Savon Carpet of t® nylon is a very good idea.

ne of the toughest, longest-wearing carpets ecause it gives you all the benefits of Cumun and then some.

ngs back under the crushing footsteps of teene steps.

It repels stains from just about anything even your kids might spill.

It comes in the kind of bright, brilliant colors that make a dull tile floor look "sick." And with our Cloud-Step cushion under it, it looks like a million bucks.

And, this is most important, it stands up to unusually harsh abrasive wear. Translated into English that simply means: you'll get a lot of years of wear without getting worn-out spots in front of the TV, sofa, doorway, or frayed patches at either end of a pool table.

To carpet a 12′ by 10′ family room with Savon will cost less than $110. Plus a modest cost for padding and installation. So you can afford to be practical and also enjoy the comfort of having carpet in the room you "live in."

This is only one in a series of ads that Mohawk Carpet is running with the following purpose in mind: we plan to take over your house.

With practical carpets for the dining room. Wildly luxurious carpets for the living room. An ingenious idea for the kitchen. Bathroom carpets. Bedroom carpets.

We've gathered many of these ideas and put them together in an exciting little booklet. It's yours for the asking at your Mohawk dealer. If you don't know who he is, write to: Mohawk Carpet, 295 Fifth Ave., N. Y. 10016.

WEDGWOOD

COMMEMORATIVE PLAQUES

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL

This is the most recent commemorative collector's plate, just received by us. It is in traditional blue and white Wedgwood jasper with a handsome raised silhouette of the late statesman, circled by a raised oak leaf and acorn border. A good example of Wedgwood crafts- manship. A memorial to treasure; only 300 available. 1¼" diameter. $6.50 ppd.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

This limited edition, authorized by the Shakespeare Anniversary Council, com- memorates the playwright on the 400th anniversary of his birth. In the trad- itional blue-and-white pattern with sculptured raised silhouette circled by raised oak leaf and acorn border. Limi- ted quantity for collectors. 4½" diam- eter. $6.50 ppd.

PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY

This is indeed a collector's plate, one of a limited edition made in England by Josiah Wedgwood & Sons in their trad- itional and classic blue and white pattern. It bears a beautifully etched raised sil- houette of the late President, surrounded by a raised oak leaf and acorn border like the other. It is a work of art, a memorial to treasure to years ahead. Only 200 available. 4¼" diameter. $6.50 ppd.

Each is $6.50 ppd; all 3, $18.95. Orders filled in the order they are received.

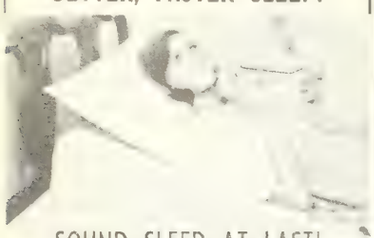
4 ANTIQUE MAPS

Rare, Decorative Collection

The Maps in this collection have been selected by us for their particular historic interest and outstanding decorative qualities. They are printed from deep etched plates made especially for us in Italy, lithographed in full colors on fine linen-toned vellum. No detail has been spared. The result are reproductions of truly museum quality. Handsome to frame as they are, these rare Maps are attractive in living room, library, den or anywhere. A quality appreciated by all.



ALL 4 MAPS $5.00, 2 sets for $9.50 ppd.

1. EARLY NORTH AMERICA (ILLUS.), 1690. Here California is shown as an island! America's founding Missions are marked with church symbols. An exciting map, decorated with Gloucester's Coat of Arms. Size: 17 x 19.
2. THE AMERICAS. 21 x 25 inches. A decorative scholarly Map, dated 1739. Designed by G. Delisle, Royal Cartographer for Louis XV.
3. THE WORLD—Typical French flowered Cartouche. 1742. 12 x 18 inches—very interesting!
4. ORIGINAL 13 STATES, 1783. Drawn "according to the Versailles Articles of Peace." Shows fishing rights. Size: 20 x 20 inches.

Chemist Experiments with Honey and Egg... Discovers How To

TIGHTEN SAGGING SKIN ON FACE AND THROAT

A laboratory experiment with natural bee's honey and extract of egg may prove to be the best news for sagging, drooping skin that makes face and throat look old and dowdy.

This new honey and egg skin-tightening recipe has been blended into a delightful new cream formula for easy home use. A thin coating spread over face and neck almost immediately makes the skin feel wonderfully stimulated as the tightening process begins. The skin undergoes a delightful, cooling temperature change . . . feels ever tighter as the process continues. The honey and egg dries to a glazed finish as nature's own ingredients continue to perform their skin-tightening magic.

And it's so fantastically easy! Just spread over skin with the fingertips, leave on for 15-minute tightening process, then . . . easiest of all . . . cool, clear water removes every trace in seconds! Skin looks and feels smoother, tighter, more alluring. Your face and neck may look younger, firmer, more vibrant and glowing than they have for years! Make-up looks more natural and stays looking fresh and lovely hours longer.

Tests proved conclusively that using nature's own Honey and Egg for new skin beauty, produced these long-lasting beneficial effects on all textures and types skin: (1) gave the skin a tingling, refreshing coolness "just like a beauty skin facial"; (2) tightened sagging, drooping skin, left it feeling taut and firm; (3) weathered, aging skin felt ultra-smooth again.

SMOOTHS AND TIGHTENS SAGGING SKIN IN THESE CRITICAL AREAS:

Not yet in drug or department stores, order by mail. Long-lasting supply costs only $3.00 on guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Try it today and see if it isn't the best way ever to make old, sagging facial and throat skin look and feel smooth again!

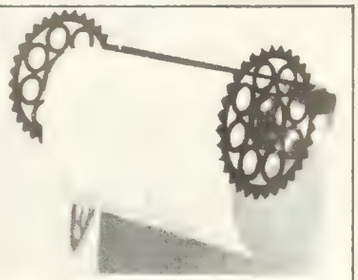
A Rare Find for Discerning Chessmen & Collectors!

AUTHENTIC "ALICE IN WONDERLAND" CHESS SET

Created from the Original Tenniel Illustrations

SOLID, HAND-CAST IN STONE & RESIN, HAND GLAZED!



Only one chess set similar to this one was ever made and it is in the British Museum. Every line, every subtle scowl and smile, every intriguing characteristic of Tenniel's original illustrations for "Alice in Wonderland" is gloriously captured in this fascinating series of chessmen. The Queen, cold and commanding with arms akimbo, stands 1½" tall; the jolly, rotund King has a puckish smile; the cowled Bishop has hands clasped behind his back; the Knight, in boots and armor, has a horse's head with handsome mane; the Castle serves as attire for a man with pennant flying atop his head; the Pawns are lithe and leggy figures with ballerina skirts.

Each absolutely solid, precious piece is carefully hand-cast from special stone and resin just like the most valuable museum reproductions and designed, like heirlooms, to endure for years and years. Each figure is meticulously hand glazed in rich ruby red or ivory white. The "Alice in Wonderland" Chess Set comes in a 13¾" x 9½" x 2" gift box with built-in playing board. Because of the painstaking care with which these sets are made, production is limited. If you're a chess player, connoisseur or collector, this is a most practical and precious gift.

23 YEARS LATER...

we're still advertising these same three pieces in House & Garden.

In a world that seems to move so fast, there's comfort in knowing that some things don't change—like quality, craftsmanship, a good product. Or three good products, in this case. We advertised these three pieces 'way back in 1943 in this same magazine. Through the years since, they've been bought by people everywhere who love fine things for their homes. People who want good American furniture that is well made and designed to last. People just like you, we kinda think.

THE MILTON LEE

Don't you think this little solid cherry chest, that we call Milton Lee, is "Country Victorian" at its best? Its lines are so simple, its ornamentation so functional, even the routed oval pulls each hand carved pull in a graceful frame, the sweep of the curve in the front and sides of the base is very pleasing, don't you think so, too? We make it, with affection and our best craftsmanship in our little manufactory and finish there, too, either in our Light Buckwheat Honey or Dark Forslund Cherry.

The size is: Top 22 X 11 inches, height 21 inches. The price, prepaid, is $49.95

THE OLIVER LEE SOLID CHERRY VICTORIAN LAMP TABLE

The Secret of Easy, Gourmet Cooking

Authentic Oriental Wok

The secret of truly fabulous oriental cuisine lies within the 12" diameter of our hand-made, heavy steel Wok. The Wok is specially constructed to tender-cook meat or fish, yet keeps vegetables fresh and crisp. Just add a little oil to the bottom of the pan; as the food begins to brown, whisk it up the sides to complete cooking. Oil drains down, leaving only the succulent full flavor of gourmet cooking. Comes complete with ring stand, so cooking can be done on any flame burner—even Sterno. So easy—guests can cook their own!

A rare value at $7.49 postpaid including fabulous oriental recipes.

but you will need a backward run about equal to the height of the wall (the equivalent of a "one-to-one" slope). This can be arranged simply by laying additional rocks in front of all or part of the vertical wall in such a way that the necessary plant pockets are provided for. Make sure the earth in the pockets can be in contact with the undersoil, not only to provide a good root-run for the bulbs, but to maintain adequate and even moisture. And make the pockets large enough for at least three bulbs of a kind. Surprisingly, some of the smallest narcissus species have bulbs that are very nearly as big as many species producing plants three or four times as tall.

Sources of supply for dwarf or miniature narcissi (less than 12 inches) are limited, but they exist—in a few instances in this country, in many instances in English and Dutch nurseries that issue lists and will ship by mail, taking care of all the import-quarantine paperwork. Among the most charming species—all quite hardy where ordinary daffodils grow—are N. bulbocodium, N. canaliculatus, N. juncifolius, N. minimus (the dwarfest trumpet daffodil of all), N. obvallaris, N. triandrus albus (the original angel's tears), N. watieri, and 'W. P. Milner.' This short roster was copied right out of a standard American catalogue, so we know they can be had. And gardeners can grow them all, both outdoors and in pots indoors, where they make a lovely if undramatic show on a sunny window sill. (They should be "forced" like any other daffodils: potted in October or November, buried under leaves or sand outdoors for six or eight weeks where they can be very cold but not frozen, then brought indoors and to the light, gradually, after Christmas or New Year's.)

Third weekend

Too big or too close? Trees will almost never interfere with one another unless they are forced to by inadequate light or severe crowding. In cases where several trees of one kind are planted in close proximity, even eventual crowding may not cause trouble. On the contrary, the group growth may acquire a character more interesting, in maturity, than one that a single specimen would have had. This is notably true in the case of white pines, for instance, where closely grouped trees form a single mass, turning to the weather the collective strength inherent in the species and turning to the observer a wondrous outline against the sky.

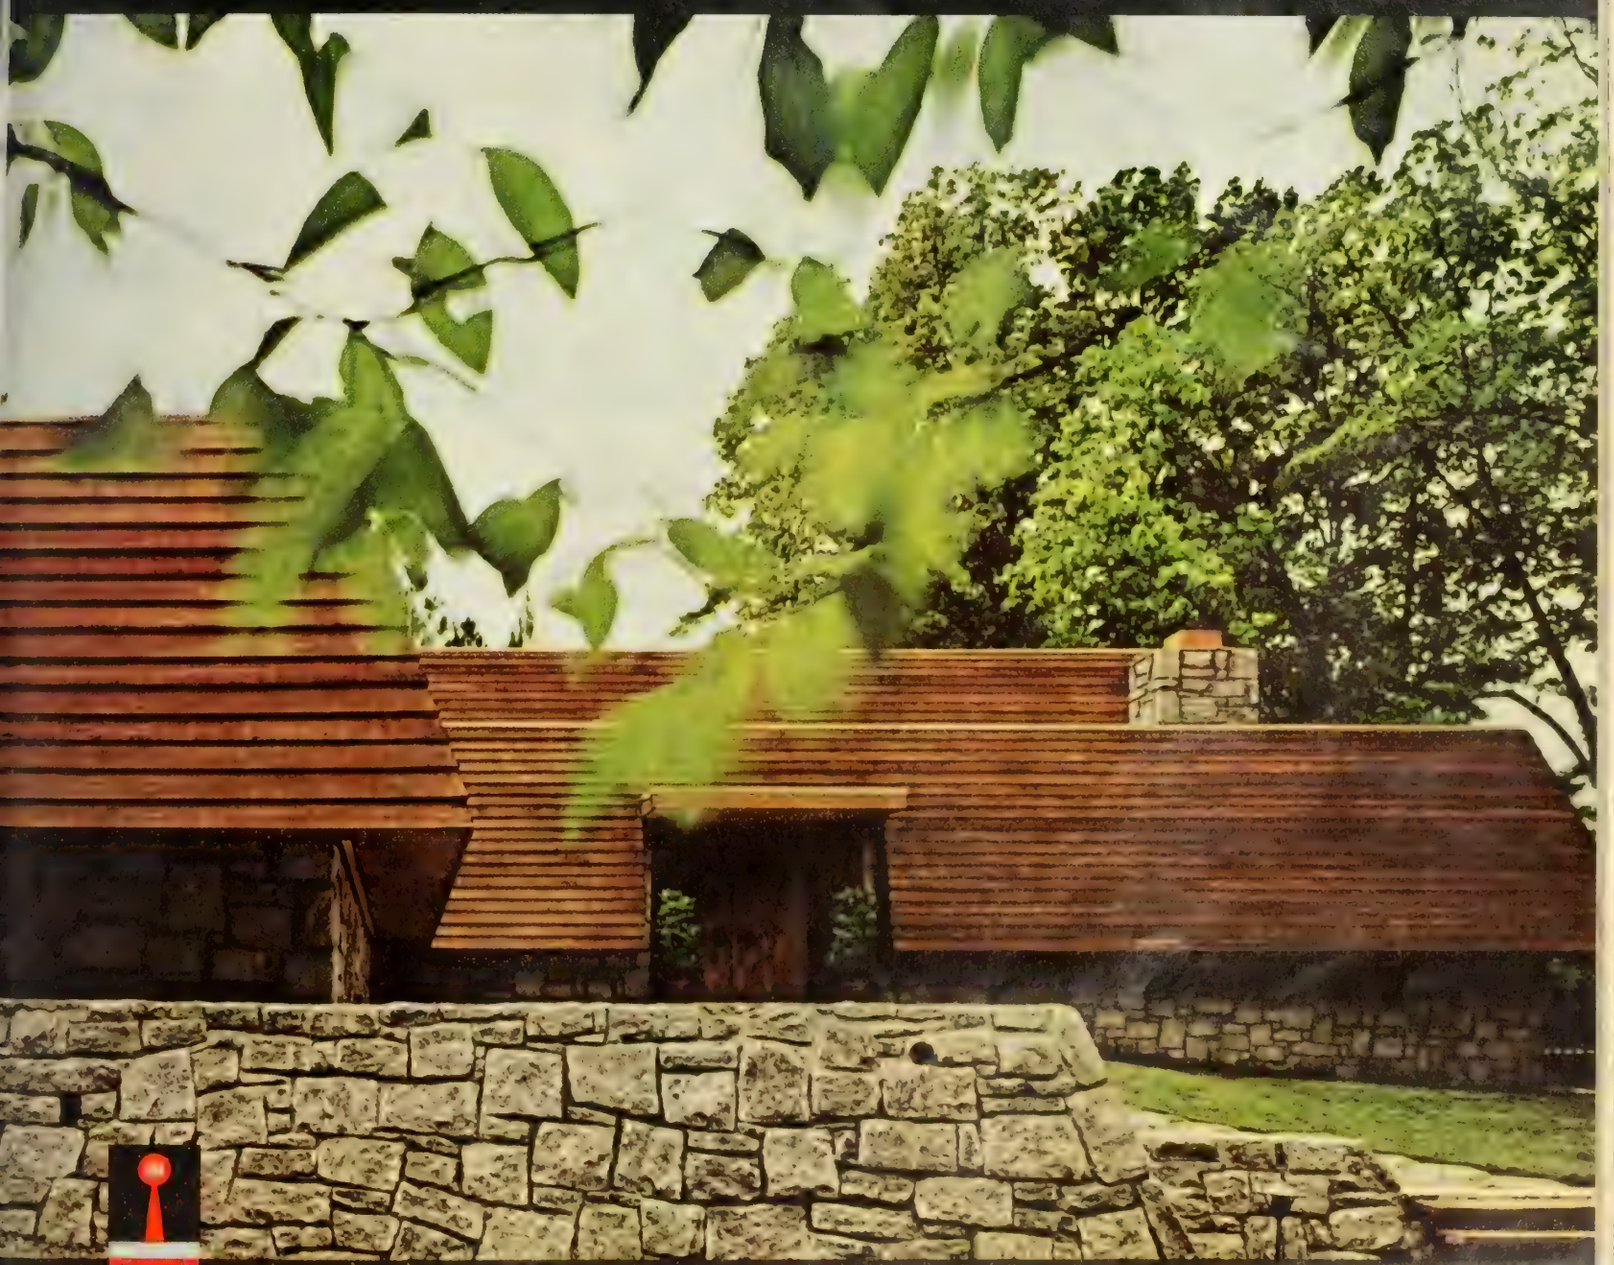
But where trees of different kinds are planted too close together in youth, the result as age comes on can be less than pleasing. For example, in the case of a beech and a sweet gum, both of which can readily share the same growing space, one (always the sweet gum) or both may turn away almost at right angles before touching. The same is true of the otherwise amenable and lovely sourwood (oxydendrum), which will grow in the shade or the lee of a larger tree—such as a maple or an oak—but will simply stop growing if its branches touch the neighboring one. The result of such seeming antipathy when jostled is usually a deformed kind of growth, an unpleasing mass (unless the foliage textures offer an especially pleasing or dramatic contrast), and a tangle of dead branches.

The time to avoid such results is in the beginning, of course. But what good is a beginning that sees small trees planted too far apart? The cure, if there is one, to such a condition is the removal of one or more of the crowding branches. But wounds in old plants heal poorly as a rule, and a mess of dead limbs is as good as a wound anytime. Even if twigs and leaves develop on newly uncrowded branches, the result may be ungainly for a long time. And the usual consequence of suddenly exposing a denuded tree to strong light is to burn out whatever new growth might try to develop.

So our recommendation is to keep an eye on any tree that is losing its leaves to see just what crowding exists and what should be done before it is too late. Don't wait until all the leaves are off: the bare branches may simply look confusing. If individual trees are too big to recover from the stress of sudden emancipation, leave them alone and pretend you planned it that way.

Reading notice. M. M. Graff (a woman, despite the noncommittal way she signs her name) has been a warm and enthusiastic devotee of hardy bulbs, among other plants, for many years. And both her dedication and her expertise are reflected in her recent Flowers in the Winter Garden (Doubleday, $4.95). It is a reading book, and one for the true although not necessarily knowledgeable appreciator of either winter or its dearly prized flowers. Mrs. Graff's own pleasant photographs accent the tart and engaging text.

Fourth Weekend



Window sill contrast. Everyone likes foliage variety in house plants as well as in outdoor trees and shrubs. But sometimes mere variety is not enough. There is variety, for example, in the plumes of asparagus-fern and the diamond rosettes of impatiens (patience plant). But at ten paces, not enough to prove anything. Let it therefore be almost an axiom of window gardens that some really dramatic contrast is essential to the success of every planting. Perhaps a vine-like shrub will do the trick—a bougainvillea, for instance. Maybe simply a big fiddle-leaf fig. As useful as any for providing this kind of extreme leaf contrast is the humble—or not so humble—rubber plant. Given time, this sturdy and all-but-everything-proof plant will develop into a real jungle vine, capable of framing a 15-foot bay window from a single tub. If you have no time, only money, you could buy from a growing florist or greenhouseman a big rubber plant that has already begun to climb or sprawl. It can be rearranged with surprisingly little difficulty if given good support.

If you have neither time nor money, only the urge, buy several modest plants and arrange them on either side of a window, one above the other on separate bracket shelves. The leaves won't be as big, of course, but the effect will be there for all to enjoy.

Be sure, though, not to confuse rampant growth with dramatic foliage. Sometimes the one is acceptable, sometimes the other, but in different places and for different reasons. A huge rubber plant may do very little for a rampant grape ivy—and vice versa—unless they are kept apart and given a place in settings suitable to each. Corollary to this (reverting to the rubber plant); instead of trying to train a tall growing plant to an increasingly tall stake, try treating it like a vine. It will still need support, but you won't necessarily have to cut a hole in the ceiling.

Cambrian style 80003. Cross section enlarged. Cambrian and Corlon® are trademarks of Armstrong

Armstrong introduces the new vinyl floor with cushioned comfort beautiful Cambrian Corlon

Cushions your step. Armstrong Cambrian Corlon is a vinyl floor with a new kind of foamed vinyl cushion underneath. It's delightfully comfortable to walk on because it gives under your feet.

Takes a beating—doesn't show it. For all its light-footed comfort, Cambrian Vinyl Corlon is as tough and durable as any floor Armstrong has ever made for your home. Even spike heels won't leave dents in it. It gives under your heel, then comes right back.

Smothers noise. Another virtue of Cambrian Corlon: its ability to absorb the noise of footsteps—the clatter of children at play. In addition, a floor of Cambrian Corlon dramatically reduces the noise of footsteps transmitted to a room below.

Beautiful design. New Cambrian Corlon has a warm, dappled design and comes in many beautiful colorings. It's perfect for the family room, entrance hall, children's bedrooms, kitchen—all the active rooms of your home.

Cambrian Vinyl Corlon is designed for active rooms like this: a family room.

Sealed seams for easy care. Cambrian comes in wide rolls that install with scarcely a seam. Where there is a seam, it's sealed—spilled water can't seep in.

Warmer underfoot. Cambrian Corlon's cushion base makes this floor warmer underfoot than most other floors.

This floor can be installed nearly anywhere—even directly over concrete.

Cambrian Corlon: comfortable, quiet, warm.

Guaranteed by Armstrong. Armstrong gives you a written guarantee with your purchase of Cambrian that covers both material and installation, if carried out by an approved retailer. Ask your retailer for details.

Take a test walk. Test Cambrian's cushioned comfort at your Armstrong retailer's. He is listed in the Yellow Pages under "Floors." House & Garden, October, 1966

UPSTAIRS AT THE WHITE HOUSE

–a shrine of elegance, it is nonetheless a home

● In the introduction to the official White House guidebook, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson extends her welcome in a charming letter addressed to all visitors. The First Lady concludes her message with these words: "The President and I are happy that you have come to visit the White House. We are sure that you will leave it with heightened interest in the long and stirring heritage which, like the White House itself, belongs to all of us." This is a very pleasant greeting, particularly to House & Garden. We have been made welcome three times—first in July, 1940 when we traced the history of the mansion from 1800 through the next 140 years; again in July, 1962 when we took our readers through the state rooms, then newly redecorated; and now in October, 1966. This time we pass by the grandeur of the reception rooms and climb the stairs to the second floor where the First Family lives—not quite, perhaps, like an average family, but as close to it as protocol will allow. These rooms are rarely seen except by family friends and state visitors, and even more rarely photographed. For this is a home, and as respected as Monticello when Jefferson lived in it or as Mrs. Brown's cottage down the street today. That is why it gives us so much pleasure to take you by the hand and lead you up the stairs that only a handful of visitors, so to speak, have tread. We are going on a tour that Mrs. Johnson, had she known about it when she wrote her guidebook letter, would have been quick to welcome. She, too, likes nothing better than going upstairs in other people's beautiful houses. (Continued)

● Except for its outer walls, the second floor of the White House—like the entire building—is a phoenix risen from what came perilously close to a ruin. The mansion was not really completed until 1829, at which point it was old enough for alterations. For well over a century, First Families tinkered with it, adding here and subtracting there, honeycombing the walls with pipes and wires for what were considered the modern conveniences of the moment—worrying the old structure into a raddled fire trap. Finally, one day early in 1948 while President and Mrs. Truman were shaking important hands in the Blue Room, the great chandelier overhead tinkled ominously and began to sway of its own accord. People were hustled from the room, the house was examined in every cranny, and almost immediately declared dangerously unfit to live in. One expert described it as standing up purely from habit. So, for four years and to the tune of almost six million dollars, the entire interior was rebuilt within the old skeleton to become what it is today—a strong-as-steel, superbly organized house with no hint of the sketchy days when Abigail Adams, for lack of other facilities, hallooed for her servants (there wasn't a bell pull in the house) and hung her laundry in the East Room.

● Mrs. John F. Kennedy, who joins Mrs. Johnson in the White House guidebook with a companion welcoming letter, notes that "Many First Families loved this house, and each and every one left something of themselves behind in it." Mrs. Kennedy speaks most literally. Over the years, the house has been decorated in an extravaganza of styles ranging from Jefferson's Francophilia to President Grant's "steamboat-palace" exuberance.

● It was Mrs. Kennedy who, with the Fine Arts Committee for the White House, finally restored composure and gave the house the consistent elegance it now possesses. Here and there throughout the vast maze are things "left behind" which were found draped with cobwebs in the most unlikely corners. But there is nothing that is not beautiful, or historically interesting, or endearing for sentiment's sake. The house is something of a museum, as it should be, but it has none of the chilly sanctity that hangs in the air of the Louvre, say, or the Prado. The second floor is not only handsome but, in some of the rooms, enormously pretty and, in spots, quite gay. The corner that Andrew Jackson said "hell itself couldn't warm" does not exist. The new warmth, however, comes as much from color and grace as from an exemplary heating system.

● Mrs. Johnson, economy-minded as she is, left the second floor pretty much as it was, when she became First Lady. Except for the family's private rooms, her additions are either things she can't live without—paintings, for example, or little touches that amuse her and spell Johnson. What you are going to see, consequently, is a series of rooms that have reached a state of felicity which would be likely to delight any First Family. The furnishings, like those of every house, will always have to be repaired and restored and kept lustrous, but it would be sad if they were seriously changed. Upstairs at the White House is a lovely place to live.

THE YELLOW OVAL ROOM

One of the prettiest rooms in the White House, the Yellow Oval Room has had a checkered career in its life as a presidential harbor. James Hoban, the White House architect, designed it as a private sitting room, which it remained until the advent of Dolley Madison—a spirited lady with a will of her own—who promptly appropriated it as a Ladies' Drawing Room and swathed it in the opulence of yellow damask, festoons, and fringes. Other First Ladies, however, had other tastes. In 1850, Mrs. Millard Fillmore turned it into a library and circled the oval with ponderous bust-topped bookcases and horsehair sofas as big as sleighs. Successively, the room served as bedroom, office, and private study, but not until the recent redecoration was the yellow legend revived and the room furnished in the Louis XVI style Jefferson was so fond of. Dolley Madison's golden yellow is as she would have liked it—everywhere, and once again the Oval Room is a private sitting room. It is also the President's favorite spot for greeting guests before a state dinner. Mounted on standards, the flag of the United States and the Presidential flag are always kept here, and when the Presidential party descends the grand staircase to the State Dining Room, the colors are removed and carried down the stairs to the fanfare and boom of the Marine Band in the Entrance Hall.

TOM LEONARD

THE OVAL ROOM'S PAINTINGS

The White House collection of paintings began in 1800 with the purchase of Gilbert Stuart's portrait of George Washington, and will continue under the aegis of the Committee for the Preservation of the White House. The Yellow Oval Room has its share of treasures. Over the mantel is a portrait of George Washington painted by Rembrandt Peale in his famous porthole style, and on the wall opposite hang two of the eight Cézannes owned by the White House. At the right of the fireplace are two marines as spread-eagle as the Fourth of July—Thomas Birch's "View on the Mouth of the Delaware" and Fitz Hugh Lane's "Boston Harbor—1854." Throned on an easel in front of a window is a White House gem—"The Apotheosis of Franklin," a pencil and sepia drawing by Jean-Honoré Fragonard commemorating the great Ben's visit to the Louvre in 1778. The French, utterly beguiled, never forgot him.

TOM LEONARD

A PLACE WHERE PEOPLE REALLY LIVE

By Scottie Lanahan

● It was a distinct shock, on visiting the First Family's private living quarters for the first time, to find, on two of the coffee tables in these exquisite rooms, copies of a well-known weekly with the word "POP!" splashed across the cover in red letters. Startling, but also reassuring: this, after all, was a place where people really lived, and I liked imagining Mrs. Johnson reading about Batman, pop art, and the like with the same eager curiosity which characterizes all her other activities.

There is nothing informal about the second floor of the White House. You won't find old newspapers piled up in a corner, or a Presidential sock lying around unmended. Still, there is a sense of sunshine, gaiety, and activity here which is necessarily absent from the public rooms. Not since the days of President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt have the President's private quarters been used to quite the extent, and in quite the way, that they are now—by a working partnership of the President and the First Lady.

In the morning, Mrs. Johnson works in her bedroom at what she calls "that tyrant, my desk" until the President leaves for his office in the West Wing at about 10:30. "We really whiz through the correspondence," says her press secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter. "Mrs. Johnson is one of those people who can't stand not seeing the wood of her desk top."

Then come appointments—with the Curator, James Ketchum ("Everybody thinks a curator is a prelate," says he; "what I really am is curator of White House history"); with Mrs. Mary Lasker of New York, the most important figure in the beautification program; with staff members; or with others involved in Mrs. Johnson's many projects. These take place either in her bedroom or in the Queens' Study [see our cover], a cheerful little blue hideaway down the hall, and they are apt to include a simple lunch (lunch is the First Lady's least favorite meal) of a roast beef sandwich made with homemade bread, fresh fruit, and a pot of Sanka.

The President comes "home" between two and three for lunch, usually bringing with him whomever he may be working with at that time. In addition to the press of business, he does not much savor being alone, and the day's work is as much an avocation as a vocation to him. Mrs. Johnson tries to be on hand at that hour, in case he needs her presence. A southerner by instinct and upbringing, she likes to leave men alone during business discussions, but when summoned, she joins them for coffee and dessert.

After lunch, the President usually takes a siesta in the European tradition because he likes to work from the late afternoon on into the night. One afternoon, a meeting about the War on Poverty was going on downstairs in the Red Room, a civil rights group was convening in the Treaty Room [page 204], the dining room was being set up for a conference with some business leaders, and the President was swearing in a new appointee in the Rose Garden. So the First Lady and the hundred women who had come to talk with her about the Job Corps had to meet under a tree by the tennis court, sitting on the grass.

THE PRESIDENT'S DINING ROOM

When the First Family is not entertaining in state or, less grandly, in the Family Dining Room downstairs, they dine en famille in the President's Dining Room at the west end of the second floor. Once a bedroom in the President's apartments, the room took on its new role with the installation of a kitchen and pantry next door and the timely gift of some very handsome American Federal furniture. The most illustrious piece is the mahogany sideboard (its eagle-inlaid drawers have pull-out trays) which was once a chattel of Daniel Webster's and has his initials inscribed in the inner case to prove it. Both the sideboard and the hunt table at the end of the room make elegant perches for the Biennais silver service purchased in 1833 by Andrew Jackson for exactly $4,308.82. Another collector, Woodrow Wilson, bought the Lenox plates on the dining table for a great deal less. Never a romanticist, he believed firmly in American goods. The intricate blue silk window hangings were copied from an early nineteenth-century design, and the room's greatest glory, its scenic wallcovering, is a later version of the Zuber wallpaper in the Diplomatic Reception Room downstairs. Both papers have the same background of six spectacular American scenes—Niagara Falls, for one—but in the dining room version, dramatic highlights of the American Revolution are superimposed in the foreground.

THE TREATY ROOM

So called because of the many pacts that have been signed within its walls, the Treaty Room was chosen by Andrew Johnson as his Cabinet Room—a label that stuck until 1902, when all offices were moved to the newly built West Wing Office. Used today as a waiting and meeting rendezvous, the room is ornately and delightfully Victorian with walls hung in a velvety flock paper paneled in a border copied from the wallpaper in the room where President Lincoln died across the street from Ford's Theatre. The great pedestal table knew the first President Johnson's gavel, although the companion chairs are gone —sold to members of Teddy Roosevelt's cabinet for a neat $5 each. The awesome chandelier is one of three that President Grant ordered for the East Room in 1873; the overmantel mirror once glittered downstairs, and the heart-back chairs seated illustrious guests in the Family Dining Room during the late nineteenth century. But the sofa was here in 1865, and the swivel chair dates from President Hayes' administration. Displayed between the windows on a desk that belonged to Julia Dent Grant is a clock of the same period that offers not only the time of day, but a calendar, a barometer, and a thermometer indicating such interesting refinements as the proper warmth—90 degrees—for what was once considered an "ordinary bath."

THE LINCOLN BEDROOM AND SITTING ROOM

n this room Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation of January 1, 1863 whereby four million slaves were given their freedom and slavery forever prohibited in these United States." So reads the plaque on the mantelpiece of the Lincoln Bedroom—the most venerated room in the White House, once Lincoln's Cabinet Room, and now a guest room for the Great, crowned aureled. In 1862, a visitor observed somewhat waspishly that the furniture was too kety and that the room should be better furnished. Today, surely, it is. the furniture is of Lincoln's era, and much of it was purchased by Mrs. Lincoln—luding the famous bed, an acquisition that made the President quite cross. He thought ar too expensive. Almost as costly was the exuberantly carved Victorian table ront of the fireplace. This fantasy was a favorite of both Mrs. Kennedy and s. Theodore Roosevelt, who not only kept it under a fond eye in her own droom, but had its companion furniture carefully stained to match it.

The Lincoln Sitting Room, right, although designed as a dressing room, eventually fell victim to the hurly-burly of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet Room next door, and became an office. day, it is a quaint and charmingly poky little room with a documentary wallpaper d hangings of the same kind of pear-patterned paisley that was one of the rages of nineteenth century. Used by guests in the Lincoln bedroom as a sitting room, it sts an unknown cabinetmaker's triumph—four chairs with laminated rosewood backs.

THE QUEENS' BEDROOM

The Queens' Bedroom is the distaff counterpart of the Lincoln Bedroom. Male dignitaries sleep in Lincoln's bed; distinguished ladies are given a Sheraton four-poster believed to have belonged to Andrew Jackson. Five queens have slept under its canopy: Elizabeth, Queen Mother of Great Britain, Wilhelmina and Juliana of the Netherlands, Frederika of Greece, and Elizabeth II. Also known as the Rose Guest Room, the bedroom for years has been decorated in red, rose, and white—a color scheme that has become a tradition, faithfully observed with each refurbishing. Except for a trumeau mirror, below left, the furniture is all of American origin, all of museum quality. The shield-back chairs were made in Colonial New York and presented to the White House in 1962, as was the mahogany secretary, an elegant example of late eighteenth-century cabinetry. Utterly comfortable, the room is always praised by its guests—and their maids. During the visit of George VI and Queen Elizabeth in a sweltering June of 1939, the Queen's maid called for—and was given—a battery of blankets and hot-water bottles. "My lady likes to sleep warm," she said. Warm slept the Queen, indeed.

The White House abounds in a princely gamut of wonderful old ornaments. An églomisé mirror, above left, part of the White House collection since 1962, makes a splendid splash in the Queens' Study, a little room (see it on our cover as the mirror sees it) next to the Queens' Bedroom. The eighteenth-century trumeau, left, that hangs over the fireplace in the Queens' Bedroom, was presented to President Truman by Queen Elizabeth II in 1951 during her visit to the White House as a princess. Offering the gift on behalf of her father, King George VI, she concluded her speech with a thought as charming as the painting: "It is his hope, and mine, that it will be a welcome ornament to one of your proudest national possessions, and that it will remain here, as a mark of our friendship, so long as the White House shall stand."

As the Persian proverb put it, "If thou hast two pennies, spend one for bread, and with the other buy hyacinths for thy soul." Impressed with the logic of this, we suggest a soul-sustaining purchase of hyacinths in the form of a superbly beautiful object (or a small set) talented enough to play a whole repertoire of dramatic roles in your table settings. An antique or a brand new design, it might be a dashing centerpiece on one occasion, an elegant serving dish on another. Again it might make eloquent guest appearances from time to time in the living room or the hall. But wherever it is used, or whatever it is used for, it will share its luminous spirit with everything around it, endowing the simplest of china, silver, and crystal with unexpected panache. Here and on the next two pages, seven such hyacinths demonstrate their cheerful versatility.

THE FRESH LIGHTHEARTED LOOK with garden overtones comes perfectly naturally to eighteenth century designs of painted, simulated bamboo. In a room at New York's United Nations Plaza, brilliantly set off by a tulip sprigged rug, a pair of game tables and six chairs look as gay as Brighton Pavilion. Pushed together and topped with vinyl "caps" to protect their leather tops, the tables double before the game as a dinner table. The painting is by Emilio Sanchez

A MASCULINE CONTEMPORARY MOOD can be just as valid with eighteenth-century furnishings as with modern counterparts since Chippendale and his contemporaries—for all their extravaganzas—created many designs notable for simplicity and function. This breakfront, for example, a complex of storage spaces, is eminently suited to the way we live today. It is also as right as rain with its latter-day partners—a deep-tufted leather chair and ottoman (which are also by Kittinger), a Greek flokati rug, and a steel rocking chair.

eighteenth century—furniture style of many moods

Looking as fresh as a Michaelmas daisy, eighteenth-century English furniture is enjoying a long-due renaissance. Once the polished mainstay of the opulently furnished room, this beautiful cabinetry had been eclipsed, to a degree, by other styles (Italian, French, Spanish) that seemed a little less serious, a little more playful. But reassessing the designs of Chippendale, Sheraton, Hepplewhite, et al., decorators have come to realize that they comprise not one style, but many—all exceptionally versatile. As you see here and in the rooms on the next two pages, this furniture with its refinement of detail, delicate moldings, and architectural scale can adapt itself to many moods—gay, stately, classic, contemporary. Yet the designs are the same we have long admired in museums. They are being recreated today by Kittinger, a firm that is currently celebrating its first one hundred years of faithful devotion to the art of fine cabinetmaking.

THE CLASSIC LOOK of understated elegance is achieved by teaming eighteenth-century designs with companion their own day. In designer Hubbell Pierce's Manhattan apartment, the mood is set by a Chinese rug and a collectio export ware housed in a splendid mahogany breakfront (the original is in the Governor's Palace in Williamsburg). the classic is spiced with contemporary touches: the white velvet on the sofa, the sleek screens of steel-bound black vi

THE PRETTY FEMININE LOOK that is now so prevalent can be created by silhouetting sable-brown eighteenth-century furniture against the singing colors we like today—in this instance, H&G's new Parrot Green (chairs, canopy lining, shades) and Jade (rug, walls). The chinoiserie pattern of the bed fabric is very old, but its colors are new. And nothing could be newer than covering a parson's table with chintz. Designed by Michael Blocker, Altman's.

The seven Light children range from eleven to a year-and-a-half

THE HOUSE OF SEVEN CHILDREN

Our age, like the Victorian, is an age of large families, as more and more new houses indicate. Unlike the big-family Victorian house, which was merely big, the best contemporary houses for families with children are adroitly planned to accommodate in equal measure the separate and special needs of both generations. But when the younger generation numbers not four or five, but seven, as it does in Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Light's flourishing family, such democratic balance is not so easy to achieve. The Lights wanted a house that would meet all the needs of their brood without looking like a nursery school, a house that would require minimum housekeeping and maintenance, a house where nevertheless they could enjoy all the amenities of adult living. A large order. But it was filled to the letter by the handsome contemporary, all-shingled house outside Portland, Ore., designed for them by architects Donald Blair and Saul Zaik with the Georgia-Pacific Corporation serving as consultant on materials.

The Lights' children are an especially lively crew. Like any children, they occupy space, get dirty, make noise, eat, and sleep, but in addition they have a whole range of diversified interests. Every one of them draws and paints (their works are always on display in the kitchen and family room). And most of them—including Karen, 11, Jennifer, 7, Cindy, 6, and Teresa, 4—are budding naturalists who collect rocks, butterflies, and insects. Steve, 10, is a versatile athlete and Jimmy, 8, a reliable carpenter. Paige, 1½, is still occupied with the more basic problems of walking and talking.

To make room for all these activities, the architects designed a two-story house in which the top floor belongs exclusively to the children. The lower floor contains their parents' living and sleeping quarters plus the rooms that are shared by both generations. (There is also a full basement that includes one large room which, because of the slope of the land, is above ground, earmarked for future expansion.)

This neat parceling of space between children and adults is bolstered by the fact that each generation has its own outside entrance. The floor plans (see page 225) are designed both to save steps in housekeeping and to route the children naturally to the areas they use the most without taking them through adult territory. On the children's own floor, the classic cause of morning and evening traffic jams has been minimized by an ingenious five-compartment bathroom. (Continued)

The Lights' house, opposite page, stands on two acres of rural countryside, a gently sloping site surrounded by tall Douglas firs, commanding a dramatic view of Mount Hood in the distance.

The front door, right, is in a wing that extends the lower floor and includes the living room. Beds of small gravel close to the porch change to big river stones punctuated by a path of fir rounds.

THE RETURN OF SHINGLES AND BAYS

Architecturally, the Lights' house illustrates a new version of the contemporary style which is becoming increasingly prevalent throughout the country. The entire exterior, walls as well as roof, is sheathed in red cedar shingles—once a familiar American look now in the ascendant again. The use of bay windows and other projections is another old device newly returned to favor, which produces a varied facade and adds space and interest to the interior. The roof line is broken up by crenellations designed merely to please the eye by getting away from rigid boxiness.

All the windows have casements or awning sash, some flush with the walls, some in bays, and the spandrels are painted a dark delft blue to match the exterior doors. The contrast between these large rectangles of blue and the red cedar shingles will become increasingly attractive as the shingles weather, turning darker and more silvery. The fact that they will never need painting is important to the Lights who were especially eager for a house with minimum maintenance requirements. (Continued)

In front of the house is a large parking area and carport with a workshop at one end. The front door at the right leads to the entrance hall outside of the pyramid-roofed living room. The numerous roof extensions over the little front porch and the upstairs windows function as sunshades.

The wing of the house containing the parents' living room and study is built over the part of the basement that will someday be a party room both for parents and their future teenagers. Since the land level is lowest here, this section of the basement is all above ground.

On the lower floor Mr. and Mrs. Light have the equivalent of a private apartment containing a living room; a study that can double for party dining since it adjoins the kitchen and is equipped with a pass-through; their own bedroom, bathroom, and dressing room. The entrance hall, living room, and study are in the wing of the house, and the bedroom in the adjoining corner of the main section (see plan, page 225)—all far removed from the children's entrance and the stairway to their bedrooms.

This special domain of the senior generation is an island of serenity and order where no unexpected guest will be greeted by a sea of toys or a mud-tracked carpet. When all the young ones are tucked away—the hour another mother-of-many calls "the nightly miracle"—their parents can relax for the evening in rooms that need no tiresome straightening up. (Continued)

THE PARENTS' REALM

The living room is extended both physically and visually by the two wide bay windows. When the curtains are drawn, the space is not lost because the curtains encircle the perimeters of the bays, and lights recessed in ceilings flood the bays at night. Pyramid ceiling gives the room added spaciousness and drama.

Adjoining the living room, right, is the study, at one end of which is a big two-section sofa. On party nights, below, the living room benches are moved out to the hall and the study sofa divided and moved into the living room bays in order to leave space in the study for setting up a folding dining table and folding chairs.

The living room walls are finished in a new material—vertically grooved, rough-sawn plywood panels 4 feet wide.

The study, where the Lights often sit after the children go to bed, has a fireplace that matches and backs up to the fireplace in the living room. One whole wall of the study is lined with bookshelves that also house the television and hi-fi.

SHARED TERRITORY

The section of the lower floor that Mr. and Mrs. Light and their seven children share on an equal basis includes the family room, the kitchen, and the laundry. The family room is used regularly for family meals, and also serves as an indoor playroom. Two large closets hold games and hobby equipment, and the adjoining open deck is the scene of many a dolls' tea party.

Only a peninsula counter separates the family room from the kitchen where Mrs. Light spends a good part of her day turning out some twenty-odd meals.

The U-shaped kitchen plan with its island work center provides enough counter space for several operations to take place at once, which is very likely to happen when the children help. And to minimize the work load, there is a maximum of equipment: a center-island range with two ovens; a large refrigerator-freezer in the kitchen plus a storage freezer recessed in the family room wall; a dishwasher, a double stainless-steel sink with disposer, and a high-faucet sink.

One long counter has a butcher block surface and the island counters are topped with heavy-duty ceramic tile with waterproof grout. All the cabinets are vinyl-clad; so are the walls.

The laundry-sewing room between the family room and the children's entrance (see plan, page 225) doubles as a mud room for the children.

WELCOME NEWS IN DECORATIVE HARDWARE

Until recently, if you wanted to find a generous selection of finely crafted hardware of distinctive design, you had to go to a specialized big-city shop that imported its products or had them made up to order. Today, the larger manufacturers are all making or importing in quantity a profusion of handsome hardware that you will find anywhere in the U.S., either in hardware store stocks or in the catalogues the stores keep on hand. The sampling on these pages illustrates several trends:

TWO FACES OF BRASS—the mirror-like yellow finish and the heavily etched—are coming to the fore in important hardware. For instance, the front door knobs on the vertical panel, above—the one mirror-finished, the other with etched circles.

EXOTIC MATERIALS are back, especially for interior door handles where no lock is needed. See the polished onyx and brass pull, top center of page.

DISTINCTIVE DRAWER PULLS for built-in storage are being made in a variety of materials. On the square panel, top of page (top to bottom), a faceted lead crystal knob; a Spanish knob of dark brass; a bar of brushed chrome; a ceramic pull in glossy black and gold.

THE DECORATIVE HINGE, once an important architectural detail, is now available again in excellent reproductions such as the classic finialed English hinge of solid brass at right of drawer pulls. MATCHING DOORKNOBS FOR INSIDE AND OUTSIDE come with locks for exterior doors, without locks for interior. On the big square panel, above (clockwise from top center): a hand-fashioned nugget of gold-finished brass; a round brass knob with a circular design repeated on its plate or "rose"; a brass knob with a sunburst pattern; a perfect sphere of brushed aluminum; concave knob and rose each in brass with matching striated edging; and, center, a hexagonal brass knob.

BASIC BEST BUYS FOR YOUR BEDROOM

What does it take to furnish a bedroom? Certainly a bed and a chest of drawers are basic. But if the bed is not your personal dream of comfort, and the chest is not designed to keep your specific possessions in good order, even such basic basics cannot be counted good buys. For you can only measure a good buy in terms of its value to you. • On the other hand, a big-yield investment for the bedroom may be something not at all obvious but decidedly basic because it gives the room an added dimension of livability. It might be the extra piece of furniture that makes it possible for you to curl up comfortably with a book, to write letters whenever the inspiration strikes you, or to enjoy a quiet cup of tea—all with a relaxed feeling of privacy and solitude. • Or the extra dividends that are the essence of a best buy might be purely visual—a matter of design or color that gives the room a coherent theme, or the sunshine quality that makes everything else in sight look better than it did before. • Size and price are irrelevant. A basic best buy may be mini or massive, expensive or pleasantly modest in cost. But always it will give you a happy bonus of satisfaction far beyond what you would normally expect for your investment.

Seven drawers that take up less than three square feet of floor space

The semainier, opposite page, offers two basic bonuses: you can slip it into a scrap of space, and its seven drawers organize your possessions almost automatically. Here, it makes a radiant white accent for the lavish sweep of flowered fabric that covers wall, bed, loveseat, even the top, sides, and front of the French dresser. Interior design by John Rieck. HOW TO WORK WITH A KITCHEN PLANNER

EDITOR'S NOTE: The third in H&G's series on how to work with the professionals whose talents create your home deals with the newest of the four. (For the architect, see August H&G; for the decorator, September H&G. The landscape architect's talents and practices will be outlined next month.) Kitchen planning is so new that individual practitioners tend to work in different ways, which means that you need to be well aware of the many possibilities before you can choose and work with a kitchen planner intelligently. But the profession is growing rapidly—testimony to the growing importance of the kitchen in the way we live today.

Considering that some of today's avant-garde music is orchestrated for pots, kettles, and pan covers, it may not be too farfetched to compare a kitchen planner with a symphony conductor. A kitchen planner, too, must master the entire score, know which performers come in when, and see that they do their parts expertly. He must weave a number of individual contributions into a harmonious whole. But he is not only the conductor: he is the composer and arranger as well—with a heavy interest in the box office.

How well does the average kitchen planner fill this multifaceted role? If your knowledge is based solely on your friends' experiences, you may have contradictory impressions.

One woman, whom you know to be exacting, is so pleased with her new kitchen that she becomes an instant demonstrator at the slightest flicker of interest on the part of any visitor. "It is exactly what I always wanted," she says, "only better."

Another friend tells you, "I can't stand even thinking about what we went through." Her husband, still smarting from the experience, leaves the room, and she spends the next half hour not only thinking but telling you about it. Summation: they spent $5,000 and never did get the one item she wanted—a rotisserie in the oven. "Imagine! The planner returned $23 and said, sorry, he couldn't get the right part—something about the model I chose."

The fact is that kitchen planning is a relatively new profession, still in the throes of growing pains. Unlike architects, kitchen planners do not have to be registered or licensed, and unlike interior designers, they do not have a long-established professional association that has set up qualifications and standards of practice. Anyone can call himself a kitchen planner. But, qualified planners do exist—experts who produce well-designed, eminently workable kitchens for no more than a good kitchen should rightly cost.

Why do you need a kitchen planner?

There is no doubt about it: having a kitchen installed can be a traumatic experience, whether the kitchen is small or large. Many suppliers, workmen, and temperaments are involved. The financial investment is apt to be considerable. The pitfalls are plentiful and the difficult decisions are numerous. Many concern technical matters, since the kitchen is a highly scientific complex, confined to one relatively small space. And major decisions are apt to be binding for quite a while, not only because the basic components are long-lasting, but because they are built-in, interdependent, and costly. You can get away with a change of mind more easily, say, in a living room. If you don't like those built-in shelves or you tire of that pink fabric on the chairs, it is usually no major deal to have the shelves removed or the chairs reupholstered. Not so with a peninsula sink or a pink countertop in the kitchen.

If you are planning a new house, it would be well worth suggesting to your architect that you call in a kitchen planner early in the proceedings. Architects can and do design kitchens—at least the size and shape of the room and its relationship to the rest of the house. But they cannot be expected to devote the same time and attention to planning and specifying every detail of the equipment as a specialist can.

If you are remodeling your present kitchen or installing a new one in another part of the house, the problems are apt to be even more complex, since considerable ripping out is likely to be involved (old appliances, tiled surfaces, even walls), and the existing arrangement of plumbing and heating lines may have to be changed. For such jobs, professional expertise is vital.

Even if you are merely planning to update your present kitchen on a piecemeal basis, the wise course would be to search out a qualified planner who is willing to prepare a long-range master plan. He can tell you which improvements would be the best investments to start with and which you can postpone.

One planner cites a case in point: "A woman came to us with $1,500 to spend for new countertops and cabinets. But the layout of her kitchen was awful. Why update it? For the money she had, we suggested that she would do better to invest in new appliances now and plan on relocating them later when she could do over the whole kitchen properly."

What does a kitchen planner do?

Since the kitchen planning profession is still so new and loosely structured, there is as great a disparity in the responsibilities that individual planners assume as there is in their talents and qualifications. Many unquestionably reputable planners restrict their operations to certain roles for which they are specially qualified, leaving the rest up to you or to your architect and/or decorator. Others provide an all-inclusive "one-stop shopping" service. This starts, of course, with planning the basic layout of the kitchen, figuring out hat should go where to provide the reatest convenience for the way you like work, and calculating how much stor- ge space you need and how it should be rganized.

In addition, the all-inclusive kitchen lanner specifies the location of plumb- ng, gas, and electricity inlets; plans the ighting; helps you plan the colors, fab- ics, and other decorative details; orders ll materials (countertops, floorcover- ng, wallcovering, etc.); orders the appli- nces and cabinets; supervises all con- truction and installation; sees that all quipment performs as it should (initial- y, at least).

Ideally, he is a single source of re- sponsibility from beginning to end. He knows what materials and equipment are available and what is on the horizon. He works closely with major distributors of appliances and cabinets, so he knows which are among the reliables. He is tech- nically competent, aware of applicable building codes, and knows the proper or- der of each step in the job. He is used to working with the plumber, electrician, mason, carpenter, painter, and other spe- cialists—which is highly important be- cause, during installation, many different workers and their helpers are in and out, and when they are in, they are confined to working in a relatively small space.

"When you're remodeling a kitchen, you're dealing with—and disrupting the nerve center of the house," observes a woman kitchen planner. "The well- qualified planner makes it as painless as possible."

How a kitchen planner operates

In some big cities or big-city suburbs, you will find a few (a very few) inde- pendent kitchen planners who operate in much the same way as the independent decorator. Having no affiliations with manufacturers of appliances, cabinets, or materials, such planners maintain no showrooms and are free to recommend any make of equipment. Like the inde- pendent decorator, an independent kitch- en planner works from an office (hope- fully well stocked with catalogues and samples), accompanies his clients to man- ufacturers' showrooms, and subcontracts the construction and installation to crews he works with regularly. Planners of this type are admittedly hard to find today, but their number is growing.

Far more numerous are the kitchen planning divisions maintained by author- ized dealers for specific makes of cabinets or appliances. Often they, too, offer all- inclusive service (including decorating), but your choice of cabinets or appliances is limited to those of the manufacturer they represent. (If it is a cabinet manu- facturer, you generally have a choice of appliances, and vice versa.) Some utility companies that sell appliances offer com- parable all-inclusive planning services. Some firms that install only the cabinets they make to order in their own work- shops also serve as dealers for one or two appliance manufacturers and provide a skeleton decorating service. And there are innumerable combinations of kitchen planning—complete or partial—with oth- er businesses, such as lumber dealers. The type of operation is not necessarily an in- dication, one way or the other, of the pro- fessional qualifications of the men and women who do the planning. But, in gen- eral, you are likely to obtain more satis- faction from an individual or a firm who specializes exclusively in kitchens, and who is equipped to do the whole job.

To help clear up the confusion over who is a qualified kitchen planner, a num- ber of kitchen planning firms of the dealer type are joining the three-year-old American Institute of Kitchen Dealers. Among their membership requirements: evidence of financial stability; at least two years in the retail kitchen business; a showroom with at least one complete kitchen display that passes muster; and competent personnel. One of their goals is to set up a testing procedure to certify competent kitchen designers. As of early this year the Institute had 200 members in twenty-eight states, and an official esti- mates that about 5,000 firms across the country are potential members.

Collaborating with other professions

An experienced kitchen planner knows how to work smoothly not only with the building trades but with architects and decorators. In the case of a new house, a kitchen planner who is brought into the proceedings while the house plans are still in the preliminary stages will work with the architect on basics such as the size of the room, the size and location of windows and doors, and the location of utility lines. The rest of the details the kitchen specialist will work out on his own. When his plan is completed and ap- proved by all concerned, he may turn over the specifications to the architect, who, working with the general contractor, will take care of all the ordering and in- stallation. Many kitchen planners, how- ever, like to leave only the basic construc- tion and background surfaces (floor- covering, wallcovering, painting, etc.) to the architect and contractor—preferring to have their own specialized crews in- stall the kitchen equipment (counters, cabinets, appliances, and perhaps the lighting).

If the kitchen is to be closely related visually to other rooms in the house—the family room, for instance—the kitchen planner should also be prepared to work closely with the decorator over such mat- ters as color schemes, curtains, the style of cabinets.

What a kitchen planner costs

A few kitchen planners charge for their services on a straight hourly basis. Some set a small (Continued on page 268)

finger puppets

—a joy to create, child's play to animate

The favorite off-off-Broadway production of many a family with young children is the unscheduled puppet show. Finger puppets are particularly appealing because they are so easy to make and so easy to make behave. Unlike string or hand puppets, they will take direction even from a toddler, while an older child or an only child can easily keep a whole cast busy, all at once and all by himself. A shy child learns that stage fright evaporates when a tiny finger puppet does the talking, and two or more puppeteers find it is easy (almost) not to dissolve in giggles when they can hide behind a chair or table stage and let the puppets face the audience.

For scripts, young puppeteers can turn to fairy tales and nursery rhymes. The King, Queen, and Jester, opposite page, might form the nucleus of a cast for "Rumpelstiltskin" or "The Queen of Hearts." Add the Cat for a performance of "Puss in Boots." Add the Owl and send him sailing away with Pussy-cat in their beautiful pea-green boat.

For children who are not budding actors and playwrights, finger puppets can serve as miniature toys, small enough to carry to a friend's house, or to play with in a plane or car, or to pack for a visit with relatives during the holidays. Many parents have also discovered that when Monkey or Clown or Elephant takes over the familiar litany of "wash your face, brush your teeth, comb your hair," a child will obey with miraculous good humor and dispatch—at least while the game is new.

Finger puppets are not, of course, to be reserved for children only. They make charming Christmas tree ornaments, or even year-round decorative objects if you hang them on a felt-covered board or behind glass in a long narrow box or frame.

Making finger puppets can be a delight in itself. The materials you need are so Lilliputian you can tuck them in a handbag and work on them in stray moments. The procedure is varied enough to keep your interest perking, and the results are quick. The real challenge lies in locating the small quantities of beads, sequins, tassels, and bits of yarn and fabric you need to give each character individuality. If you want to finesse this step, you can make all the puppets on the opposite page with the help of kits that contain everything you need (except needles and sewing thread), pre-cut and packaged down to the tiniest beads and bow ties. Embroidery thread and instructions are also included.

The makings of each puppet come in a kit that contains pre-cut clothes, jewels, and detailed instructions. For shopping information, see page 27

Big ideas for small gardens

Some ideas are big in size or scope. Some are big simply because of their relative importance. Alone or in combination, they can make an otherwise ordinary garden shine. The cost and effort involved in this kind of highlighting vary, of course. Some materials are more expensive than others, some techniques as well. But cost is not the real issue here (it almost never is). Imagination, ingenuity, appropriateness, practicality, quality of execution, these are the things that turn little ideas into big ones—and indifferent garden settings into distinguished ones. On these and the next two pages are carefully executed ideas that have made small gardens outstanding. Without a single exception, each of these ideas, although removed from its context, is able to stand on its own merits as a sort of self-focusing highlight. In fact, if you were to put any of them in another context, the chances are it would shine just as brightly.

Paths are essential to gardens of whatever size. Landscape architect Garrett Eckbo designed these pebble-studded concrete pancakes, set in bugleweed, for a small Los Angeles garden.

Three metal saucers act like cymbals to magnify the sound of falling water as they carry to a lower level the overflow from Mr. Frank Greisinger's natural pond in Gates Mills, Ohio. The sound seems to change, drop by drop.

A TOUR OF CALIFORNIA WINERIES

You can sample some of America's finest wines on short side trips from San Francisco

BY HUGH JOHNSON

The natural center for any tour of the California wine country is San Francisco. It is entirely appropriate that she should be America's wine capital: no other American city has so much of the elegance and grace of the capitals of Europe, so much of the happy attitude toward life that always seems to exist naturally with the constant nearness and familiarity of wine. Just as the Bay and the cool air washing through the Golden Gate are the secret of San Francisco's beauty, so are they the secret of the success of the wineries that hem her in on every side.

All around the Bay, to the north in the valleys of Napa and Sonoma, to the east in the Livermore valley, to the south in Santa Clara and San Benito counties, the vineyards benefit from this temperate influence. None of these fine northern wineries are the biggest in the state, but they, like their wines, offer the most variety and individuality to the visitor. Whether you want to see the oldest, the finest, the most modern, or simply the most Californian (a white ranch house in a green fold of hill, its stone barn backed up against the vine-hung slope for coolness), you will find it here.

What first struck me, fresh from the wine country of Europe, is how little the wineries of California imitate, or need to imitate, their Old World origins. How very Californian they are. Nothing in Europe prepares you for the shock of hearing a vineyard estate referred to as a ranch, or of seeing cattle dragging their dust trail down to a water trough beside a plot of vines. Nowhere in Europe is there a long turtle-back hill bearing 2,000 acres of classic grape vines, or a cellar-barn holding 30,000 50-gallon barrels of maturing red wine. Europe has variety enough, from the vertiginous slate of the Moselle to the chalky dunes of Andalusia, but all her vineyards are consolidated, old, and casual. No one has planted vines anywhere new for centuries. There is no emotion among these old inheritors to correspond with the running of the first juice the first bunches, or the first n ments of the new press in the press-house, which are the jo wine in California.

This is not to say that Cal nia wine was born yesterday traditions go back to the Spa missions, and its continuous d opment for a hundred years. it has not congealed, as the ce ries have congealed the viney of Europe, into a pattern of changeable ways. Every m some lawyer or businessman the call of wine and sets o homestead in the Napa valley buys an old run-down winery n of Sonoma, to see what he can into the land and what the l will give him in return. HOUSE & GARDEN'S

Tart and Tartlet Cook Book

By Elaine Ross

Whether you call a filled pastry shell a tart, a flan, a single-crust pie, a quiche, or a torta, it is still one of the most adaptable dishes in the cook's repertoire. Tarts and their miniature versions—tartlets—can be made of all kinds of mixtures, sweet or savory, light or hearty. They may be eaten hot or cold; prepared as a first, main, or dessert course or a cocktail appetizer; served for lunch, brunch, dinner, or supper (and a tart in a pastry crust need not be accompanied by either bread or an additional starch). While most tart shells are made of pie or puff pastry, they can also be formed from cookie dough, meringue, or crumbs held together with melted butter. You can even vary the shapes by baking them in pans with fluted rims, in round or rectangular flan cases, or, in the case of tartlets, in little scalloped tins.

Both large tarts and tiny tartlets combine a delightful appearance and delectable consistency with basic practicality. Many tart shells are baked first and then filled, an easy way for a hurried hostess to put a meal together at the last minute. Unbaked shells can be made a few hours or even a day ahead and refrigerated until needed—or, if you prefer, prepared en masse weeks or months ahead and frozen. You can also freeze a completely cooked tart, although you'll find it does lose some of its flavor and texture after thawing. To counteract this, defrost it in a fairly hot oven and then cool to room temperature. There is only one hazard in tart making: if a filling is put in an unbaked shell, the crust often becomes soggy. But even this can be averted if you know the tricks of the professionals—either place the tart on the bottom shelf of the oven where the intense heat will start the crust baking immediately, or use a flan ring on a baking sheet, which conducts the heat better than a pie plate.

TART PASTRIES

Pastry #1

1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
6½ tablespoons vegetable shortening

Place the flour and salt in a bowl. Cut in the shortening with a pastry blender or 2 knives until the mixture forms fine crumbs. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons water over the crumbs very gradually, stir and press down with a fork until the dough begins to hold together. Shape it into a ball with your hands. Chill until ready to use.

Pastry #2

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
7 tablespoons vegetable shortening

Mix 2 tablespoons of the flour with 3 tablespoons cold water, stir until smooth and set aside. Combine the remaining 1 cup flour and salt in a bowl and cut in the shortening with a pastry blender or 2 knives until the mixture forms coarse crumbs. Add the flour-water mixture and stir with a fork, pressing down on the dough until it begins to hold together. Gather it together with your hands and shape into a ball. Chill until ready to use.

Pastry #3

2 cups flour
12 tablespoons butter
2 egg yolks

Mix the flour, butter, and egg yolks with your hands until the ingredients form a smooth dough.

To make tart shells from any of these pastry doughs, roll out the dough to a thickness of approximately ⅛". Cut in circles large enough to line the bottom and sides of shallow 4" fluted tart tins. Line the tins with the dough and bake in a preheated 350° oven for 20 minutes, or until light gold. Carefully remove the tart shells from the tins and cool completely.

Pastry #1 and #2 recipes make enough dough to line 6 4" tart tins. Pastry #3 makes enough to line a dozen 4" tart tins.

To line a pie plate, roll out the dough to a circle about 1" larger in diameter than the pie plate. Gently ease the dough into the pie plate and trim it ½" beyond the rim of the plate. Turn under the overhanging edge and flute the rim with your fingers or press down on the rim with the tines of a fork. Prick the surface of the pastry with the fork at 1" intervals. Bake in a preheated oven according to recipe directions.

EGGS, CHEESE, VEGETABLES

Sheila's Egg and Spinach Tarts

Double recipe Pastry #1
10 eggs
1 package frozen chopped spinach, cooked and drained
6 ounces Münster cheese, coarsely grated

Shape the pastry into a roll. Cut into 8 equal slices and roll out each slice to a circle large enough to cover the outside of a 6-ounce inverted custard cup. Mold the pastry around the cups, press the edges with the tines of a fork, and prick the surface at 1" intervals with a fork. Bake, pastry-end up, in a preheated 450° oven for 15 minutes, or until golden. Cool before removing the shells carefully from the custard cups. Place them on a baking sheet. Set aside while preparing the filling.

Beat 2 of the eggs lightly, add the spinach and Münster cheese and stir until blended. Divide the spinach mixture among the baked shells on the baking sheet. Carefully break 1 egg into each shell on top of the spinach mixture. Bake in a preheated 375° oven for 25 minutes, or until the eggs are set. Serves 8 for a first course or 4 as a main course luncheon dish.

3 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Prepare the pastry, roll it out to a circle 10" in diameter, and gently ease it into a 9" pie plate. Trim it ½" beyond the rim of the pan. Turn under the overhanging edge and flute the rim with your fingers or press down on the rim with the tines of a fork. Prick the surface of the pastry with the fork at 1" intervals. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 10 minutes. Cool.

Place the farmer cheese, cottage cheese, egg yolks, sour cream, and light cream in the small bowl of an electric mixer and beat until smooth. (Or, press the cheeses through a fine sieve, add the yolks, sour and light creams, and beat by hand.) Fold in the onion soup mix and spread the mixture in the partially baked pastry shell. Sprinkle with the Parmesan cheese and the parsley. Bake in a 350° oven for 20–25 minutes, or until the crust is golden. Serve warm, or reheat before serving.

Serves 6 as a luncheon dish, 8 as a first course, or 12 as an hors d'oeuvre.

Swissair Tarts

1⅓ cups flour
¼ cup ground walnuts
8 tablespoons butter, at room temperature
5 egg yolks
⅓ cup plus 1 tablespoon milk
3 ounces Gruyère cheese, coarsely grated
1 teaspoon cornstarch
3 tablespoons light cream
Salt to taste
⅓ cup heavy cream

Mix the flour and walnuts. Add the butter and 2 egg yolks and mix with your hands until you obtain a smooth dough. Divide dough into 14–18 pieces and press each portion with lightly floured fingers over the bottom and sides of 14–18 fluted tart tins, 2"–2½" in diameter. Prick the surface of the dough with a fork and bake the shells in a preheated 350° oven for 15–20 minutes, or until golden. Leave the shells in the tins for a few minutes, then remove them carefully.

Heat the milk and cheese, stirring constantly, until the cheese melts and the mixture comes to a boil. Mix the remaining 3 egg yolks with the cornstarch and light cream. Add to the cheese mixture and heat to just under the boiling point. Remove from the heat, add salt, cool, and chill. (For fast chilling, place the mixture in the freezer.) Whip the heavy cream until stiff, fold into the chilled cheese mixture. Place the mixture in a pastry bag fitted with a star-shaped tube and pipe it into the tarts. Refrigerate until serving time. Serve as an appetizer or first course. Makes 14–18 tarts.

Layered Cheese and Spinach Tart

½ cup plus 1 tablespoon fine bread crumbs
⅓ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 pound ricotta or cottage cheese
1 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
Salt to taste
10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, cooked and well-drained
¼ pound cooked ham, diced
¼ teaspoon Lawry's Seasoned Pepper

Mix ½ cup of the bread crumbs with 2 tablespoons of the grated Parmesan cheese. Blend in the melted butter, and press the crumb mixture onto the bottom and sides of a 9"–10" pie plate. Place the ricotta or cottage cheese, remaining Parmesan cheese, 2 tablespoons of the sour cream, flour, and eggs in the large bowl of an electric mixer. Beat at high speed until the mixture is smooth. Add salt.

Mix half the cheese mixture with the spinach and spread evenly in the prepared pie shell. Add the ham to the remaining cheese mixture and spread carefully over the spinach-cheese layer. Sprinkle the seasoned pepper and the remaining crumbs on top. Bake in a preheated 350° oven for 40 minutes. Serve immediately and pass the remaining sour cream separately as a sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Cheese Soufflé in a Tart Shell

1 recipe Pastry #1
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
1 cup milk
¼ pound Gruyère cheese, coarsely grated
¼ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
4 eggs, separated
Salt to taste
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

Prepare the pastry, roll it out, and fit it into a 10" pie plate. Flute the rim and prick the surface with a fork. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 15 minutes.

Combine the flour and nutmeg in a saucepan. Add the mustard and milk and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Cook until the sauce thickens and remove from the heat. Add the cheeses, replace over the heat and cook, stirring constantly, until the cheeses are melted. Remove from the heat and add the egg yolks and salt. Beat the egg whites until foamy, add the cream of tartar, and beat until stiff. Fold into the cheese sauce, and pour into the partially baked tart shell. Bake the tart in a 375° oven for 25 minutes, or until the soufflé filling is puffed and golden. Makes 5–6 servings.

Roquefort Cocktail Tartlets

½ recipe Pastry #3
18 ½" cubes of Roquefort cheese

Prepare the pastry and roll it out to a thickness of ⅛". Cut the dough into circles large enough to line the bottom and sides of 18 1½" fluted tart tins, line the tins with the dough, and place a cube of cheese in the center of each. Bake in a preheated 350° oven for 20 minutes. Carefully remove the tartlets from the tins and serve immediately or reheat before serving. Serve as an appetizer. Makes 18 tartlets.

A delectable array of hot and cold tartlets can be served, in lieu of a first course, with pre-dinner cocktails. Variously filled tartlets of different shapes (formed in tiny tins) are arranged in a wheel design on a round board or platter. Spokes of parsley packed in rivieres radiate to a tomato-skin "rose" at the center. Ready mixed Martinis keep chilly in a wine dispenser with a handy center tube for ice cubes.

Gougère en Croute

1 recipe Pastry #1
⅔ cup milk
[illegible] butter
[illegible] salt
[illegible]
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 eggs
3 ounces Gruyère cheese, finely diced
Cream sauce mixed with ½ pound cooked seafood or mushrooms

Roll out the pastry to a circle about 10½" in diameter. Line a 9½" pie plate. Flute rim.

Bring the milk and butter to a boil in a small saucepan. Add salt and flour and stir briskly until the mixture forms a ball and leaves the sides of the pan. Remove from the heat and beat in the mustard and 1 egg at a time until the dough is satiny. Fold in ¾ of the cheese. Spoon the mixture in a circle over the tart pastry, reaching about 1" from the edge and leaving a hole in the center. Sprinkle the remaining cheese over the circle of dough. Bake in a preheated 425° oven for 15 minutes. Lower the heat to 400° and bake 30 minutes longer, reducing the heat 25° every 10 minutes.

Spoon a little of the seafood or mushroom sauce in the center of the gougère and pass the rest separately. Serve as an appetizer or first course. Makes 6–8 servings.

Eggs Benedict, La Réserve

½ recipe Pastry #3
6 eggs
6 tablespoons butter
3 egg yolks, lightly beaten
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt, cayenne pepper to taste
6 slices Canadian bacon

Prepare the pastry and follow directions for making tart shells. Make and bake 6 tart shells, but do not cool them. While the shells are baking, poach the eggs and keep them warm in a bowl of hot water. Melt the butter in a saucepan. Remove from heat, stir in 6 tablespoons cold water and the egg yolks. Replace over low heat and cook, stirring constantly, until the sauce thickens. Remove from the heat, stir in the lemon juice. Season with salt and cayenne pepper. Heat the bacon in a skillet for 1 minute. (If the tart shells have finished baking before this, keep them warm in the oven with the heat turned off and the oven door open.)

To assemble, place the tart shells on individual plates. Place 1 slice of bacon in each shell. Lift the poached eggs from the hot water with a slotted spoon and drain them carefully for a few seconds on a towel. Place 1 egg on top of the bacon in each shell and spoon a portion of the sauce over each egg. Serve the tarts immediately as a main course. Serves 6.

String Bean Tart Marguerite

1 recipe Pastry #1
3 packages frozen cut or French-cut string beans
6 tablespoons butter
3 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream
¼ teaspoon salt
2 hard-cooked eggs, riced
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Prepare the pastry and roll it out to a circle 10½ in diameter. Fit the pastry into a 9½" pie plat and flute the rim. Prick the surface with a for and bake it in a preheated 425° oven for 15 mi utes, or until golden. (Or, bake the shell ahea and reheat it at serving time.)

While the shell is baking, cook the bea according to package directions. Drain thorough ly and keep hot. Melt the butter in a saucepar Remove from the heat. Beat the egg yolks lightly stir in the cream and salt, and pour into the sauce pan. Stir until blended. Turn the heat very lov and cook the sauce, stirring constantly, until a thick as a Hollandaise. Mix half of the sauc with the beans, spoon into the hot tart shell Sprinkle the riced egg over the surface and top with the parsley. Pass remaining sauce separately. Makes 8 servings.

Note: Cooked peas, cauliflower or broccoli flowerets, or asparagus tips may be substituted for the beans.

FISH

Shrimp Boats

1 recipe Pastry #3
6 ounces cream cheese
Heavy cream
4 cups cooked and cleaned tiny shrimp
2 tablespoons drained capers

Prepare the pastry and follow directions for making and baking 12 tart shells. Mash cheese and add sufficient cream to bring it to a spreading consistency. Spread a portion of the mixture over the bottom of each cooled shell. Arrange the shrimp, slightly overlapping, in a circle inside the rim of each shell and place the capers in the center. Serves 12 as a cocktail hors d'oeuvre or as a first course.

Fresh Salmon Tarts

1 recipe Pastry #1
2 eggs
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup sour cream
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced dill
Salt, white pepper to taste
1 cups flaked cooked salmon
8 sprigs dill

Prepare the pastry and shape it into a roll 2" in diameter. Cut into 8 equal slices, and roll the slices into circles large enough to line muffin tins. Line the tins with the pastry, prick the surface with a fork, and bake in a preheated 450° oven for 15 minutes, or until golden. Leave the shells in the tins for a few minutes before removing them. Cool while preparing the filling.

Beat the eggs. Stir in the mayonnaise, sour cream, Tabasco, lemon juice, and dill. Season with salt and pepper. Mix with the salmon and spoon into the tart shells. Reduce the oven heat to 425° and bake tarts for 15 minutes. Place a sprig of dill on top of each tart and serve immediately. Makes 8 tarts.

King Oscar's Sardine Tart

1 recipe Pastry #1
4 slices lean bacon
2 medium-sized potatoes, cut into ⅓" dice
¼ cup chopped onion
1 stalk celery, finely diced
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper
2 3½-ounce cans imported (preferably Scandinavian) sardines, drained

Prepare the pastry and roll it out to a circle 10½" in diameter. Fit it into a 9½" pie plate, and flute the rim. Prick the surface with a fork, and bake the pastry shell in a preheated 425° oven for 10 minutes.

Sauté the bacon in a skillet until crisp. Remove the bacon, crumble it, and reserve. Pour off half the drippings. Sauté the potatoes, onion, and celery in the remaining fat in the skillet, stirring frequently, until the potatoes are just tender. Add the parsley and reserved bacon. Beat the eggs lightly, add the milk, salt, and pepper, and combine with the sautéed potato, onion, and celery mixture.

Arrange the contents of [illegible] sardines on the bottom of the partially baked crust. Spoon in the vegetable mixture and cover with the remaining sardines, arranged decoratively. Bake in a preheated 375° oven for [illegible] minutes, or until the custard is just set. Serve hot or at room temperature. Serves 6–8 as a first course.

Crab and Mushroom Quiche

1 recipe Pastry #2
4 ounce can mushrooms [illegible]
1 teaspoon butter
¼ pound Gruyère cheese, finely diced
1 cup lump crab meat
¾ cup sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise
Light cream
3 eggs, lightly beaten
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Prepare the pastry and roll it out immediately to a circle about 10½" in diameter. Gently ease the pastry into a 9½" pie plate and trim it ½" beyond the rim of the plate. Turn under the overhanging edge and flute the rim with your fingers or press down on the rim with the tines of a fork. Prick the surface of the pastry with the fork. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 10 minutes. Cool while preparing the filling.

Drain the mushrooms, reserving the juice. Sauté the mushrooms in the butter for 2 minutes. Scatter them over the partially baked crust with the cheese and the crab meat. Combine the sour cream and mayonnaise with the reserved mushroom juice and add enough light cream to measure 2 cups of liquid. Blend in the eggs, Tabasco, and parsley, and pour into the crust. Bake in a 350° oven for 50 minutes, or until set. Serve hot. Serves 12 as an appetizer, 8 as a first course.

Baltimore Crab Tarts

Double recipe of Pastry #1
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
¼ cup drained capers
2 pounds lump crab meat, picked over and cartilage removed

Prepare pastry and bake 8 individual tart shells according to directions for Sheila's Egg and Spinach Tarts. Let them cool. Combine the eggs, mayonnaise, mustard, salt, and Tabasco. Add the capers. Toss the crab meat with the egg mixture and spoon into the baked tart shells. Bake in a preheated 425° oven for 10–15 minutes, or until bubbling. Makes 8 tarts.

Relais Bisson's Filet of Sole St. Michel

½ recipe Pastry #3
6 small pieces filet of sole (about 1½ pounds)
½ pound mushrooms
3 shallots, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
1 small can white asparagus tips
½ cup dry white wine
2 tablespoons butter
2 egg yolks
Additional heavy cream

Prepare the pastry and follow directions for making and baking 6 tart shells. Roll up the pieces of sole and place them on end in a shallow saucepan just large enough to accommodate them in a single layer. Remove the mushroom stems (reserve caps), chop them and scatter with the shallots over the fish. Sprinkle with the salt. Drain the juice from the asparagus, add it to the wine and pour over the fish. Cover and simmer over low heat for 10 minutes, or until the fish flakes easily. Remove the fish and keep warm.

Place the asparagus in a small saucepan, cover, and heat slowly. Boil the fish stock over high heat until reduced by ½. Meanwhile, slice the mushroom caps and sauté them in 1 tablespoon of the butter for 5 minutes. Blend the egg yolks and cream, add the hot fish stock, return to the saucepan and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and swirl in the remaining 1 tablespoon butter.

To assemble, place 1 tart shell on each plate. Place a piece of sole in each shell with 2 asparagus tips and a few sautéed mushroom caps. Spoon sauce over fish and serve. Serves 6.

MEAT

Ham and Leek Tarts

Double recipe of Pastry #1
6 leeks
2 cups diced cooked ham
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
¼ cup freshly grated Romano cheese
2 eggs, separated
Salt to taste

Prepare the pastry and bake 8 individual tart shells on the outside of 6-ounce inverted custard cups, following directions for Sheila's Egg and Spinach Tarts.

While the shells are baking, cut off the green portion of the leeks, trim the root ends, and wash the leeks thoroughly. Cook them in boiling, salted water for 10 minutes, or until tender. Drain thoroughly, slice them and divide among the baked shells. Scatter the ham over the leeks.

Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add the milk and cook, stirring constantly, until the sauce is thick. Remove from the heat and stir in the cheese and egg yolks. Add salt. Beat the egg whites until still but not dry. Fold into the sauce and spoon into the shells. Bake for 22 minutes, or until puffed and golden. Makes 8 tarts.

Jellied Ham Tart

1 recipe Pastry #2
1 package celery-flavor salad gelatin
4 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
½ cup well-seasoned chicken stock
1½ cups sour cream
¼ cup white port
1 medium-sized yellow squash, coarsely grated
¼ cup minced parsley
¾ cup cooked ham, finely diced
Salt, pepper to taste
12 pitted black olives, sliced
½ cup mayonnaise
Prepared mustard, to taste

Prepare pastry and roll it out to a diameter 1" larger than a 9½" or 10" pie plate. Ease the pastry into the pie plate and flute the rim. Prick the surface with a fork. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 375° and bake for 7–10 minutes longer, or until golden. Cool completely.

Prepare the celery-flavor gelatin according to package directions. Soak the unflavored gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Heat the chicken stock to the boiling point, add the soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add 1 cup of the sour cream and the port to the dissolved gelatin and combine with the celery-flavor gelatin. Cool in the freezer or refrigerator until the mixture is almost set. Fold in the squash, parsley, ham, salt, and pepper. Pour into the cooled crust, decorate with the black olives, and chill until the jellied filling is firm.

Serve with a sauce made by combining the remaining ½ cup sour cream, mayonnaise, and mustard. Makes 6–8 servings.

For an after-theatre supper, individual Ham and Leek Tarts might be made in the form of little pastry "skillets," an idea spotted at Lasserre restaurant in Paris. The handles—strips of dough with a hole cut out—are baked separately, stuck into the filled tarts just before serving.

Torta Rustica

(Courtesy of Chef Giuseppe Rizzi of the Trattoria in New York)

1 medium onion, minced
1¼ pounds butter
1 pound boneless pork loin
1 pound boneless beef chuck
1 pound boneless veal, cut from leg
2 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach, cooked and drained
1 teaspoon mashed garlic
5 eggs
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ pound ham, cut in julienne strips
Salt, pepper
2 tablespoons fine bread crumbs
½ teaspoon sugar
4 cups flour
4-ounce can pimiento, drained
5 hard-cooked eggs
1 egg yolk mixed with 1 teaspoon water

Sauté the onion in ¼ pound of the butter until transparent and golden. Coarsely grind the pork, beef, and veal together, add them to the onion, and sauté for 10 minutes over high heat, stirring constantly with a fork to break up the chunks of meat. Sauté the spinach and garlic in another skillet in ¼ pound butter for 5 minutes. Cool the meat and spinach mixtures. Beat 3 of the eggs lightly and add ½ cup of the cheese. Mix with the meats and the ham. Beat the remaining 2 eggs with the remaining ½ cup cheese and stir into the spinach mixture. Season both mixtures with salt and pepper to taste.

Grease a large loaf pan, approximately 11" by 4½" by 2¾", and sprinkle the bread crumbs on the bottom.

Make the pastry: soften the remaining ¾ pound butter and combine with the sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, and ½ cup lukewarm water. Spoon the flour into a bowl, make a well in the center and pour in the butter mixture. Mix with a fork, adding a bit more water if necessary. Knead until the dough is smooth. Roll out the dough to a thickness of ⅛", and line the bottom and sides of the pan with pastry, reserving a scant ¼ for the top.

Spoon half the meat into the prepared pan and cover with half the spinach. Cut the pimiento into narrow strips and arrange it over the spinach. Cut off the ends of the hard-cooked eggs and lay them end-to-end down the center of the pan. Cover with the remaining spinach and then with the remaining meat. Cover with the reserved pastry and press the edges with a fork to seal. Brush the top of the pastry with the egg yolk mixed with water, and cut several air vents in the top. Bake in a preheated 350° oven for 45 minutes to 1 hour, or until the pastry is golden. Cool the torta before turning it out of the tin. Slice and serve cold as a first course or as a light luncheon entrée. Makes 16–24 servings.

Glazed Sweetbread Tarts

1 recipe Pastry #3
3 or 4 large veal bones
Salt, pepper to taste
2½ pounds sweetbreads
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons dry sherry
12 mushroom caps, fluted

Using pastry recipe, make and bake 12 tart shells. Simmer the veal bones in salted, boiling water to cover for 2 hours. Discard the bones and boil the stock over high heat until the liquid is reduced to 1½ cups.

Parboil the sweetbreads for 20 minutes in water and the lemon juice. Remove the sweetbreads, plunge them into ice-cold water and cool. Remove the membranes and any fibrous matter. Slice the sweetbreads ½" thick. Melt 4 tablespoons of the butter in a large, heavy pan. Sauté the sweetbreads until light brown on both sides. Add the reduced stock and sherry. Cook rapidly, basting constantly, until the sauce is reduced by a little more than half, and is syrupy. Add salt and pepper.

Meanwhile, in another pan, sauté the mushroom caps in the remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Place the tart shells on individual plates, divide the sweetbreads and sauce among them, and top each one with a fluted mushroom cap. Serve the tarts immediately as a first course. Makes 12 tarts.

FRUIT AND NUT

Pecanettes

¼ pound butter
3 ounces cream cheese
1 cup flour
¾ cup (packed) dark brown sugar
1 beaten egg
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup finely chopped pecans

Cut the butter and cheese into the flour with a pastry blender or 2 knives. Mix the ingredients with your hands or a fork until the dough holds together. Chill until firm enough to roll. Divide into 24 equal portions and roll each portion into a ball. Roll each ball into a circle large enough to line a small muffin tin. Mix the remaining ingredients and spoon into the pastry-lined muffin tins. Bake in a preheated 350° oven for ½ hour. Cool the tarts for a few minutes before removing them carefully from the tins and cooling them on a rack. Makes 24 small tarts.

Parisian Peach and Walnut Tart

⅔ cup plus 2 tablespoons flour
⅔ cup sugar
4 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk
1½ pounds peaches, peeled and sliced
3 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup ground walnuts
Confectioners' sugar

Place ⅔ cup flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, butter, and egg yolk in a bowl. Mix the ingredients with your hands until they form a smooth dough. Press the dough evenly over the bottom and sides of a 9½" pie plate. Bake in a preheated 375° oven for 15 minutes, or until pale gold. Cool the shell for 15 minutes.

Arrange the peaches in the pastry shell. Beat the remaining sugar with 1 whole egg and 2 egg yolks until thick and light. Beat in the vanilla, nuts, and remaining 2 tablespoons flour. Beat the 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry, fold into the batter, and pour over the peaches. Bake in a 350° oven for 1 hour. Cool and dust generously with confectioners' sugar. Makes 8 servings.

Grape Tarts

1⅓ cups flour
1¾ cups sugar
2 egg yolks
¼ pound butter, cut into pieces
⅓ cup ground walnuts
3 pounds seedless grapes, stemmed
¾ cup sieved apricot jam
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts

Put the flour, ¼ cup of the sugar, the egg yolks, and the butter into a mixing bowl. Work all the ingredients together until you have a smooth homogeneous dough. Divide the dough into 16 parts, and press each piece into a 2½" tart tin or muffin tin, so that the tin is completely lined. Press with the balls of your thumbs to keep shells of even thickness. Prick the dough well with a fork, and bake in a preheated 350° oven for 15 minutes, or until golden. Remove the shells from the tins as soon as possible, since they get crisp quickly and are fragile. Sprinkle the ground walnuts in each shell.

Combine 1½ cups water and the remaining 1½ cups sugar in a saucepan and bring the mixture to a boil. Add the grapes, and bring the liquid to a boil again. Drain and cool the fruit and set aside.

Shortly before serving time, mix the grapes with the jam, spoon into the baked shells, and sprinkle with chopped walnuts. (It is preferable, particularly in damp or humid weather, to do this at the last minute, so that the shells retain their crispness.) Makes 16 small tarts.

Meringued Applesauce Tart

¼ pound sweet butter, softened
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
½ teaspoon almond extract
½ teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups flour
2 cups thick applesauce
4 egg whites

Place the butter, ½ cup sugar, egg yolks, almond extract, vanilla, and flour in a bowl. Mix the ingredients with your hands until they form a smooth dough. Press the dough evenly over the bottom and ¾" up the sides of a 9" spring form pan or 10" pie plate. Bake in a preheated 350° oven for 35 minutes, or until the crust is golden. Remove from the oven and reduce the heat to 325°.

Spread the applesauce on the crust. Beat the egg whites until stiff. Add the remaining ½ cup sugar gradually, continuing to beat until the meringue is thick and glossy. Spread over the applesauce, making sure to seal the meringue to the pan to prevent its shrinking during baking. Bake the tart for 15–20 minutes, or until the meringue topping is flecked with brown. Makes 8–10 servings.

Macaroon Breakfast Tart

½ package granular yeast
¼ cup warm milk
1⅓ cups flour
⅓ cup butter, softened
2 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
4 almond macaroons, crumbled
2 tablespoons pearl sugar (available in food specialty shops)
2 tablespoons heavy cream

Dissolve the yeast in the warm milk. Add ⅓ cup of the flour, beat well, cover, and let stand in a warm place for 1½ hours. Add the butter, sugar, 1 of the eggs, salt, and remaining flour, and beat with a wooden spoon until the dough comes clean from the side of the bowl and the spoon. Cover and let rise in a warm place for 3 hours, or until almost tripled in bulk.

With floured fingers pat the dough on the bottom and sides of a buttered 9" pie plate. (The rim of dough should be fairly thin.) Beat the remaining egg, add the macaroons, pearl sugar, and cream, and spread over the surface of the dough. Bake in a preheated 350° oven for 25 minutes, or until the top is golden. Serve the baked tart warm or at room temperature. Makes 6–8 servings.

When is a dessert worthy to be a centerpiece? When it is as decorative and delectable as this fruit tart, a composition of black and green grapes arranged in alternating circles in a fluted pastry shell (baked in the two part tin, below). Other fruits (black and light red cherries, greengage and blue plums) would look just as effective.

Lemon Ice Box Tart

4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¾ cup sugar
5 egg yolks
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ cup lemon juice
1½ cups heavy cream

Beat the egg whites until foamy, add the cream of tartar and beat until the whites hold soft peaks. Gradually add 1 cup of the sugar, beating constantly until the meringue is thick and shiny. Spread the meringue over the bottom and sides of a well-buttered 9½" pie plate. Bake in a preheated 250° oven for 1 hour. Cool.

Combine the egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, lemon rind and juice in the top of a double boiler. Cook, stirring frequently, until thick. Cool. Whip the cream until stiff with the remaining ¼ cup sugar. Spread half the cream over the cooled meringue. Cover with the cooled custard, and top with the remaining cream. Refrigerate 24 hours. Serves 8.

Tortoni Tart

1 recipe Pastry #2
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
1⅔ cups heavy cream
⅓ cup confectioners' sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup almond macaroon crumbs
⅓ cup blanched almonds, finely chopped
Crystallized violets

Prepare pastry, roll it out and line a 9½" or 10" pie plate with it. Flute the rim and prick the bottom with a fork. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375°. Bake 7–10 minutes, or until golden. Cool completely.

Beat the egg whites until stiff. Gradually add the sugar and beat until thick and glossy. Beat the cream until thick, add the confectioners' sugar, vanilla, and almond extract, and beat until stiff. Fold in the macaroon crumbs, chopped almonds, and meringue. Freeze until the mixture starts to set around the edges, spoon into the cooled crust, decorate with crystallized violets, and replace in the freezer for 4 hours, or until firm. Remove from the freezer 5–10 minutes before serving. Makes 8–10 servings.

Minuscule Jam Tarts

½ cup plus 1 tablespoon sweet butter
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon pulverized ammonium carbonate (available in pharmacies)
½ cup thick jam

Cream the butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in the egg. Add the flour sifted with the ammonium carbonate and beat until the dough is smooth. Turn out onto a lightly floured pastry board and divide into 5 equal portions. Lightly roll each piece with the palms of your hands to a cylinder, 1" in diameter, and cut each cylinder into 10 pieces. Press each piece of dough into the bottom and sides of a 1½" fluted tart tin, and fill with ½ teaspoon jam. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes or until golden around the edges. Remove from tins and cool on a rack. Makes 50 tarts.

Ambrosial Tart

1¼ cups flour
¼ cup ground pecans
¼ cup salad oil (not olive oil)
2 tablespoons milk
1 cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
8-ounce can unsweetened pineapple chunks
Orange juice
2 eggs, lightly beaten
Grated rind of 1 orange
2 ounces grated coconut
1 cup pecans, coarsely chopped
1 banana, thinly sliced
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix 1 cup flour and the ground pecans in a bowl. Combine the oil and milk, stir into the flour mixture, and blend with your hands to make a smooth dough. Roll out the dough and line a 9½" pie plate with it. Bake in a preheated 375° oven for 15–20 minutes. Cool completely.

Combine the remaining ¼ cup flour, ¾ cup of the sugar, and the salt in a saucepan. Drain the canned pineapple and measure the juice. Add enough orange juice to make 1⅓ cups liquid and pour it into the saucepan. Cook the mixture, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from the heat, add the eggs, and cook again until the custard reaches the boiling point. Cool completely. Fold in the orange rind, coconut, chopped pecans, and drained pineapple chunks.

Arrange the banana slices in the tart shell and cover with the custard mixture. Beat the cream with the remaining sugar and the vanilla until stiff. Spread on top and chill until serving time. Makes 8 servings.

Italian Plum Tart

1 recipe pastry used in making Grape Tarts (page 257)

Chocolate Almond Tarts

⅓ pound ground almonds
⅔ cup sugar
6 tablespoons flour
3 egg whites
3 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
⅓ cup sweet butter
2 egg yolks
¼ cup slivered almonds, toasted

Mix the ground almonds, sugar, flour, and 1 of the egg whites. Work with your hands until the ingredients form a dough. Butter 24 3" fluted, oval tart tins, and dust them with flour. Roll out the dough on a lightly floured board until it is ⅛" thick. Line the tins with the dough and bake in a preheated 300° oven for 20–25 minutes, or until light brown. Cool for a few minutes before removing the tart shells from the tins. (It may be necessary to loosen the shells here and there from the tins using a fine knitting needle or skewer.)

Place the chocolate, confectioners' sugar, and 4 teaspoons hot water in the top of a double boiler over simmering water until the chocolate is melted. Turn mixture into the small bowl of an electric mixer, add the butter and egg yolks and beat for 15 minutes. Beat the remaining 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry, fold into the chocolate mixture and beat for an additional 15 minutes. Fill the tart shells, sprinkle with the toasted almonds and refrigerate for 24 hours before using. Makes 24 tartlets.

End a dinner party with a flourish by arranging a dessert "spectacle" on a serving cart. Tortoni Tart on a silver dish is flanked by epergnes bearing votive candles in ruby glass holders and fluted pastry shells heaped with berries to be sprinkled with kirsch, eaten with the tart.

Modern Maid and Gas give you outdoor flavor with indoor convenience in a Double Oven and Combo Grill®

Even the newest bride's a good cook with Modern Maid's new Gas built-ins. Separate burners and controls for each oven allow baking in both ovens at the same time. Or, if you prefer, you can broil or rotiss in the upper oven while baking in the lower. All at different temperatures, too! Broiling and rotissing are quicker, cleaner and tastier with exclusive Gas Infra-Ray®, the new radiant heat that gives meats outdoor flavor.

Gas programmed cooking lets you go shopping while the meal cooks and automatically turns down to lo-temp for keeping foods serving-hot. And for steaks with the flavor of all-outdoors, but no outdoor bother, you can have Modern Maid's Combo Grille® with permanent ceramic coals. See these new Modern Maids at your dealer or Gas company.

1943 (although not on the scale of the original), has salvaged two of the stone barns and a proportion of the vineyards, and continues to make the characteristic wine of the Haraszthy country. I have heard people say that they can taste in the wine the scent of the giant gum trees that to this day tower over the ivy-clad cellars and the little stream he called the Vinebrook.

The present-day Buena Vista cellars are known for a full range of white, red, and rosé wines. Their Johannisberger Riesling, in particular, and red Burgundy are characteristic and good. They are proud of their very dry Gewürztraminer, and also make a pleasant dry rosé which they name after the stream in front of the cellar door.

Sonoma is also the home of one of the best of California's Italian wineries—Samuele Sebastiani. Sebastiani's business is on a much larger scale than the little Buena Vista's, but the methods, by and large, are much the same: it is still a matter of wood and time. The greater part of the winery is given to a thick redwood forest of maturing vats, rising from a shining wet concrete floor. Watering the floor keeps the air cool by evaporation on the hottest days and helps to maintain the special cellar temperature, the perfect atmosphere for the aging of table wines.

Sebastiani makes a range of wines similar to the other wineries of the district, but specializes in one or two different varietals. His Green Hungarian, for example, is a very fresh young white. His purple, full, and slightly sharp, very characteristic Barbera is a better wine than the one made in its native Italy.

Sonoma county reaches to the Pacific on the west and 70 miles to the north. Not all of this, apart from the Sonoma valley (Jack London named it the Valley of the Moon, and his ranch house is still to be seen there), is wine country. It is famous for orchards, and used to be famous for eggs. Petaluma, the "World's Egg Basket," lies on the road north through the county. At one point, just where the landscape seems to have settled down to the northern California redwoods for good, vineyards unexpectedly reappear. Near Rio Nido on the Russian River is perhaps the most exotic of all California wineries: Korbel's logging-camp-turned-champagne-cellar.

The Korbel family arrived in the region when it was one great virgin redwood forest, to do the only thing possible for a livelihood: fell the trees. Once those were felled, the settlers had to think of something else to do. In a particularly bold gesture—considering there are no other vineyards in the area, which [illegible] from very high rainfall a[nd] quent floods—the Korbels [a]re vines among the cottag[e] stumps of the great trees, d[o] about making sparkling wi[ne] brandy. In their field they ha[ve] with greater success than g[ro] in likelier-looking spots. I, f[or] would pick out their Brut [a]s pagne as the best California[-m] kling wine made today.

Korbel's is an out-of-th[e-]winery to visit. It would fit[in] naturally into a tour up to th[e] wood country, or a visit to t[he] Russian settlement (henc[e] name of the river) of Fort[ro]s on the coast.

The Napa valley

The busiest, most beautiful [and] most famous wine region of [Cali]fornia is the Napa valley. It [runs] north from the north end of [San] Francisco Bay, from the tow[n of] Napa up to Calistoga, narro[w] as it goes along from a broad, [flat] rimmed plain to a green cle[ft] wooded uplands. Two roads ru[n] most parallel up the valley, sl[ow]converging: the broad, busi[ness] like Highway 29 and the roma[ntic] old wagon road, the Silve[rado] Trail.

The wineries cluster m[ost] thickly here than anywhere els[e in] California. The half-dozen big [ones] of the valley—The Christian Br[oth]ers, Beaulieu Vineyard, Cha[teau] Krug, Beringer Bros., Louis [M.] Martini, and Inglenook Viney[ard] Co.—all stand within a few m[iles] of each other. Their barrack-l[ike] buildings, half-hidden by trees, [are] almost the only interruption in [the] great lake of vineyard which la[ps] around the valley walls.

In the side valleys and in t[he] hills are other vineyards, many [of] them belonging to smaller winer[ies] that concentrate entirely on wi[ne] of the highest categories. They ri[se] in forest clearings, on old pastu[re] or bare mountainside, to the ve[ry] crests of the ridges. The Joe He[ss] Cellars, Stony Hill, Souverain Ce[l]lars, Schramsberg, some of th[e] Louis Martini vineyards, and th[e] Mayacamas winery are all in th[e] hills. Of these wineries Robe[rt] Louis Stevenson wrote: "Clos[e] around each oasis ran the tangle[d] wood; the glen enfolds them; ther[e] they lie basking in sun and silence[,] concealed from all but the sun an[d] the mountain birds."

From the visitor's point o[f] view it is hard to pick out any pa[r]ticular winery; they are all sim[i]lar, yet different; the same in e[s]sentials, different in their empha[s]sis. The Christian Brothers ca[n] show you the largest stone winer[y] building in the world; Inglenoo[k] a fine paneled tasting-room; Beau[lieu]

The Napa valley wineries all alize in table wines, and sevof them, notably Hanns Kor-ling wine. Napa's highest ation is for red wine. Algh there are other California ns which produce comparavhites, none can surpass the Cabernet Sauvignon and t Noir. For light luncheon that needs little or no maturthe red Zinfandel —the most ly grown of all California e varieties—is also at its best ie Napa valley.

It is possible, at a number of a wineries, to taste different ages of their finest varietal es. It used to be the semi-offipolicy of the California wins to play down the fact that ages vary; to claim that, un-Europe, California produces ally good wine year after year.
ether or not the wines of one r and the next are equally good of course, a matter of opinion l taste. But there is no denying t they are different.

Nearly all the finest wineries w put the vintage year on the bel of their best varietals, espelly Cabernet Sauvignon and not Noir. They try to keep these nes for several years in bottle fore distributing them, but deand catches up with supply very pidly: the greater part of the abernet Sauvignon, in particu-
r, has to be put on the market fore it is ready to drink. In Euope this is the time-honored pracce for all wines. Traditionally the onsumer buys the young wines nd matures them himself. In the
J. S., however, the goods are exected to be ready to consume the noment they are bought.

As a general rule, a good Cab-rnet Sauvignon is unlikely to be t its best for at least five or six years, and Pinot Noir for four or ive. Both are likely to go on improving for another five years after that, at least. The '63s that are being offered now, therefore, are still unready to drink. As yet, very few wineries have found the answer to this problem. Louis Martini keeps his reds longest before issuing them. Most of the other wine growers are resigned to seeing immature wine being drunk. The reputation of California wines would be greater than it is if only the American wine merchant—and wine drinker—would appreciate the need to allow these wines to reach their peak of perfection before drinking them. While you are limited to the stock of your local liquor store, there is rarely a chance to try older and younger wines side by side. But in the wineries, where older wines are often available, you can taste for yourself the difference aging makes.

Another opportunity that only a visit to the wine-growing area can provide is that of tasting the wines of the small wineries which have limited distribution, mostly local around San Francisco. The specialties of such wineries as Heitz, Souverain, and Mayacamas have to be picked up on the spot or not at all. The finest of all California's varietal wines—Cabernet Sauvignon and Pinot Noir for reds, and Johannisberger Riesling and Pinot Chardonnay for whites—are the varieties to concentrate on.

The Livermore valley

The Livermore valley is in total contrast to the green hills of Napa.
Livermore is the easternmost, the farthest inland, of the fine wine-producing townships. It lies 20 miles east of the Bay, forming a broad plateau that stretches for miles without a dip or rise. Wineries are few and new housing subdivisions all too common. The land is sparse, gravelly, unfertile-looking. Rainfall is low, and constant irrigation is necessary. The wizened old vines spend half the year looking as though nothing good could ever come out of them; then suddenly, as the summer advances, the gray-brown is covered with green leaves, and huge golden bunches press close to the barren looking ground. For quality, particularly in white wines, the Liver-more valley is a vital contributor to California's reputation.

The three chief wineries of the Livermore valley all date back to the 1880s. Cresta Blanca, now the property of Schenley, is marginally the oldest. The Concannon winery is about a year or two younger. Wente Bros., perhaps the most famous winery of Livermore, has just torn down its old buildings and put up a massive concrete structure in a mood of expansion that is good to see. Ernest Wente, one of the three sons of the founder, has been making wine in Liver-more for fifty years, but he does not hesitate to adopt new techniques, rebuild, replant, or do whatever else is necessary to continue and improve the supply of fine wine. It is accepted practice, for example, to have the fermenting vats at a winery inside the building. Wente has just built a

DOWN WITH TIMID SANDWICHES!

Read this shocking exposé that reveals the truth about the Common American Sandwich, tells how to protect your family's eating enthusiasm with the exciting flavor of Mister Mustard!

At last it can be told! "The Bold Sandwich", suppressed for years by namby-pamby tastes and unimaginative appetites, is now available to everyone.

This hard-hitting booklet lays bare the facts about the insidious Blandwich, the no-character sandwich that is bringing the American public to its culinary knees.

"The Bold Sandwich" unmasks ordinary mustard for the whole world to see. It shows how MISTER MUSTARD is replacing ordinary mustard in kitchens across the nation, so exciting is its Dijon taste.

But this searching work doesn't stop there. It goes on to describe in vivid detail NEW sandwich discoveries from around the world. Like the "Tower of Pizza" from Italy, or the "Copenhagen Canape" from Denmark. And many more, all made with the dazzling Dijon flavor of Mister Mustard.

Get your copy of "The Bold Sandwich" absolutely free, by sending in the coupon. Life's too short to put up with ordinary mustard and Blandwiches any longer.

shiny new battery of them out in the open. "Why not?" asks the old man as he thumps a cool, silvery cylinder—the space-age version of the grand old redwood vats of the Napa valley. This is the eclecticism, the readiness to innovate, which marks the great wineries of California.

Two white grapes in particular yield some of their finest wine at Livermore: the Pinot Chardonnay, soft, with the savory, almost dank taste of white Burgundy; and the Sauvignon Blanc, the firmer, drier, more astringent but fuller-flavored equivalent of white Bordeaux. The Wente Bros., versions of these two rank high among California's very best white wines. They have the advantage of being widely distributed, and also of needing no further aging: they leave the winery perfectly mature.

Red wines have never been the specialty of the Livermore valley, but the wineries produce a wide range. A particularly interesting one which visitors should take the opportunity of tasting is Concannon's Petite Sirah, made from the grape of the Rhône valley. It succeeds better than some of the better-known varieties in the dry inland climate, and gives a fine, dry, strong-flavored wine.

South of the Bay

The vineyards of Santa Clara county, immediately south of San Francisco Bay, go back as far in history as those of the northern valleys, but their land has been under pressure for housing for a longer time, with the result that they have had to shift their vineyards, while their wineries are well and truly in the suburbs.

Two of the biggest and most widely known premium-wine companies of California, Paul Masson and Almadén, have their main wineries within a few miles of each other in Santa Clara county. Paul Masson at Saratoga and Almadén at Los Gatos differ from each other, however, in practically everything but this. Paul Masson's older vineyards are high in the Santa Cruz mountains to the northwest; Almadén's newest stretch down to Paicines in San Benito county to the southeast. Paul Masson's winery is modern, extrovert, demonstrative—it looks like a pavilion at a World's Fair; Almadén's has the air of a lovely and rather eccentric country house.

The heart of the Almadén winery is the old, white, verandahed villa of the Benoist family, the proprietors, surrounded by a beautiful garden. To see the bigger and newer extension of Almadén you must drive on south down U. S. 101. Given a week (leaving out Sunday, when the big wineries are usually so crowded with visitors that intelligent talk or tasting is impossible), I would plan an itinerary something like this:

First day: To Sonoma over the Golden Gate Bridge. Visit the Buena Vista and Sebastiani wineries, the town, and the mission. Drive north through the Valley of the Moon, then west through Santa Rosa to the Korbel winery at Guerneville. East through the hills to Calistoga in the Napa valley for the night. Pacheteau's Motel is comfortable and provides all the joys of a thermal resort.

Second day: Exploring the upper Napa valley, the little win-

Corned Beef and Egg Tart

Pastry for 8" pie shell
1-pound can corned beef
4 eggs

Prepare the pastry, roll it out to a circle 9" in diameter, and fit it into an 8" pie plate. Flute the rim and prick the surface with a fork. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for 15 minutes, or until light golden. Meanwhile, fry the corned beef until it begins to brown. Spread the corned beef in the partially baked shell and make 4 evenly spaced depressions in the hash, each large enough to hold 1 egg. Break the eggs carefully in the depressions and bake about 15 minutes longer, or until the whites are just set. Serves 2–4.

eries Stevenson loved. Heitz, Stony Hill, Schramsberg, Souverain are in this area, but call ahead to make sure they will be open to visitors. Perfect country for a picnic lunch with a bottle of wine. Night at Calistoga.

Third day: Down the Napa valley, taking in two or more of the larger wineries and picking up some of the fine reds. Possibly sidetracking up Mount Veeder to the west to visit the Mayacamas vineyards on their mountain top. Through Napa and back to San Francisco via Oakland and the Bay Bridge. For one of the best cellars of California wine, dine at Trader Vic's.

Fourth day: To Livermore over the Bay Bridge, south down Nimitz Freeway, and turn left at San Lorenzo. Visit Wente Bros., and Concannon wineries; don't leave without a few bottles of Sauvignon Blanc or Pinot Chardonnay. Back to San Francisco the pretty way via Sunol and Niles.

Fifth day: To Paul Masson's winery at Saratoga, and (by appointment only) the exclusive small winery of Martin Ray on Mount Eden nearby. If there is time, to Los Gatos to visit the Novitiate of Los Gatos—particularly if you missed The Christian Brothers winery in the Napa valley. The connection between wine and the Church is a strong tradition; it is interesting to see it in action. Night at Los Gatos or San José, five miles north.

Sixth day: Almadén at Los Gatos, Cienega, and Paicines, with a fascinating pause at San Juan Bautista, where the mission, livery stables, old hotel, and houses are perfectly preserved; one of the best glimpses of old California in the state.

The ingredients of the tour can, of course, be kaleidoscoped any way you like. If it has to be a one-day affair, there is no doubt that the Napa valley would be the place to go. If you have more time, and want to study the wineries in depth, it would be worth discussing your trip with the Wine Institute, 717 Market Street, San Francisco. It is a good idea, in any case, to pick up some of their literature which describes the exact whereabouts of each winery and gives its opening times. Most are open every day from about 10 to 5.

By the end of a few days you will feel that you have real grounds for the comparison of wines, and—better still—that you have found some new favorites to serve at home. If there is a California wine you want but cannot find locally, there is every reason to ask your wine and liquor store owner to order it. You will probably be enlarging his experience of California wine, and certainly adding to the range which is there for your neighbors to try. It is still largely true that some of California's finest wines stay in California. Surely it is up to wine-lovers all over the country to remedy this.

fee for the planning which they absorb in the total cost of the kitchen if they are engaged to complete the job. Many firms, however, do not charge any fee for the planning and preliminary sketches. "At present," says one knowledgeable planner, "it is not the norm for kitchen dealers to charge a fee for planning in spite of the fact that they spend a great deal of time on it. But more and more, the planning fee is becoming accepted practice."

The most common procedure is for the dealer or independent planner to submit an estimate for the completed kitchen, just as a contractor submits an estimate for a house. Prices for components and work of equal quality usually do not vary much within a given area. In any case, a difference of one or two hundred dollars on a $4.000 job should not be crucial in anyone's decision. But if two estimates are as much as $400 or $500 apart, it would be well to treat the disparity as a warning signal. Does it mean a difference in quality, a misunderstanding on exactly what the job includes, or something else?

If both estimates are way beyond what you had expected, there may be other explanations. As one member of a well-established kitchen-planning firm points out: "The client may find she's in a higher price range than she intended because the professional planner, like an architect or decorator, brings to her attention what she wants and must have but hadn't thought of." Another says that a client frequently does not realize the difference between the advertised price of a built-in oven, say, and the total cost of a functioning oven in his own house. At the showroom a salesman can give only a general estimate of installation costs. In your house, the expert may find that proper venting will involve far more labor and materials than is necessary in what is known as an "average" location.

Once the plan and the price for the kitchen are agreed on, payment is usually made in three installments: 30 per cent on signing the contract, 50 per cent during the early stages of installation, and 20 per cent upon completion. If the job is being financed by a bank loan or by extending the mortgage (as it can be), other arrangements may be worked out.

How to choose a kitchen planner

The search for a kitchen planner is not one to go about blindly. The more informed you are about kitchens in general and your own needs in particular, the more confidence you will have in your selection of —and, later, in your dealings w —a qualified firm or individual.

The usual basic training c sists, of course, in reading kitch planning booklets and clipp ideas from magazines. Along w this homework, you might s some general guidance from e home economist of your pul utility company or Department Agriculture extension service. S will help you (normally with charge) to sort out the practi from the dream, to relate y needs and likes to the money a space you have to work wi ("Some people want everything 10 by 12 feet," says an awed pla ner. "It's phenomenal what th think can be squeezed in.")

Make a point, also, of goi to see the kitchens on house to and in model houses and apa ments. And decide in advance look at several kitchen showroom Once you become aware of t amazing range of components, a cessories, and gadgets availab you are less likely to be carri away, as one couple was by t cabinet fittings in the first sho room they happened upon. Ineb ated by gadgetry, they decid then and there that the man that showroom was the planner f them. Too late they found out th one clever display doesn't make professional planner, nor do acce sories make a kitchen. Desig comes first, fittings last.

The best lead in your searc for a conscientious planner is, course, an enthusiastic recommen dation from someone you know. It would be wise, however, to aim fo several opinions. And to find ou the company's reputation, its sta bility in the community, and s forth, check such sources as th Better Business Bureau and Cham ber of Commerce.

As you narrow down the can didates, ask them to let you se jobs they have completed. A kitch en planner may show you colored slides of actual kitchens, or giv you names of clients to call. Whe looking at these kitchens, however immune yourself to color or style biases by keeping firmly in mind that one family's taste may be fa different from yours. Try to judge only the imagination and workmanship that went into the project.

Before you settle on any one company, be sure to ask questions:

Has the firm completed any big jobs? If you are planning an extensive remodeling project, you will want someone who already knows how to handle the myriad ramifications involved.

Is the firm equipped to do decorating work? If you do not have a decorator or detailed ideas instant beauty!

(just add wallpaper)

If your room wore nothing but wallpaper, it could be complete in its beauty. But go ahead—add furniture. Wallpaper helps you make the most of whatever you have. Walls account for the largest single area of any room. Decorate them effectively, yet inexpensively—the sure way...the modern wallpaper way. Only wallpaper gives you color, pattern, texture and design...all at once. It can help make a room seem whatever you, as the decorator, want. Wallpaper is instant beauty...the kind that lasts. of your own, the answer to this should be determined early so you can act accordingly. Some firms go into decorating quite extensively; others make basic suggestions or work with your own decorator.

Will you be restricted in your choice of appliances? Some companies install only the makes they sell; others recommend and install whatever you choose. One-stop shopping has its pros and cons; consider them well.

If the company sells appliances, does it expect you to call servicemen when a problem arises—or will it take on the responsibility of calling—and needling—them for you?

Don't hesitate to ask questions, also, about the construction of the cabinets. "We want to educate the client as we go along," says one practical planner, "so that she knows what to look for and how to evaluate different estimates."

Preliminary discussions

When you have finished your sleuthing, the kitchen planner you have decided on will have his turn. Expect him to ask questions like these: How many eat in the kitchen? Which meals? Do you like to cook? Have you any domestic help? Regularly or just for parties? How do you like to entertain? Is the storage you have now enough for all your dishes, glasses, etc.? Even: Do you plan to have more children?

When the planner visits your home to measure the kitchen, he will probably want to see the living and dining areas, to get an idea of your decorating preferences. He will ask what ideas you have collected, and what are your concepts of your needs. Just be sure he listens. From all reports, it is during this stage, when ideas are transmitted verbally, that trouble sometimes brews between client and planner.

Kitchen planners claim the most-difficult-to-work-for clients are those who make impulsive decisions (and regret them later); those who are vague or indecisive (they prolong the job); and the homemaker who says, "I know just what I want," stubbornly sticking to her plan, as the professional planner spends valuable time explaining why it cannot be done that way, seasoning his discourse with his favorite saying, "Please, leave the details to me."

Says one woman who has been through several aggravations and arguments of this ilk: "I was so mad! He argued with me about everything I wanted. Even the colors."

In a situation like that, should you be adamant or flexible?

Perhaps the best thing to do is calm. And reasonable.

Find out exactly why the planner claims the job cannot be done as you expected, why you cannot get that model, why he is so against that floor pattern. Certainly he should give a better reason than not having the particular item on hand.

Stand up for your likes. If, for instance, do not get talked into ordering cabinets for every wall in the kitchen when you know you prefer open shelves for certain areas. But recognize, too, that part of a kitchen planner's job is to push a little if a client's ideas are not forward-looking enough, or to put on the brakes if they seem too far out. If you insist you want this or that, you will probably get it. But perhaps you could get something better.

"We don't want to force anything on a client," says one planner. "If a certain plan or color is contrary to what she wants, it may affect her use of the kitchen. But we'll pressure her to change her mind if we feel certain she doesn't fully appreciate the situation." The more information he gets from the client about her likes and needs and those of her family, he claims the more sincerely he can say "Leave the details to me."

How to look at the sketch

When clients see the first sketches they are apt to react in one of two ways. They rave enthusiastically—or angrily. The enthusiasts usually overlook the fact that a talented draftsman can make almost any plan look good on paper. The ranters fail to realize that first sketches are often feelers. The planner expects to consult, to discuss, and to revise the plan to some extent. So, do not decide at first glance that his translation of your ideas is all right or all wrong. Study the plan to decide if it is workable for you. Analyze the steps you would take in that kitchen to bake a cake, say. Visualize yourself getting eggs from the refrigerator there, a bowl from the cupboard here, and so forth. And think hard about the maintenance that particular kitchen will demand. What about those louvered doors? Will you mind dusting them?

If the planner can not seem to resolve the problems to your satisfaction, or if his work lacks imagination, look for another planner. Time consuming as it may be, go back to the square marked "Investigate," and start over again.

Before signing any contract, be sure to find out exactly what it des. If you are remodeling an kitchen, does the price cover ng out the old equipment? it could cost more than the installations.) And who will esponsible for carting away ripped-out tiles?

Above all, ask how long the will take. How much hot-plate g will you be in for? A de- er who plots his installation on charts worthy of an army stics specialist estimates, for mple L-shaped kitchen, one eless night, four or five days nconvenience, a total of a week n days for actual completion, for an extensively remodeled hen, about 3½ to 4 weeks.

But since so much goes on all nce when a kitchen is being alled, it is always possible for unexpected to turn up, or the ected not to. A friendly work- n, saying good-bye, drops a tool he countertop and mars it. Or, r the dishwasher is installed in brightly lighted location, the r is seen to be unmistakably a de off in color. Patience and itude. Replacements take time. you chose a reputable planner to begin with, he is trying to get that new door, for his reputation is at stake on every job.

When the end is in sight, take time out from exultation to learn the correct maintenance procedures for your new kitchen. Any planner can cite examples of poor practices that cause breakdowns in appliances, materials, homemaker, and planner, and lead to unwarranted criticism of the last. Ask the planner how to clean counter surfaces, etc. Arrange for a home economist on the staff of the appliance manufacturer or your local utility company to demonstrate your new appliances after they are installed.

The kitchen is almost certainly the most expensive room in your house. And its design and organization demands more thinking and time and patience on your part than any other room. But it is also likely to be the most used, the one most closely associated with family life. Because of its hidden satisfactions as well as its real ones, having a great kitchen should, in the long run, be worth the most expert advice you can get.

Take the mirror-and-console ensemble, or the cabinets, for example: the graceful curves say, "French"... the hefty outlines bespeak an English manor house... the crude yet sophisticated details-in-relief suggest Italian carving... the simplicity of form is akin to Early American... the warm, distressed finish reminds us of provincial Spanish. Yet "Country" is not a polyglot style; it has blended all these influences into a decorative unity all its own. Not merely fashionable, Syroco's "Country Collection" serves many a useful storage and display function. The people who built your dishwasher * recommend that you use something besides a detergent to prevent water spots.

They recommend:

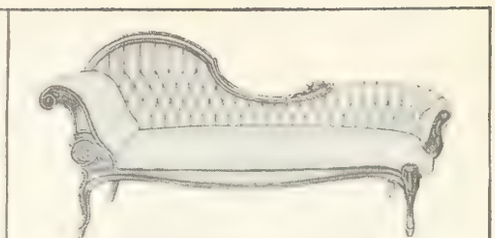
LIQUID JET-DRY.

for dishwashers with automatic dispensers for JET-DRY

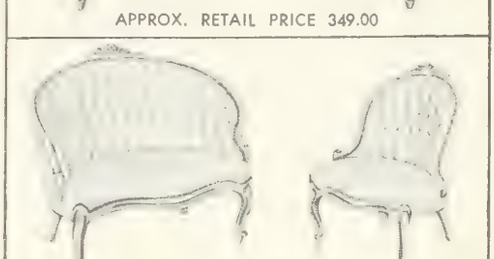
LIQUID JET-DRY causes glasses, silverware and china to shed water instantly after they are rinsed. No water drops are left on the dishes to dry into unsightly water spots. Dishwasher manufacturers, recognizing JET-DRY as the answer to water spotting, equip many models to inject LIQUID JET-DRY into the rinse water. If your dishwasher is so equipped, don't run out of JET-DRY. Even one dishwashing without JET-DRY can cause spots.

SOLID JET-DRY.

for dishwashers without dispensers for JET-DRY



SOLID JET DRY is now available for dishwashers not equipped to dispense LIQUID JET-DRY. It dries dishes just as spot-free and sparkling (and just as automatically) as LIQUID JET-DRY does in dishwashers equipped with automatic dispensers. SOLID JET-DRY comes in the form of a bar which is neatly encased in a plastic basket. You simply clip the basket to any corner of the upper rack of your dishwasher. Remember to buy JET-DRY. At grocery stores and dishwasher dealers.



* JET-DRY is recommended by the manufacturers of all 28 makes of dishwashers

The care and safekeeping of UPHOLSTERY

new and improved weaving techniques, better man-made fibers, he widespread use of protective fabric finishes, the care and main- ce of upholstery is a lot simpler than it once was. Despite this, how- there is no substitute for regular care at home and the services of ognized, reliable professional cleaner.

The right weave for the right piece sense, good maintenance begins with selecting the right type of lstery fabric in the first place. When you are choosing the material pholstered furniture, keep in mind the kind of use the piece will While today light colors and patterns can be practical—even on iture for a family room—shaggy textured material will soil faster, use of its nap, than smooth tight weaves.

Protective finishes

orking knowledge of the new protective finishes is also helpful when ting upholstery fabric. Many fabrics come already treated with a ective finish such as Scotchgard, Zepel, or Syl-mer. But, for an addi- al charge, you can have any fabric treated with a protective finish finisher. Some department and furniture stores will apply the pro- ive finish themselves so that you do not have to wait for a treated e to go to the finisher. The makers of Scotchgard, for instance, license es to use their process, train store personnel to apply the finish, and ntain a constant check on the quality of the work. Scotchgard stain ellent is also available in a spray can, so you can apply it yourself.

Wherever or whenever these finishes are applied, they will not nge the appearance or feel of the fabric. When sprayed on uphol- ed furniture, they are not injurious to wood finishes or cushioning terials. are non-toxic, and last through many shampoos and dry clean- s, provided the fabric (if washable) is thoroughly rinsed so soap or ergent does not mask the finish.

Do not, however, expect protective finishes to be impervious to all l and stain. They are resistant, which means they do not absorb soil, sequently it can be more easily removed. Waterborne or oily spills, instance, will "sit" on the surface of the fabric and may be blotted ay. If they leave a spot, a good dry-cleaning fluid will remove it with- t a telltale ring. If a stain has been forced between the fibers by a well- aning person's rubbing the original spill instead of blotting it up th clean tissues or a clean soft cloth, the stain can usually be "floated" the surface with a dry-cleaning agent or water, then removed by the otting process.

Scotchgard and Zepel are resistant to both waterborne and oil- rne soil, Syl-mer to waterborne only. Scotchgard is also claimed to a protection against soil due to soot, but the manufacturers of the her processes recommend coping with soot by regular brushing and cuum cleaning.

Regular care

ny upholstered furniture will keep its looks longer if normal air- orne dirt is not allowed to collect and linger on the surface of the abric or become deeply embedded in the crevices. Regular cleaning with whisk broom or vacuum cleaner brush attachment gives far better esults than infrequent intensive cleaning. Remove and vacuum the ushions (but not down-filled cushions unless you know for sure they are overed with down-proof ticking). Pay special attention to the body of a chair, including the outside back. Keep a sharp eye out for sticky inger marks, oil stains, food spills. When the furniture is thoroughly

e are a few upholstery cleaning tips which are easy and safe al tbrics:

A rbent powders (cornstarch, fuller's earth, French chalk) rem fresh grease spots. Apply fairly thickly, leaving on for several h s, then brush off.

D cleaning fluids remove greasy soil. Always use in a well-v ilated room, and read directions on the label first. But never u a dry cleaner on furniture padded with foam rubber as it will s n and destroy the rubber. Use foamy or liquid upholstery clean-e nstead.

I ergent-and-water solutions remove many food spills.

fore cleaning any upholstered piece, however, it is imperative te the fabric for colorfastness first. Select an inconspicuous spot—d he skirt or deep in the corner—to be sure that you won't lift the o ff. Man-made fibers respond to commercial cleaners and spot rev , but the colors may dull, so try out any cleaning agent on a hid-n rtion first, letting the test spot dry thoroughly to see how the clean-a cts the color before attacking the real problem. Probably the r error is the use of an ammonia solution to clean upholstery—this a ts to "furniture-cide" as ammonia will remove color faster than y her agent.

nmediate action is of course desirable on spots caused by foods ky fingers. These stains can often be removed with a solution of e art mild detergent (or commercial furniture shampoo) to four a of warm water. Apply the solution sparingly, using clean cloth and o ng from the outside of the stain toward the center, to avoid spread-g Rinse carefully with a "dry-wet" sponge or clean cloth—over-wet-n s the biggest hazard in home spot removal or home shampooing.
l speed is essential in combating stains, overzealous wetting and a ng stains on upholstery—with or without protective finishes—is ft more disastrous than the original stain. Some trimmings on upo ered furniture are glued on and excessive dampness will remove a , or shrink the fabric.

Home upholstery cleaning and shampooing kits are many, and most f em are good products from reliable manufacturers, including manua rers of furniture or home appliances. But whatever brand you use, e re that you study all the steps before starting. Shortcuts or substitu-i for any of the procedure just won't work.

Professional care

E before an upholstered piece begins to show soil—that slightly g look which indicates that despite regular care airborne soil is beg ing to come through the fibers—a good professional job is in order.
S , back, armrests, and the front of the furniture are prime targets as t get the most wear.

When it comes to professional cleaning, the best cleaner in town is t only sensible choice. If you don't already know of a reputable firm.
l in the yellow pages of the telephone directory. Another good source (nformation is the retail store where you purchased the upholstered f niture.

Cleaning services that operate on a national basis are also listed in yellow pages. These firms do their work on location—i.e., in your se—and are equipped to handle an entire house in a short space time, sometimes a single day. A regular schedule of professional aning for upholstered furniture pays off in the long run.

"We make our home more livable... with controlled humidity."

Dry winter air robs moisture from everything in the home. Furniture dries and shrinks. Carpets and drapes get brittle and wear out. Even our bodies evaporate more moisture so that we feel chilly and uncomfortable. And, when we feel chilly, we require higher temperatures to keep warm.

You not only save on household furnishings, you cut your fuel costs, too, when you install a stainless steel Skuttle humidifier. It gives you controlled humidity . . . automatically . . . for more comfortable living all during the heating season.

Timeless traditions for windows

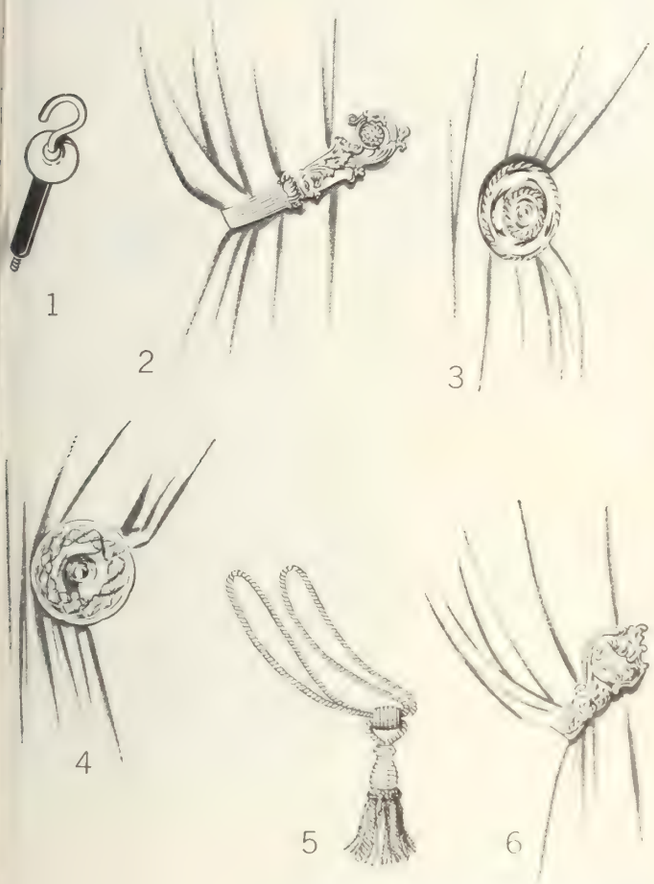
CURTAIN TIEBACKS

In the fashionable rooms of seventeenth-century France, hea curtains were often held to one side with elaborate metal ho backs to let air and sun into the room. When light fabrics such muslin and silk taffeta began to be used, lighter tiebacks we adopted: cords with tassels, or bands of the curtain material st ened to hold their shape. The English, meanwhile, draped curtai over a metal rod which was attached to the wall and finished w a decorative metal rosette. Similar rosettes in glass or porcela came from Venice. Today we still use all these varieties of curta holders. You can find modern designs or reproductions of antiqu in metal, glass, ceramic, and cording, or make fabric tieback

At Rosedown: formal cord tiebacks

In the music room of the romantic restoration in Louisiana, heavy cord with a double tassel holds back the serge-like wool draperies lined with the silk used for the shaped valance. Curtain is trimmed with the cord, the valance with more tassels.

At Blair House: antique brass rosettes



In the Lincoln Bedroom at Blair House, the nation's guest house for visiting dignitaries, old textured brass rosettes on rods that fasten to the window frame hold back the pongee curtains.

n a contemporary bedroom: self tiebacks

Simple red-bound white cotton twill curtains at a bay window are tied back by bands of the twill shaped a bit wider at the curtains' inside edge and lined with buckram to hold their shape.

DELTA FAUCET COMPANY GREENSBURG, INDIANA

DIVISION OF MASCO CORPORATION

"It's often that way," Mrs. Johnson says. "Sometimes I feel the White House is one big, pulsating seminar."

Evenings, too, are essentially working periods for the Johnsons, since groups of guests are most often composed of Representatives, Senators, or people intimately connected with the White House, like newsman William S. White or Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas. The President does not get back from the West Wing until nearly nine and again he is apt to bring whomever he happens to be working with back to the second floor for dinner. After dinner, the women do not separate from the men, as they do sometimes at Washington parties, and the conversation in the West Sitting-Hall (used only when there are fewer than eight guests) is apt to be an extension of whatever happens to be on the President's mind—usually something to do with the day's headlines. Those who have been present say this is the ideal time to see the President and Mrs. Johnson, for there is as much banter as there is serious discussion, and all of it straight from the hip and the heart.

When there are mostly men for dinner, or when Mrs. Johnson's presence is not necessary, she goes to bed and reads, sometimes late into the morning hours, for she is addicted to reading. Poetry is among her special favorites, but anyone who knows her even as slightly as I do is always astonished at her familiarity with the literary world in general. She treasures greedily these rare evenings which are almost her only moments off from the job.

This style of life is obviously quite different from Mrs. Kennedy's. Like many somewhat shy women, Mrs. Kennedy thought of the family rooms of the White House as a retreat for herself and her husband, a place in which to forget, as much as possible, the exigencies of the presidency.

"When you went there to a small dinner, you saw only close friends, almost never people who worked at the White House," recalls an intimate who was frequently summoned at the last minute to join the Kennedys for the evening (last-minute invitations are a presidential foible, it appears). "There would always be a lovely well-dressed woman or two who couldn't have named three Senators, let alone their states. The idea was to get the talk off things like politics. Sometimes you'd even watch a movie after dinner."

The Oval Sitting Room [see pages 198-201], so breathtaking

ellow-and-gold that stepping it is like taking a deep breath istilled sunshine, remains the e as in the Kennedys' day ex- for Mrs. Johnson's collections hinese export and Lowestoft es and Doughty birds, which replaced some Kennedy leath- ound volumes on the shelves ne corner alcoves.

The West Sitting-Hall which nsidered as private as the bed- ns, contains the Johnsons' pbooks, photograph albums, family mementos as well as r own library. But even here, furniture, although reupholed with fabrics in Mrs. John- s favorite greens, corals, and ows, is arranged much as it was r Mrs. Kennedy's renovations e completed.

According to Curator Ketch- the man who watches over all . Mrs. Johnson's most impor- t addition to the second floor been the acquisition of several standing American paintings, ee of which, by Thomas Sully, nslow Homer, and Mary Cassatt, ng in the West Sitting-Hall. henever Mrs. Johnson has three nutes, she is always visiting a lery," he says. "She has been very diligent in acquiring the work of first-rate American artists."

A trip through the second floor with Mr. Ketchum, who came to the White House in 1961 from the Custis Lee mansion and was deeply involved with the redecoration, is like a walking trip through American history. He knows the background of every teacup as well as a Daughter of the American Revolution knows the origin of her ancestors, and he has a delightful combination of erudition and humor.

"I love this room best of any in the White House," he says of the Oval Room, "because of all the things that have happened in it. The furniture is Louis XVI, because that was Thomas Jefferson's period—he used to play the violin in here. Mrs. Kennedy chose yellow, because that's what it was in Dolley Madison's day. The room is full of history. It is where the world's heads of state have been received by the President and the First Lady since the time of John and Abigail Adams. It is where Woodrow Wilson courted Edith Galt and where Franklin D. Roosevelt held many of his wartime meetings with Winston Churchill. It was in the easier homelike atmosphere of this room that President Johnson settled last year's railroad strike after moving the negotiations from the sterner setting of the West Wing."

Mr. Ketchum's enthusiasm is contagious. "My favorite thought about this room," he says, standing next to the bed in the Lincoln Room [page 206], near an original copy of the Gettysburg Address, "has to do with Winston Churchill when he came to visit President Roosevelt after England was already fighting World War II. He was assigned to the Lincoln Room, but was discovered by the President in the hall, late at night, in his bathrobe and clutching his luggage, sneaking down to the Queens' bedroom. He must have thought the Lincoln bed was either too hard or too austere."

Of the chandelier in the imposing Treaty Room where Lynda and Luci used to do their homework when they first moved into the White House, he says: "President Grant ordered it made for the East Room in 1873, but during the redecoration in 1902, it was sent over to the West Wing office, where the tinkling of its prisms got on President Theodore Roosevelt's nerves. He sent it to Congress, and there it stayed until Mrs. Kennedy got it back. Incidentally, the person who engineered its return was Vice President Lyndon Johnson."

Memorabilia and furnishings belonging to any of the thirty-four families who have lived in the White House are still being sought, and bought (out of private, not public, funds), by the Committee for the Preservation of the White House. Nearly every object in both the public and private quarters has a history which is fascinating, or amusing, or both, and the committee hopes to make it even more so. But if I could go back only once, and only for five minutes, I would choose to look again at the two limpid Cézannes reflected against the golden glow of the Oval Room. For politics and history are all very well, but being a romantic, I like to think of the First Lady —hopefully all First Ladies—in John Greenleaf Whittier's words: "Flowers spring to blossom where she walks/The careful ways of duty;/Our hard, stiff lines of life with her/Are flowing curves of beauty."

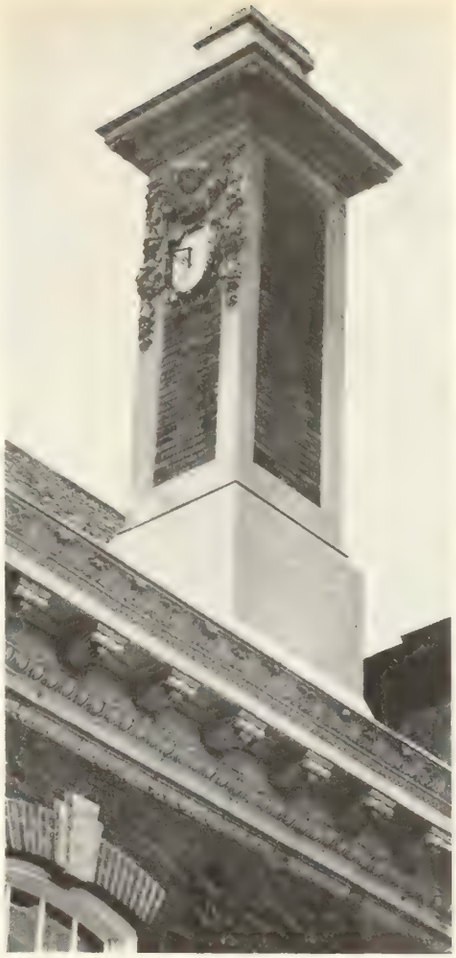
Sundials to adorn your garden

for timely beauty in light and shade

Since time immemorial, gnomonics (the science of making sundials) has been the province variously of seers, clerics, mathematicians, and astronomers. With advent of mechanical timepieces, gardeners fell heir to t of the sundials—gardeners and poets who could not st the chance to write sentimental verses about the fleet- hours. The scientist's loss is the gardener's gain, but n gardeners can feel ambivalent about sundials. Some ard them purely as happy ornaments; others study their kings with relentless zeal.



These sundials that grace Old Westbury Gardens, stbury, N. Y., not only can tell the gardener when it is e to go in to lunch, but serve as extraordinarily hand- ne ornaments as well. Perhaps the affinity between gar- s and sundials is a natural one, because, quite apart m the sculptural merits of sundials, both gardens and clocks must have sun to function properly.

The visitor to Old Westbury Gardens can readily count east six dials, all different in design, but all registering roximately the same hour at the same time. Not the sim- st, but surely the most familiar type is the flat horizontal l on a pedestal. Vertical dials were probably the most valent in the Old World, where for centuries dials were only timepieces. Frequently the older vertical dials, ecially those on the walls of churches, marked not equal rs as we know them, but time intervals of special signifi-

A vertical oval dial, framed by carved stone garlands, faces south on one of the tall chimneys of Old Westbury House. Its cameo elegance would not be easy to duplicate, but south-facing vertical dials are easiest of all to make.

The flat horizontal dial, left, both simple and decorative, is the most familiar type and the most readily available commercially. Antique dials from abroad may be inaccurate unless the stylus or gnomon is set for each garden's location (see diagram, page 293).

global dial, right, is but a sion of the basic armillary ere. It would tell time—not too urately—north of the Arctic cle all summer. But at West- y, surrounded by trees that e reached maturity, Atlas bears world in perpetual shadow.

rble dodecahedron, opposite e, is the star in Old Westbury's dial crown. In the center of big rose garden, it marks the rs all day, all year, usually on at least three ls concurrently (see detail of north-facing dial, page 296).

cance (some marked times of church services and were called mass dials; some marked the tides; some simply divided the daylight into intervals for reference). Other dial designs may be beautiful to look at, marvels of ingenuity, or simply odd. They range in size from hundreds of feet to tens of millimeters. One thing the simpler modern dials have in common, especially the horizontal and vertical ones, is that they all keep rather indifferent time, although they need not do so if they are provided with certain built-in or collateral reference information. Even most armillary spheres, which could keep good time, usually do not.

In order to tell even roughly correct sun time, at more than very few times of day and year, all dials depend on the proper orientation of the gnomon (or stylus) that casts the sun's shadow on the dial's marking surface, and the careful marking off of the time intervals. If you buy a sundial for the center of your garden or the gable of you dovecote, it must be oriented so that the gnomon points either to true north or to true south. In addition the elevation of the pointing gnomon from its dial surface must be either that of the latitude of the dial's location or the complement of that latitude (the colatitude), which is 90° less the latitude. (With these matters correctly handled, the

A four-sided pedestal dial is topped by an eagle that murmurs in quiet graven letters "Turn your face to the sun and the shadows will/fall behind you." Both the symmetrical south face and the asymmetrical east mark the hour as almost 10 o'clock.

The basic principles of all sundials are the same

Vertical dial, facing south, will tell time from 6:00 to 6:00. The face may be turned in another direction, but gnomon must aim due south (A) at an elevation (B) equal to the complement of the local latitude.

Horizontal dial's gnomon must aim true north (A) and have elevation (C) equal to latitude of the location.

Equatorial dial must be fixed facing north (A), with whole gnomon or stylus at elevation of local latitude (C). Flat plate, which in our hemisphere tells hours on bottom in winter, parallels plane of equator, marks 24 hours.

normal maximum error in time registered by your dial will be sixteen minutes.)

In practice this means that while an antique English dial, for example, may be a joy to look at, it will tell poor time unless the angle of its gnomon is changed to conform with the latitude of your garden. (The latitude of New York City is just under 41 degrees, almost the same as that of Madrid; the latitude of London is about 51 degrees, 30 minutes.) Even so, the dial will be a little off most of the time. If the dial points north (not compass north, but true north), it will be almost correct at noon every day, but only fleetingly correct at other times. (To find true north without a compass and deviation table, let an absolutely vertical line, hanging from an improvised "gallows" cast a shadow exactly at noon. The line cast by the vertical will point true north-south—the shadow falling to the north. Translate the shadow into the direction line of your dial gnomon, by means of parallel dividers or by simply casting the shadow on the face of the dial and then fastening the dial in place.)

If you are sufficiently interested or rich or clever, however, you can acquire or make a sundial that will keep better time than most modern spring-actuated watches and clocks are likely to do. To buy such a dial is likely to be costly; to make one from scratch would require real mathematical expertise.

The decorative appropriateness of a dial is usually more important than its accuracy. But appropriateness of design, in our view, would include at least basic correction for latitude and the points of the compass. If the dial face is big enough or visible enough, a number of other correc-

North face of Old Westbury's dodecahedron — the face at lower left— tells only morning and evening hours between 6:00 and 8:00, and then only between spring and autumn equinoxes. All the faces that the sun reaches show time as about 6:15 in the evening.

The faces of a sundial need not necessarily be either vertical or horizontal. They need not even be flat. They may, in fact, be what are known as declining (skewed) or reclining (leaning away) or proclining dials (leaning downward). For that matter, they may be made in the form of spheres, cylinders, arcs, rings—including armillaries—crosses, flights of steps, or any shape capable of recording a moving shadow.

Dials with more than one face are always more interesting than single-faced types and usually more decorative. The four-sided vertical pedestal dials like the one on page 292 are, in principle, the simplest of the multiple types. The dodecahedron in the center of Old Westbury's lovely circular rose garden (see page 290) is typical of the multifaceted designs requiring real mathematical skills to perfect, and they are not picked up at the corner store. All but two of the twelve faces (one is under the lion, one is on the pedestal) tell sun time. All faces that are in the sun tell the same time simultaneously. The placement of this dial is obviously not correct for the geographical location. Perhaps it has been moved out of position, or perhaps its gnomons have been damaged, or perhaps it was not engineered for Old Westbury in the first place. In any case, it was half-an-hour off last July.

Armillary dials—assemblages of rings—are especially effective in garden settings when their scale is right. At their best, they have a grace that belies their size and complexity. But if you are going to buy a new armillary rather than an old one, take the trouble to make sure it is corrected for the approximate location of your garden. Great year-round accuracy may be built into armillaries and will add to your pleasure in them.

Sundials in order to work must receive all the available sun at whatever hour the sun shines. That usually presupposes a southerly exposure. (Inside the Arctic Circle in summer where the sun never sets, that means until midnight.) But whether the sun shines or not, nothing so dramatizes the sweet-sad idea of time and the garden as a handsome sundial.

Before acquiring a sundial, you may find it helpful to consult the Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica under "dial" (the more recent editions shirk the mathematics for mere historical gossip), and such books as Sundials by Mayall and Mayall, and the more sentimental Sundials and Roses of Yesterday by Alice Morse Earle. The latter volumes are undoubtedly out of print, but may be seen at a good public or horticultural library. Fascinating collections of actual dials, in almost bewildering variety, are to be found at Chicago's Adler Planetarium, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, and the Harvard Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.

mum enjoyment, please use it. True, many opera texts are notoriously weak. Some are illogical and contradictory, but many are beautiful in themselves. The Tchaikovsky operas, for instance, are based on the rhymed verse stories of Alexander Pushkin, one of the world greats of literature. And Verdi's two crowning masterpieces –Otello and Falstaff—employ such perfect adaptations from Shakespeare, it is possible to entertain the question: which is better, the opera or the play?

At first you may find it difficult to read English words while listening to Italian, French, German, or Russian singing. But you'll soon get the knack of it. You will begin to see and hear how every nuance of meaning is underscored with music, how singers heighten emotion with musical emphasis and vocal inflections, and how song illumines the poem within a phrase.

The whole works

When you have given yourself a chance at opera and tested these suggestions, you will be ready to enjoy—and genuinely so –a full broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House on a Saturday afternoon or a special color telecast some Sunday (having made note of the date and prepared for it). But as meaningful as these experiences of opera may be, nothing, of course, will compare with the direct, immediate face-to-face view of opera on the stage. There, in full glory, with all the color of costuming and scenery, the tenseness of the human being performing the impossible before your eyes, the action and the words of the plot coming to tangible life- there opera becomes an unsurpassable excitement.

There is something in opera for everyone. As you get into the habit of playing opera records, you will find all manner of unexpected dividends and rewards. One of these, doubtless, will be that your whole family is affected by your interest. A child's ears prick up when he hears Minnie win at cards and shout with triumph in The Girl of the Golden West. The burst of bitter heartbroken laughter in I Pagliacci, where the clown has to put on his makeup and costume while hiding his sorrow, will make anyone ask "What's happening?" No ear, whether trained or not, can miss the deep bass trills of the devil in Faust or the musical jokes of Figaro in The Barber of Seville.

Before you know it, instead of learning about opera, you may have begun teaching. Shared experiences in the arts are better than solitary ones. Opera, I promise, if you give it a chance, will become part of your, and other's, happiness. Whether or not it turns out to be a "phase," try it.

The warmth that says "home"—Henredon is at the heart of it.

Remember how you always think of home? Especially at holiday time. The warmth. The delight in the look and feel of familiar objects. Brought together thoughtfully. Like the gathering of a family. So naturally "at home" together.

This is the kind of home you create with Henredon's Custom Folio One. Each piece with the mellow warmth of familiar things. The look of furniture collected over a lifetime.

But it's yours immediately. Because Custom Folio One is a collection with something to suit every home. Whether you need a large table or a small one. A compact buffet or one that gives you 6½ feet of storage space. Like the one in the picture at the left. It's the newest addition to this remarkably versatile collection. Built and added to over the years. Crafted from magnificent cabinet woods. Enriched with the glow of hand-rubbed or painted finishes. Created by people who love their craft. People who know what a home should be—a place that creates memories.

Custom Folio One. More than 90 pieces. Each designed to harmonize with the others. In style, finish and convenience. With you setting the pace. Mixing. Matching. And bringing them together in a room that says it belongs to you and only you. That's really what a home should be, shouldn't it?

The architectural look of this magnificent buffet conceals highly functional storage space fitted with trays and adjustable shelves. 60" wide.

This mobile server slides easily on concealed casters. Heat and alcohol resistant top unfolds to a 6 foot service area.

Octagonal table, sized for small apartments or family dining. Extends from 44" to 84"

Pedestal table. Oval top expands from 35" to 75". Azur Antique base with Provincial Fruitwood top. Chair and table also in wood finishes.

INCORPORATING LIVING FOR YOUNG HOMEMAKERS

On the cover: The newest, crispest, most sophisticated of this year's clean simplified color schemes—brown and white—gives a New York apartment living room a remarkably fresh unhackneyed air. White furniture and dark brown walls are pitted against each other in almost equal measure, but the sharp contrast is gently modified by the addition of creamy beiges and a few notes of clear bright color. Among the white accessories: on the table near the window, a collection of milk glass vases; on the Parsons' table, a pair of intricately wrought candlestick lamps made in 1860 by August Nicole Cain. The flower poster behind them is the work of pop painter Andy Warhol, but the synthetic double scoop sundae makes no claim on art—it is a strictly business display prop from an ice cream parlor. Interior design by Jerry Thomas, an associate of Edward M. Benesch. For more facets of brown-plus-white, turn to pages 230-235.

Dress rehearsal

When you choose your Lunt sterling silver, shut your eyes and imagine it in a party setting. Then open them and imagine it at breakfast on a rainy Monday morning. If there's instant recognition in your heart and mind, you've probably met your match for all occasions—and even non-occasions.

LUNT
STERLING

A match for your most treasured china and crystal, too. For Lunt marries well. It's the real thing. In design, craftsmanship, and solid sterling worth. The candlestick and plate above are complements in another medium; silverplated holloware, designed and executed to the quality standards of Lunt.

For information write Lunt Silversmiths, Dept. HG-8, Greenfield, Mass.

Stereo Consoles by Scott

As fine furniture, the new Scott stereo consoles add distinction to the most discriminating homes. But it is only when you turn on the sound that you truly appreciate what Scott has accomplished.

Here are America's finest stereo components built into acoustically perfect cabinetry. Here is sound unlike anything you have heard. Scott's exclusive Isomount* permits more octaves of deep bass than possible from any other stereo console . . . plus pure, crystal-clear treble to assure breathtakingly real sound.

Scott consoles are painstakingly hand-rubbed to lustrous old-world finishes. Only the center-lid lifts, leaving decorative accessories undisturbed.

Scott Stereo Consoles are complete family music centers offering AM and FM stereo radio, professional automatic record turntables, and optional stereo tape. You even can connect an electric organ or guitar, microphone, stereo headphones or the sound portion of your TV. And it's easy to connect extension speakers which carry Scott stereo to any room in your home.

Like all custom-crafted products, Scott Consoles are available in limited editions. Prices start at $499.95. *patent pending

For 1967... Surprisingly New! Superbly Cadillac!

Who else but Cadillac could introduce a personal car as fabulous as the Eldorado—and at the same time offer you eleven more of the newest and most exciting luxury ever created! Each new Cadillac is, in its own way, a masterpiece. e is dramatic new styling throughout, beautiful new interiors and t of significant advancements, including a new padded instrument l...a more responsive Cadillac engine...improved variable ratio er steering...and a new General Motors-developed energy absorb- teering column. The remarkable new Eldorado—the most eagerly anticipated, most talked about new luxury car of the decade—provides the spirit and action of a performance car with the comfort and elegance of a luxury car. It is the first car in the world to combine front wheel drive. variable ratio power steering and automatic level control for a totally new driving experience. These are but a few of the many achievements that make the 1967 Cadillacs incomparable in comfort, unmatched in performance and unexcelled in safety and convenience. See and drive the extraordinary 1967 Cadillacs before the week is out. You will agree that dignity has never looked so daring!

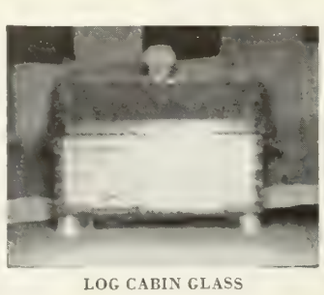
"800" SILVER

I bought this silver tureen and mirror plateau in Germany some years ago. They are marked "Strube & Sohn" and bear the number "800." The tureen has a separate liner of plate silver on copper. Some of the baroque trimming and handles are fastened with small silver bolts. Can you give me any further information?
E.A.—Atlanta, Ga.



Strube & Sohn made your solid silver tureen and plateau in Berlin between 1860 and 1880. The number 800 indicates the grade of silver; a high grade is .800 fine—i.e., 800 out of 1,000 parts are of fine silver.

We would appreciate anything you can tell us about this very thin glass vase with hand-painted floral decorations. I tried to draw it in scale: 13¼ inches tall, 6⅛ inches wide at top.
A.S.M.—Washington, D.C.

AMERICAN ART GLASS

You have an American art glass vase dating about 1890-1910. The floral decorations were put on with colored enamel after the vase was blown; then the whole piece was refired in a furnace.

LOG CABIN GLASS

My grandmother's lidded glass di shaped like a log cabin is now mi Could you estimate its age a origin?
A.E.W.—Kingston, Ont., Cana

Molded glass in this Log Cabin pa tern was made by a Pittsburgh gla factory around 1880-1890. They al made creamers, spoon holders, and compote in the same design.

Sometimes we feel more like jewelers than silversmiths.

Laurel Mist

When our designer showed us his sketches for Laurel Mist we told him he must be kidding.

All that florentining. All that incising. What did he think we were, jewelers?

Nobody did things like that in silverplate. Who knew if it could even be done?

But our designer looked very confident surrounded by books on Cellini and the Renaissance.

He knew we'd find a way.

And we did.

Our new pattern Laurel Mist looks just like he meant it to.

And it's DeepSilver. Which means we place an extra block of solid silver in the spoons and forks you use most. Right at the most vulnerable point.

Then we plate with more pure silver than any other leading silverplate.

That's what our "IS" mark tells you. It tells you we make each piece of DeepSilver so you can use it every day.

Even though it looks as if it were meant to be pinned to your dress.

Laurel Mist is $100 for a 48 piece service for 8.

We'd be happy to show you all our other patterns too. For a free color brochure write The International Silver Company, Meriden, Connecticut.

Even if you never played the Palace, you can play a theatre organ!

Place yourself at the authentically-styled "horseshoe" console of the Conn Theatrette. In minutes you're creating the music, the special effects —all the glorious sounds of a big theatre organ. It's like playing the Palace right in your own living room.

The Conn Theatrette is completely self-contained—including the exclusive Conn Rhythm Section, Stereo Expression Control and the famous Leslie Speaker. All the musical effects of today and yesterday are placed right at your fingertips with a rainbow of colorful tabs. The Theatrette is a professional quality instrument created by the world-famous music men at C. G. Conn, Ltd., in Elkhart, Indiana.

Naturally the price is a little more than conventional home-styled organs (other Conn models start at $895)—but the Conn Theatrette is no ordinary home-styled organ.

Let your Conn Dealer show you how easy it is to bring real theatre organ music and fun into your family's life. See him soon.

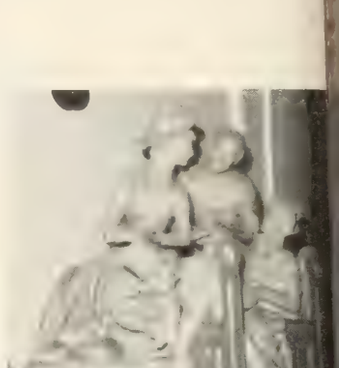
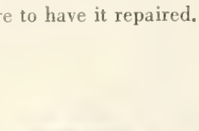
REGULATOR CLOCK

How old would you judge our chiming wall clock to be? It is 53 inches tall, has a porcelain face and "Made in Germany" stamped on the back. The eagle on top looks hand-carved.



H.B.S.—Racine, Wis.

Your pendulum wall clock was probably made after 1890, when many such clocks were exported to this country. Their pendulums were equipped with regulators that helped keep them on time. With no maker's mark on the dial or the movement, we cannot trace it further.

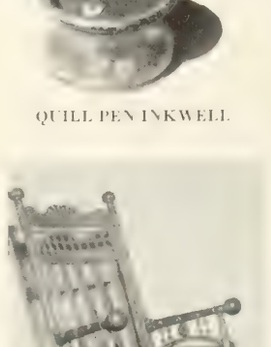


My husband brought home this sculpture group, which is painted and has the words "Neighboring Pews" on the base. Can it be repaired?

A.B.H.—Plainfield, N.J.

Apparently you have one of many groups by the American sculptor, John Rogers. Plaster casts of his work were very popular in the 1880's. The record shows yours was cast in 1883. The New York Historical Society, which has many Rogers groups, might advise you where to have it repaired.

ROGERS GROUP



QUILL PEN INKWELL

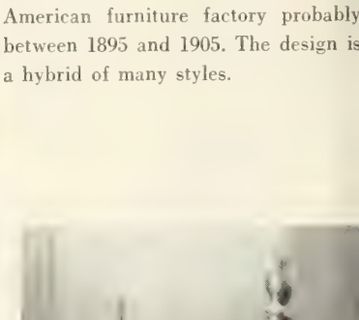
We were told our American inkwell is over 100 years old. It is wood with glass containers and three holes for quills. Where does it come from?

J.M.M.—East Norwich, N.Y.

It was made by the Silliman Company of Chester, Conn., about 1850–1870.

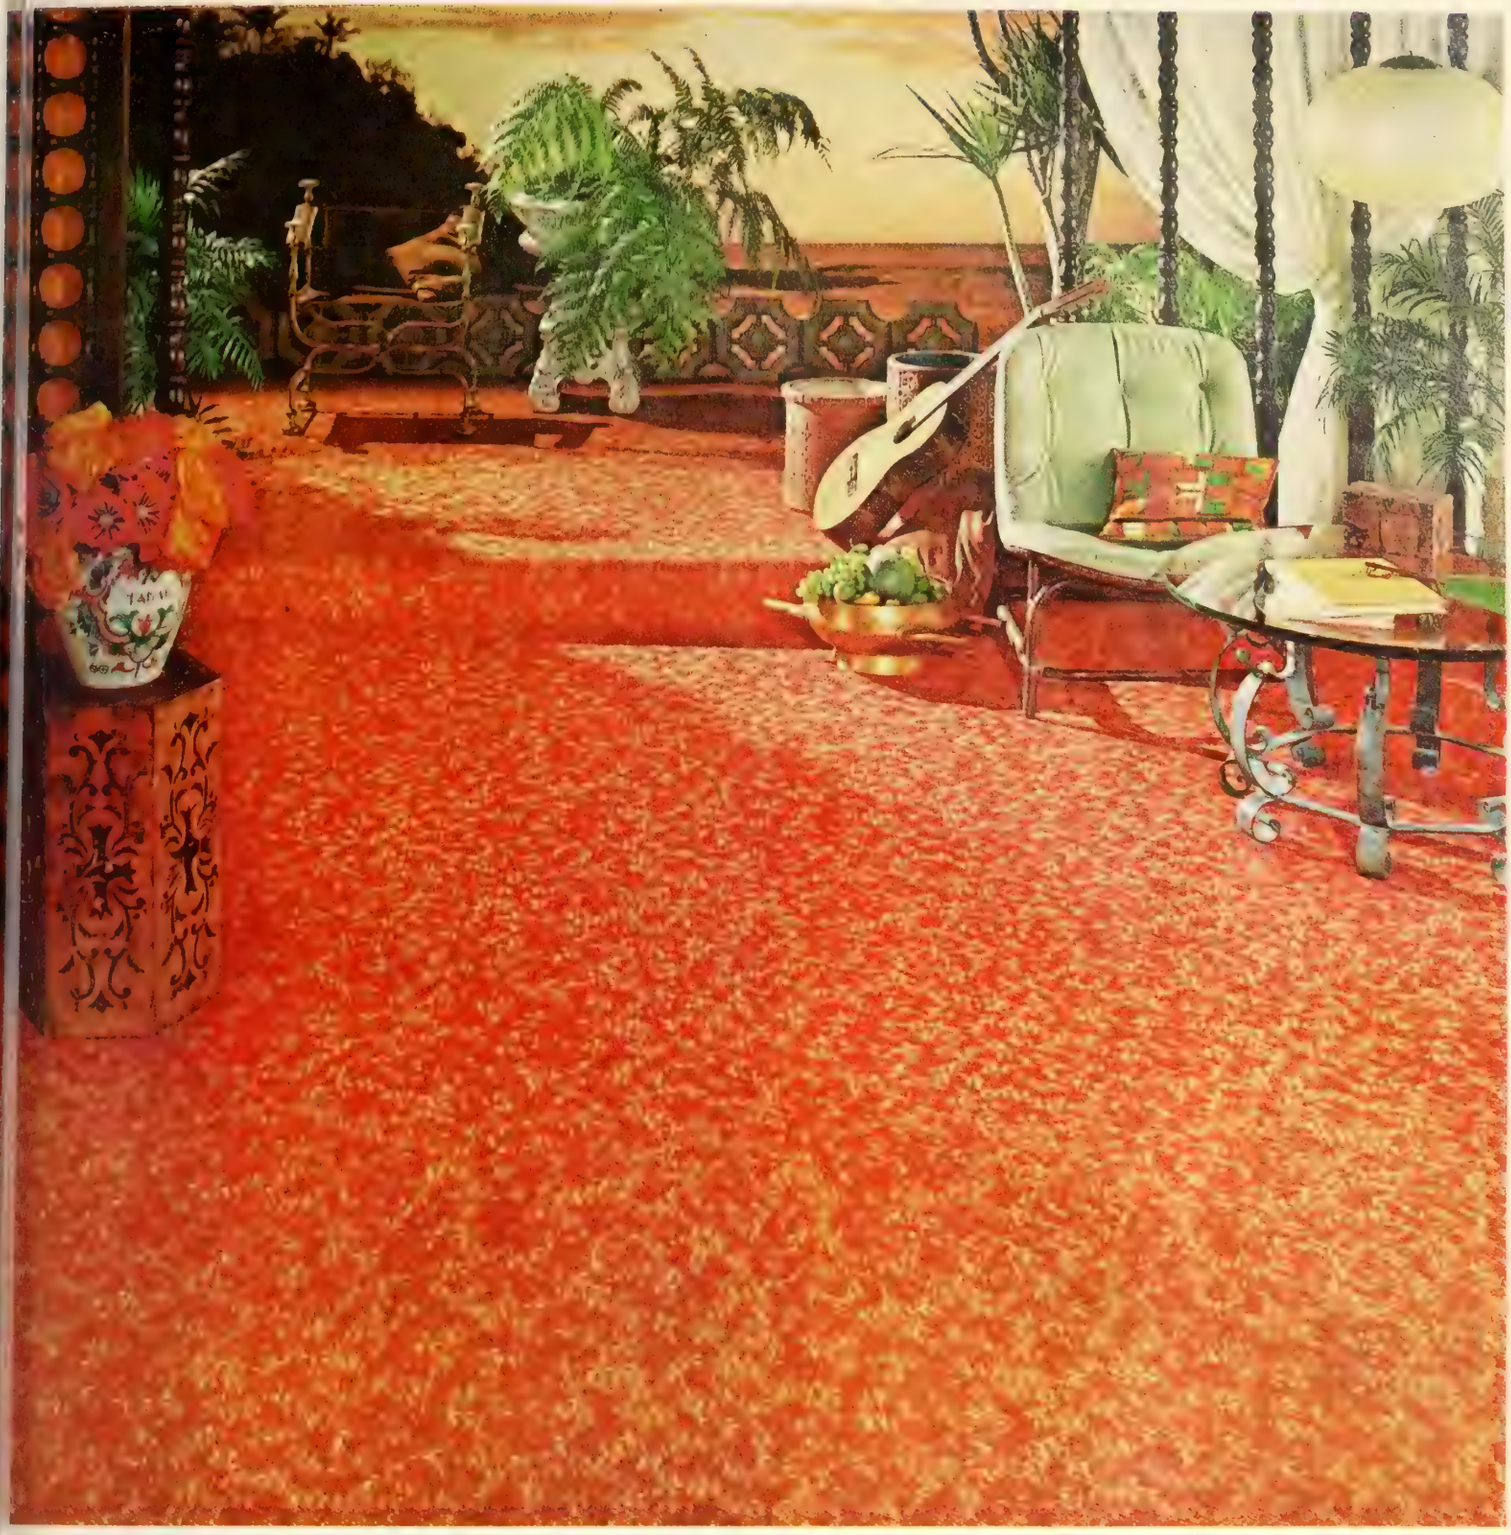
TURN-OF-THE-CENTURY ROCKER

We will appreciate any information you can give us about this rocking chair which we bought recently in Pasadena.



G.B.M.—Hacienda Heights, Calif.

Your rocking chair was made by an American furniture factory probably between 1895 and 1905. The design is a hybrid of many styles.



Could you tell the period and origin of our brass andirons? I took one apart to show the hand-wrought, iron upright.

W.R.M, Jr.—Newtown Sq., Pa.

Your andirons are entirely handmade, apparently by a skilled brass founder who probably worked in one of our important cities about 1815–1830.

Notes forthe Hostess

BY DIANA BRYAN

My niece and her husband have just celebrated their second wedding anniversary. Like most young couples, their sociability quotient far exceeds their income, so they were delighted when a group of their friends gave them a surprise celebration, and a very gay, young event it was.

The theme might have been called "Elegance on a shoestring." Each guest or couple was asked to bring a luxury gift not exceeding $2. Not as impossible a feat as it sounds: brandied marmalade, for example, at $2 a jar is not normally bought on a budget. Other inspirations, within the economic ground rules, included a goodly supply of special peppercorns, a bar of rare soap, air-mail stamps, some dried cèpes (those exquisite-tasting French fungi), paperback books of an enduring character such as Roget's Thesaurus and Fowler's Common English Usage, some rare flower seeds, and a package of carbon paper for the electric typewriter. There were several exotic hors d'oeuvres, including a tin of papadums. One artistic soul managed to get hold of a snapshot negative of the anniversary couple which he enlarged and framed very tastefully via the Five and Ten. Obviously young people today have not only imagination, but a discriminating sense of what constitutes luxury.

The menu was in keeping with the general tenor of the party, several of the female guests contributing the provender. My niece's ex-roommate from college, also a bride, brought a pot of her own homemade pâté and melba toast made from thinly sliced English muffins. The other hors d'oeuvres were crudités—raw zucchini, mushrooms, celery, and carrots—served with a side dish of seasoned salt. The first course was eggs à la Russe—deviled eggs dressed with Sauce Remoulade temperately sprinkled with honest caviar. As a main course the young wives served chicken baked with lemon juice, black pepper, and a benison of French dressing. This they accompanied with a rice-and-peanuts casserole and string beans with sour cream. Dessert was an imitation French fancy: ladyfinger molds filled with one of the new instant beat-and-chill chocolate mixtures, flavored with rum extract. A mutual fund procured a good rosé to accompany the dinner, inexpensive and just right.

Speaking of luxury, but not on a budget, Sybil Craig has a real pampering instinct when it comes to her guests. A shelf in her guest bathroom, for instance, is loaded with all manner of sybaritic concoctions: fancy bath oils, friction lotions, dusting powders, bubble bath, body lotions, bath salts. What's more, a little sign hanging from the shelf says, "These are not just for decoration—please use them." That really impressed me, in view of all the powder rooms where I've seen faintly dusty fancy decanters of goodness-knows-what, jars of silly soaps, and rainbow colognes which no one would ever seriously consider using. Sybil's bathroom also offers marvelous bath sponges and toga-size bath towels. With her, it is not a matter of dressing up her bathroom, but of spoiling her guests.

Even in winter, paper fancies for the table can be a blessing for large informal parties where you are using a flock of small tables. Party House, Inc., has brought out some marvelous paperware in brilliant colors designed by Kalla that I plan to use at our next post-football supper. Includes everything

antheon, a collection of classic magnitude by United, rekindles the spirit of the Italian Renaissance nd reflects its genius with a new elegance and romance. Pantheon's dining and bedrooms, living oom designs and occasional tables are finished in warm pecan veneers with wood grains carefully natched for harmony of color tone. Dressers, commodes and chests beautifully reproduce trim reeded oldings, carved shadow-panels... and repeat the embossed acanthus leaf motif adapted from lassical columns. Each detail is a wonderful achievement in the grand Italian manner. We invite ou to experience this renaissance in living. from tablecloths, place mats, napkins, plates, and cups to coasters and matchbooks.

First I'll cover each table with a solid-color paper cloth, then I'll top it with mats, coasters, and napkins in a wildly contrasting color. Personally, I love the orange and magenta mixture, although the avocado, bright blue, and green is pretty appealing, too. The decorative motifs on the mats, coasters, and napkins are all rather sophisticated, and the undecorated plates and cups come in fine strong colors, so it should be easy to arrive at a dramatic effect without making gaudy faux pas.

Discovered a highly patrician looking china recently that would be lovely for party tables—the "Braganza" pattern in Vista Alegre porcelain. It looks like something that might have been inherited or at least bought at great cost from a posh antique shop, yet it is surprisingly bon marché. Braganza is white, with a blue and gold leaf trim, and the cups are in the old Porto shape—straight-sided, not too deep, with a graceful handle. The style is strictly traditional but compatible I should think with almost any designs except the cruder country type.

We now serve a super-special after-dinner coffee at our house—not only to VIP's, but also to ourselves on occasions when I think Dan needs cheering up or we have reason to celebrate. Kilimanjaro, which owes its romantic name to the place where it is grown—the fertile slopes of Mt. Kilimanjaro in Tanzania—is a very rich, full-bodied coffee with none of that bitter flavor you so often get in dark roasted dessert blends. Although this African coffee has been known to gourmets in Europe for quite a while, it has only just begun to be imported to the United States. What a boon for us coffee snobs!

The Blodgetts have a wonderful way of pampering the out-of-town guests who come to stay with them in New York for a week or more. They always arrange for their visitors to have guest cards to their clubs, which leaves the out-of-towners free to go off on their own, to entertain other friends, perhaps, and generally to enjoy a non-tourist type of living. Certainly makes them feel much more at home.

Seems to me in the country, too, country club privileges would be nice to arrange for guests who are staying longer than a weekend. A couple, for instance, could play tennis or golf, or go swimming whenever they feel like it, leaving the hostess to follow her own routine without having to function continually as a chaperone. Dinner conversation is always livelier when everybody hasn't spent the whole day together.

The correct way of answering a formal invitation—wedding or otherwise—is pretty cut and dried. But I still can't forget that moment of delight when I was helping a friend with preparations for her daughter's wedding and came upon a reply that said, "Mr. and Mrs. X accept with the greatest of pleasure and will be present at. . . ." Somehow, you got a sense of their instant joy and feeling of personal involvement with the gala event. You knew they really wanted to come and were happy about it—not counting it just one more social obligation. If a regret is necessary, why couldn't it be done with the same warmth—"Mr. and Mrs. X regret very much indeed. . . ."

Dan and his friends claim they really like to drink beer out of the bottle, but ever since we acquired our English ceramic tankards, I've noticed that one is brought out of the cupboard whenever a bottle of beer is opened. They are white printed in black with the marvelous old chemists' labels that extol the virtues of such things as cherry toothpaste, cucumber winter cream, wondrous lotions, Egyptian salve, "improved inhaler," egg julep. The mugs are amusing without being silly—and thoroughly masculine. I like the biggest of the three sizes I saw in New York at Stephen Neuman—it provides a good-sized handle for a man's hand.

GOOD LOOKING TABLES FOR FUN AND GAMES

Game tables by their very nature seem to have a particularly lighthearted look about them. But they can be turned to many purposes other than gaming. Excellent for serving tea or supper-for-two, they also come in handy as auxiliary desks for special projects such as addressing Christmas cards or party invitations.

Bamboo-turned mahogany card table with a black leather top and a drawer in which to stash the dominoes or cards, pencils, and paper. 32 inches square by 29 inches high. Hickory Chair. $139 at W & J Sloane.

Natural wicker table in the classic "Bar Harbour" style might be used as a small breakfast or luncheon table when not in use for "Sorry." 35 inches square by 29 inches high. $95 at Walters.

Traditional card table of ash with hoofed cabriolet legs, pull-out shelves for glasses, an antiqued brown leather top, and a drawer. 32 inches square by 29 inches high. By Baker. $450 at B. Altman & Co.

MIEHLMANN

You won't trade this convertible in every three years.

This convertible is a KitchenAid dishwasher on wheels.

Like all the models in our line, it's built to last. We can't tell you exactly how long. But we know many of our 1949 models are still rolling along.

It's a convertible because it's convertible. You can use it as a portable dishwasher right now without any installation expense. And convert it to a built-in, whenever you'd like.

Here's what you get standard on this Superba model: Beautiful colors. (Coppertones, White or brand new Avocado Green.) A roomy interior (big enough for roasters, deep bowls.) Four push button cycles. A dependable, exclusive KitchenAid motor.

Plus a 4-Way Wash so effective you don't have to hand-rinse dishes at all. A separate drying system, safe even for fine china. And to top it off, a good top—a 1½" thick, hard maple cutting board.

So if you're in the market for a sharp convertible, wheel on down to your KitchenAid dealer (he's in the Yellow Pages). Or write KitchenAid Dishwashers, Department 6DA-11, The Hobart Manufacturing Company, Troy, Ohio 45373.

Once couturier Bill Blass discovered Philadelphia's "Consolation" pure wool pile carpet, there was no stopping him.

Consolation may not give you the sudden, irrepressible urge to conjure up shoulder-to-shoulder carpeting.

That's for the genius of fashion designer Bill Blass, of Maurice Rentner.

But it will give your decorating that same fresh zest. An insight to elegance. A new free feeling for fashion. Because Consolation pure wool broadloom has a flair for stimulating your unique creativity.

And Consolation has the character to put it over: Rich, plush-deep texture. The stamina and easy care of pure wool that's colorfast and permanently mothproof. And a palette of 18 inspiring colors (shown: French Gold), from the outspoken to the understated.

The Wool Mark is awarded to quality-tested carpets made of pure wool pile.

THE $200 DIFFERENCE

ore he fitted this sweep of crushed velvet, the Heritage upholsterer stretched, shaped and stitched four ers of support over the arms and back of the frame. When a sofa, or any piece of furniture, takes its shape n the inside out, only more money can buy it.

night be able to find a sofa that like this for about $500. But von't be buying the same sofa e that's even close. As you'll soon out when buffet suppers, o-day sitting, children and holstering take their toll on omfort and looks you bought e showroom.
ered in rich crushed velvet, this inch Heritage sofa will cost you t $700. Or $200 more than its "look-alike." Every spring, strip of webbing, length of thread and piece of burlap was hand-picked, then cut, fitted, sewn and secured to support the lines and comfort of this sofa. The arms alone have burlap, fiberfill, muslin and batting back to back beneath the velvet. Even the frame was shaped to support the sofa's design.
The higher price on this Heritage sofa, or any other piece of furniture we make, means something. Whether it's our concern for the support behind the looks and comfort of a design. Or the way we'll carve and finish wood by hand... because no machine or shortcut method can match it.
When you find work like this, you'll see the Heritage name. Hiding under the cushions of this monumental Heritage sofa. Burned inside the drawers of a chest that takes its look from Chippendale. Swinging on a tag from one of our wing chairs.
If you'd like to know more about Heritage and see how it could fit into your home, send two dollars for a Heritage catalog collection and room planning kit, to Dept. HG11-6, Heritage Furniture Company, High Point, North Carolina.

OMAR EMILIO NINO, COLOMBIAN, AGE 5. One of six children. Father ill. Works as shoemaker occasionally. Earns about $30 a month. Mother lame. Surgery four times. Leg in cast now. Live in one room. Barely furnished. Brick floor. Cardboard ceiling. No facilities. Wash clothes in public washing place. Diet limited. No meat or milk. Children undernourished. Parents sick with worry over children they cannot adequately shelter, feed and clothe. Help to Omar means help to entire family.

Thousands of children as needy as Omar anxiously await "adoption" by you or your group. You can choose a boy or girl from any of the countries where Foster Parents' Plan has offices—Greece, South Korea, Viet Nam, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Colombia, Ecuador or Peru. Your child receives $8 a month of your money in cash as well as blankets, household equipment, clothing, medical care—and education. EVERY PLAN CHILD OF SCHOOL AGE MUST ATTEND SCHOOL. Through your help the child will become a productive citizen of his country, a loyal friend of ours. You receive a case history and photograph. Every month you write and receive a letter (original and translation). PLAN's local social workers and our resident American Directors are always on-the-spot, ready to provide medical aid, counselling and guidance to your child and his family. Soon, through the regular letters and progress reports, you and your child develop a warm, loving relationship. "Adopt" a child the responsible way—through Foster Parents' Plan.

CHECK YOUR CHARITY! PLAN never employs professional fund-raisers. We eagerly offer our financial statement upon request because we are so proud of the handling of our funds.

PLAN is a non-political, non-profit, non-sectarian, independent relief organization, approved by the United States Government, registered under No. VFA019 with the Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid of the Agency for International Development and filed with the National Information Bureau and the National Better Business Bureau in New York City.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD PIANIST?

BY FAUBION BOWERS

Artur Rubinstein, an all-time great, recording with the Boston Symphony

he fusty half-light that concert hall managers deem prudent for ıe hearing of serious music, the last notes of a piano piece resound. he pianist stands up to a burst of applause. He bows to his admiring, ecting, and demonstrating audience—a ritual that is now about two lred years old. Have you sometimes found yourself applauding, too, in le, reluctant suit? Afterwards, have you resented the chitchat in the r, where you found yourself repeating like a myna bird, "Marvelous, n't it?" What was marvelous? What is everyone talking about?

Three or four decades ago, matters were simpler. Questions of what and was a good pianist rarely rose. There was Paderewski, for instance. n if his playing didn't interest you, the fact that he was twice premier ıis country did. Or take Rachmaninoff. He played faster than anyone , so you knew he had to be good. Besides, you went to hear him play old war-horse, Prelude in C# minor (it was in his contract that this ıld always be his first encore).

Today, however, the situation is different. For one thing, the sheer mber of pianists has rampageously increased. Last season, one music tic counted twenty-six piano debuts in one month—a peak month, granted, t astounding nonetheless. The genial music director of the Boston Symony Orchestra, Erich Leinsdorf, an ex-pianist himself, recently suggested at if you want fame and riches today, try the piano, "a major vehicle of ccess." Along with the economic boom, America has become a great exrter of young concert pianists, and a profitable business it is.

What exactly makes a pianist? Literally something like 50,000 hours hammering away at ivory, ebony, wood, steel, and wire, with flesh, bone, ıd tendon. If a pianist plays, say, a big brassy Brahms concerto—a staple f the repertoire—you can be sure that he is expending 50 pounds of power er square inch of keyboard. This remains true, even though monkey-in-theoo pianism has vanished. Happily, there are no more child prodigies. The ıianist you listen to now may be only twenty years old, but he will certainly ıave been working since the age of four or five. Gone, too, is the era of the ıersonalized instrument. Josef Hofmann, for example, used to have a piano ıuilt for him with narrow keys, so as to accommodate his small hands. For extra speed, José Iturbi used a Baldwin with an action so light that you could blow on a key and get a full tone. The closest we come to this among contemporary pianists is the Italian genius and eccentric, Arturo Benedetti Michelangeli, who strips all the felt from inside the piano to release its maximal sound and color.

Today's pianists all play fast and well. The freshest of graduates from every school where piano is taught, as well as those who are nurtured in the hothouse atmosphere of the private studio, all have taken league-long strides in musical proficiency and intelligence. Artur Rubinstein once remarked that most of the younger pianists of today play "faster than I do, but . . ." Many of them play with far more taste and intelligence than he did when he was their age. What he has now is the enriching experience of age, and that, musically speaking, is as precious as the facility of youth.

The reason for this rise in sense and sensibility lies largely in the accessibility of great exemplars. Thanks to radio, records, tape, even television, a student can hear any pianist of any stature play any piece of music in his repertoire. And because of international cultural exchanges and the general ease of travel, no music is hidden or remote. No artist's particular insight is beyond the reach of the earnest seeker. One example is the change that occurred in world pianism when the Soviet pianists, Gilels and Richter, one a keyboard giant, the other a titan of musical poetry, began touring outside the U.S.S.R. Van Cliburn may have beaten the Russians in 1956; but he plays better for having been able to hear them since.

Doubtless the most noteworthy characteristic of the pianists of our time is their intellectual growth. No longer is the performer a blinkered child to be slapped with a ruler for every wrong note. He is usually a college graduate, a literate participant in today's world as a man, a scholar, a musicologist, an artist. He is even brushed by science and knows why he does what and when and how (which is why the technical standard of finger dexterity has reached vertiginous heights). While the intuitive process will always be crucial to art and the ultimate arbitrator of all its disputes, the analytical approach has brought the hit-or-miss complexities of piano playing within the grasp of reason.

THE PHILIPPINES

BY PATRICIA K. BROOKS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Brooks, a onetime resident of Manila, now lives in New Canaan, Conn., where she and her husband own the Art Originals Gallery. On a recent trip to the Far East, she combined her two greatest enthusiasms—art and travel—by collecting material for travel articles and contemporary art for the gallery.

Twelve years ago, when I lived in Manila, the Philippines was undergoing a quest for national identity. Long colonized by Spain, then by the United States, it was a potpourri of Western and Oriental cultures. Chinese, Malayan, even Mohammedan influences were evident, all of which made the country endlessly fascinating to foreigners. But to Filipinos, such cultural diversity was confusing. There was no one single element with which to identify.

Returning recently to Manila, I was astonished and delighted to find that all the varied seeds had blossomed into a rich, exciting, and indigenous national culture. In the Philippines, the nationalism which in certain other Asian countries has bred fanatical self-destruction has been a creative, stabilizing force.

Witness the popularity of the famed Bayanihan Dance

Company. In my day, sophisticated Manilans couldn't have cared less about Igorot tribal dances, which had no relation to their own modern twentieth-century lives. But the Bayanihan (roughly translated from the national language, Tagalog, the name means togetherness), through an ingenious weaving together of native cultural threads, dynamic staging and costuming, and the sheer beauty of the dancers themselves, has awakened local interest in the colorful ethnic groups that have formed the Philippine heritage. If the Bayanihan is scheduled to appear during your Manila visit, consider it a "must." It is one of the world's great folk and ethnic dance groups.

Manila is a real fiesta city—noisy, exuberant, joyous—that improves with delving. If you wander from section to section, you invariably run into the celebration of some saint's feast day; floats decorated with ribbon festoons, little girls in starched frilly white dresses carrying balloons, and helados (ice cream) vendors whose splendid silvery-chrome carts often outshine the floats. One of the best ways to savor the city is to hire a calesa, a brightly trimmed horse-drawn buggy, and jog through the narrow streets of the market sections of the city past carabao (water buffalo) on their way to market, and jeepneys, those ingenious Filipino (Continued on next page)

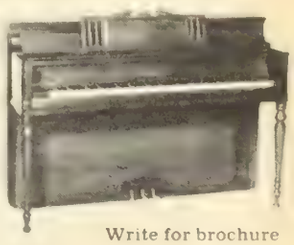
The concert hall piano for people who don't give their concerts in a concert hall.

A piano that sounds its best in a concert hall can sound wrong in a living room. There's a reason.

To keep music lovers happy in the concert hall, you need a piano that rates high in both tone and volume. But put the same piano in a living room, and it might just drive everyone out. The sound is too big.



Now take Chickering.

We have all the richness and sonority it takes to please the critical ear. It has the concert hall tone all right. Only we make the volume on strictly a living room scale. After all, you don't have to reach people in the balcony.

Our action is smooth and swift enough for professionals. Or for someone who just wants to playfully finger out Brahms' Lullaby.

You'd have to say Chickering is somewhat intimate. It's more friendly around the price tag, too.

The plain fact is, we've done more than anyone else to improve the sound and mechanics of pianos. And we've been doing it longer (144 years to be exact). So there's no reason we can't say our family piano sounds as good as anyone else's concert piano. We've simply never cared to be loud about it. That's all.

What good is a dishwasher detergent if it's no good in your water?

Every dishwasher detergent manufacturer knows that no one dishwasher detergent works equally well in all kinds of water. Yet nobody does anything about it — except the makers of FINISH. They have developed special formulas of FINISH for different types of water. Before they send your Special Formula FINISH into your area they test it in various types of water prevalent in your area. They make sure that your Special Formula FINISH washes dishes cleaner and shines glasses brighter than any other detergent.

It stands to reason that the world's largest producers of dishwasher detergents wouldn't go so far out of their way to give you a better product if it weren't important. Nor would the manufacturers of all 28 makes of dishwashers approve it. Do you consider it important enough to try your Special Formula FINISH in your dishwasher?

adaptations of jeeps-into-instant-buses, painted brilliant purples, pinks, and chartreuse, whose breakneck speed would indicate that their drivers are in training for the Grand Prix.

Ride over the Pasig River to Quiapo and visit the famous Church of the Black Nazarene. Once a year, on January 9, the revered old statue of Christ is carried from the church in a candlelit procession that snakes through the whole crowded district, jamming the streets into total immobility. As the statue is paraded through the tense, pushing crowds, people rush and stumble over one another to touch it for luck. The sense of devotion is almost tangible.

Marketplace Crafts

Make a point of exploring Divisoria, the most diverse and extensive of the many city markets. Block after block of sun-shielded open stalls offer an abundance of local wares. The aroma of the fish, produce, and meat stalls is a bit overwhelming for a first visit, but if you respond to handcrafts, you will be tempted, as I always am, to linger indefinitely at the many stands and shops that offer bamboo trays, baskets, handbags, place mats, and woven objects of all sizes and shapes at infinitesimal prices. If you stay in the Philippines long enough, you will soon learn to recognize the loosely woven winnowing trays of Luzon, the tightly woven Mindoro baskets, and the characteristic stools of Dumaguete in the South.

Divisoria is a special delight at Christmas time when the everyday color of the Chinese candle shops and stalls of artificial paper flowers is augmented by great bursts of gold, red, orange, yellow, and green lanterns—tissue paper and bamboo creations shaped into twelve-pointed stars, fish, birds, decorated in contrasting color, gaudy and gay, and just right for the season. A day or two before Christmas Eve there is a celebrated twilight lantern parade at the University of the Philippines in Quezon City, just outside Manila. Candles are lighted inside the lanterns, each more imaginative than the next, and the slow, twinkling procession winds along the road, stretching a good mile or more. Throughout the holidays, the lighted lanterns add a festive touch to house windows, until January breezes finally rip the tissue, and the colors fade in the sun.

What makes Manila so stimulating is its rich blend of past and present. Physically it is a mixture of old nineteenth-century Spanish façades and some of the most creative contemporary architecture in the Far East. One of the most badly ravaged cities of World War II, Manila lost many of its most cherished historic buildings: the churches of Intramuros, in the city's oldest section. Bullet-marred but spared was Malacañan, the Presidential palace on the banks of the Pasig River. Open to visitors at certain hours, Malacañan is a showplace of formal elegance.

The houses in the Santa Mesa section and the side streets leading off Roxas Boulevard offer last glimpses of the old colonial architecture. The faded grandeur of large verandas, high-ceilinged salas, and the lovely old sliding window screens with tiny inserts of capiz shell instead of glass, letting in light without heat, all evoke memories of the colonial past.

Architecture and Art

It is the architectural present, though, that really excites the imagination. Manila's great pride is an area totally undeveloped in my time—the Makati section, which has grown from a contemporary suburb into a sizable business community as well. Much of the taste and creativity of Makati can be attributed to leading Filipino architect Leandro Locsin.

Locsin's influence on his compatriots has been subtle, but far-reaching. His own extraordinary house in Forbes Park, Makati's most elegant section, combines the old in the Philippines with the new, embodying the best of both. Of contemporary design, the house is totally Filipino in concept and materials. Beautiful textured bricks from the ruins of an eighteenth-century church; elaborately carved, 300-year-old wooden panels from another church; an enormous ornate chandelier made from antique silver flowers carried on floats in religious processions—all these work beautifully with the open, spacious indoor-outdoor feeling of the house. Large rooms, sliding screens, and open passageways from one wing to another practically bring the garden's profusion of tropical plantings inside.

The furniture, too, combines the contemporary with the antique. A stunning long sculptural wooden bench, commissioned from leading Filipino sculptor Napoleon Abueva, looks perfectly compatible with straight-backed, austere nineteenth-century church benches, starkly modern in mood, and richly inlaid furniture of an even earlier period. Locsin has also adapted Philippine materials and techniques, borrowing the beauty of capiz shell screens for a unique contemporary room divider.

Enthusiastic collectors of Filipiniana, Locsin and his charming wife, Cecile, expertly display their large, select collection of santos, Chinese celadons (which they dug up themselves from local excavation sites), and antique gold Filipino jewelry as counterpoint to their contemporary paintings. Because of their impeccable taste the result is total harmony.

The Locsin dedication to Philippine objets has generated interest among other Filipinos. Those who a few short years ago rejected anything that wasn't imported now avidly haunt antique shops and rush to newly discovered excavations. Digging for ancient artifacts has become a popular local sport. It is incredible that just twelve years ago no one knew that there existed in the Philippines any objects of pre-Spanish antiquity. But recent excavations have uncovered quantities of priceless prehistoric objects—gigantic Chinese burial urns of the Ming period, intricate gold jewelry of pre-recorded time—all beautifully preserved and intact. The discoveries continue, almost faster than archaeologists can record them, to the joy of Filipino collectors.

At Christmas time in Manila's Divisoria market, paper and bamboo lanterns in bright colors and fantastic shapes are made and sold on the spot.

The focus of interest at the moment in Manila is the new Cultural Center, a building destined, upon completion, to house all the lively arts. With architect Locsin in charge of the project, and the enthusiastic support of Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos, First Lady of the Republic, fund-raising has been relatively painless. Arturo de Santos, one of Manila's most indefatigable collectors of Chinese celadons (mostly Philippine-excavated) and prehistoric Philippine art and artifacts, has pledged his entire vast collection to the Center. This is a real coup, for his celadon collection alone is considered one of the finest anywhere. Having such a prize available to the public is exciting news to culture-hungry Manilans.

Manila is indeed culture-mad. Theatre, ballet, and music are all wildly popular, each offering vital, original works and artists of considerable talent. But of all the arts, it is the plastic arts—painting, and sculpture—that, along with architecture, dominate the city's cultural life.

At the National Museum you can see glimpses of the nation's past art. The handsome Lopez Me-

The focal point of this elegant "Fitzhugh" pattern is the Chinese symbol for good luck, surrounded by representations of the four seasons. Named after Thomas Fitzhugh, a "supercargo" for the British East India Company in Canton, circa 1780, it is another historic Lowestoft original design by Spode. The distinctive blue/gray Lowestoft body, originated by Josiah Spode II in the first decade of the Nineteenth Century as replacement for wares previously imported from China, is about as chip-proof and unbreakable as a dinnerware can be. Available in red, green or blue. At the most reputable store in your community.

morial Museum contains splendid examples of the country's most respected nineteenth-century classicists, Juan Luna and Felix Resurreccion Hidalgo. But to my mind, it is the current art scene which is the liveliest. Manila boasts several galleries of contemporary art, as well as a small but first-rate museum at the Jesuit college, Ateneo de Manila, whose curator, Emmanuel Torres, is one of the country's most incisive art critics.

For the first-time visitor I would add a word of caution: avoid the tourist-trap "galleries" that hug the big hotels in the Ermita district, unless you are addicted to tropical maidens painted on velvet. (No Filipino connoisseur would be caught within blocks of them.) Ermita, however, also harbors the city's leading galleries, outstanding among which is the Luz Gallery, on the corner of

Church of San Agustin in Intramuros (the Walled City), oldest stone church in the country, survived ravages of World War II. Richly carved door is fine example of Spanish Colonial work.

Herran and Adriatico. Exhibitions that change every two weeks, lively programming of every aspect of Philippine artistic life, and prime foreign exhibitions make this "the" gallery for serious collectors. Arturo Luz, the gallery director, is a prominent painter himself, and he seems to have a sure eye for developing new talent. Look especially for the work of Rodriquez-Chabet, José Joya, Lee Aguinaldo, Alan Yongder, Ang-Kiukuk, and if you're lucky, Luz himself, although he is so successful these days as a gallery director that he has little time for his own painting.

Another source for top-quality contemporary art is the Philippine Art Gallery, managed by a dedicated aficionado, Lydia Arguilla, who did much in the 1950's to launch the "first wave" of such now-revered painters as Hernando Ocampo, Cesar Legaspi, Vicente Manansala, Arturo Luz, and sculptor Abueva. At the Graphic Workshop of painter-printmaker Manuel Rodriquez you will often find exciting, experimental etchin and lithographs.

Prices for art, as for almo everything else in Manila, are su prisingly low. At four pesos to t dollar, Manila offers tourists t best value in Asia for art, sho ping, hotels, dining, everythin Dinner at one of the best resta rants, for instance, might cost yo about $2.50, complete with wi and dessert.

The choice of restaurants ha also widened greatly in rece years. The New Europe and th Swiss Chalet, both old Ermit standbys of the international com munity, feature a wide range o European specialties. New on th horizon, and no doubt symptomati of the developing nationalism, ar several first-class Filipino restau rants, where the islands' regiona favorites are served with a cont nental flourish. Most elegant i probably the Sulô in Makati. Th name means torch, and as yo might expect many dishes ar served flambé. Filipino cuisin blends Chinese and Spanish, wit its own spicy leavening. I recom mend especially adobo, a succu lent pork-chicken dish, generously marinated in garlic, vinegar, an herbs. Suckling pig, or lechon, i a national favorite at fiestas, chris tenings, or any gala. Sample also the wide choice of seafood: squid oysters, crab with roe, and lapu-lapu, a popular local fish named after the tribal chieftain who killed Magellan (even resident Spaniards let bygones be bygones), firm, sweet, and delicious.

For a change of pace, there is the chic Madrid for Spanish food, or the open-air Chuck Wagon, specializing, as you might guess, in steaks and American fare. Manila's Chinese population is enormous, and the city can boast some of the best Chinese restaurants outside Hong Kong. The Bay View on Roxas Boulevard is convenient to all the hotels, but far better are some of the tiny hole-in-wall establishments in Chinatown, of which my favorite is the Cavajal.

High-calorie Custom

Filipinos dine late, Spanish-style, and to ward off late-afternoon hunger pangs, they have invented the merienda, a high-tea type custom, devastating to dieters. A traditional merienda leans heavily on sweets, with a few canapé-type goodies included, too. A noteworthy one I enjoyed featured bibinka, a sweet rice pastry, and lumpia, an egg-roll sort of concoction, both merienda staples; squid fritters, delicately fried crisp and thin; ukoy, crisp nests made of rice, rice flour, and shrimp juice, with tiny shrimps on top; and subtly flavored ginger tea. After merienda, a late-afternoon siesta is almost mandatory.

The Taza d'Oro, long a favorite literary hangout, offers a great range of merienda specialties, as well as tempting pies, cakes, and homemade ice creams in such exotic flavors as mango and papaya. Its location is almost too convenient to all the Roxas Boulevard hotels.

With the completion of the new Sheraton (another Locsin project, furnished with stunning hand-woven local fabrics and objects), the hotel crisis will be somewhat alleviated. There have been other structures built in recent years, but the old Manila Hotel remains a favorite with nostalgic visitors. It looks the way you imagine a hotel in the Orient should look, and when there you find it hard to keep from feeling like a character straight out of Somerset Maugham. It has wide porches, bedrooms with high ceilings and circular fans, latticework everywhere, a dream of a swimming pool surrounded by gigantic palms, and a glorious view of Manila Bay and its famous sunsets.

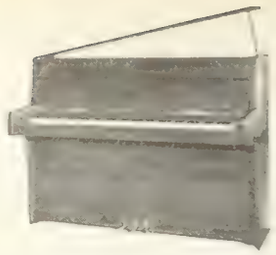
For color, nothing in this color-rich city quite tops the natural beauty of a Manila Bay sunset. I'll match it with any in the world. As the sun begins sinking beyond the water, it suddenly explodes, filling the sky with a deep, all-enveloping pinkness that slowly turns into a deep red.

Another phenomenon is the five o'clock sky. On certain days —and I don't pretend to understand why—the sky overhead lightens and turns a vivid flamingo pink. After a few moments, the pink darkens to a normal late-afternoon pre-twilight sky, as though a light had been turned on, then off again.

Shopping in Manila, both in the markets and main streets, is a fascinating adventure which can uncover many offbeat treasures. A. Mabini (Manila streets are often named after historic heroes) is the shopping street for antiques and contemporary crafts from all over the islands. Look for the soft lacy place mats of piña (pineapple fiber), fine-grained salad bowls and trays of various dramatic Philippine hardwoods, classically beautiful filigree silver pins, pendants and earrings, hand-made at a convent in Northern Luzon.

At Tesoro's, a store with two large branches on the same Mabini block, I succumbed to an exquisite hanging lamp, a large round globe made of translucent capiz shells. (Crated and freighted, it cost far less than it would have here, and makes an unusual and appropriate addition to my contemporary dining room.) Equally irresistible were the laminated capiz shell place mats edged in brass.

Most contemporary of the Mabini craft shops is Lepanto Crafts. Under the guidance of American designer Lucille Foster, skilled Igorot weavers have produced sturdy, beautifully woven fabrics in swinging color combinations and designs. You can buy yard goods, draperies, bedspreads, made-to-order textured hangings, room dividers, and all sorts of decorative accessories here. The Lepanto Boutique next door sells shifts, muumuus, and other casual cottons and silks in the same bright, singing colors.



Magnificent nineteenth-century chest in Manila home of Sr. and Sra. Alberto Quiros was made in Batangas province. Ivory-faced santo is very rare.

Other especially good buys are embroidered goods. Philippine embroidery is exquisite, and you will find it hard to choose among the wide variety of blouses, nightgowns, slips, children's dresses, tablecloths, sheets, and towels on display all along Mabini.

At Tesoro's and Lepanto prices are fixed, but bargaining, that age-old Oriental pastime, is de rigueur almost everywhere else, especially when you are hunting antiques.

Antiquing is a favorite Manila game, with some marvelous buys for the diligent, such as the eighteenth- and nineteenth-century santos. These wooden statues of saints vary greatly in quality, from the crudely carved and worn to the finely preserved, some with delicately painted ivory faces (very rare) and ornate cloth robes (equally rare) still intact. Wouldn't it be a shame to let this natural feeling for music go undeveloped?

If he's at least four, he's ready for a Yamaha piano. Or the revolutionary Yamaha Music Course. (Call your Yamaha dealer to see if the course is available in your area, or soon will be.)

Then test the Yamaha piano. It has an unusually full, rich, ringing tone. And don't think kids can't soon tell the differences in piano tones. They can.

The touch, action, and craftsmanship are just what you'd expect from the world's largest producer of pianos. The family-affordable prices are lower than you'd expect. And Yamaha's 10-year Warranty and unique Service Bond are more than you'd expect.

And don't you think now is the time of decision? Especially for his sake!

dicho on M. H. del Pilar are two of the most reliable, but don't forget to "negotiate."

At Les Dynasties, a shop run by Moros (Mohammedan Filipinos from the South), there are Ming jars, huge old decorated brass bowls and antique gongs of brass. My find there was an old wooden Moro chest, elaborately incised with designs in silver, a real beauty. I searched in vain for a brass or silver sari-manok, a stylized Moro rooster. Finally I found a gaily painted one of wood, not old, but charmingly folk-artish.

Beyond Manila

A little-known buy of Manila is its splendid haute couture. Kingpin couturier for elegant evening clothes is Ramon Valera, but, as a Filipina friend confided to me, "If your personality is not tuned in to his, you'll end up in a pumpkin." Safer, and a model of inspiration and efficiency, is R. T. Paras, run by Mrs. Josefina Gonzalez. If you are recommended by an old customer, you can have something pretty special whipped up there in two days.

Most of the better dressmakers have a wide selection of gorgeous materials to choose from and the skill to copy a photograph in a fashion magazine. Ask to see the native silk, jusi, one of the most flattering dress fabrics ever made. A Manila specialty is the beaded evening dress, which costs about one-third of the U.S. price. Every woman visitor should indulge in a mestiza dress, that Spanish-Philippine hybrid, with the most graceful butterfly sleeves and flowing lines of any dress imaginable. Most men visitors can't resist the coolness and comfort of a barong tagalog, the casual-looking, yet formal national man's shirt. Cut full, worn outside the trousers, the long sleeved barong tagalog is the epitome of air-conditioning, for the fabric is usually a cool jusi or piña.

The Philippines is the tropics, no doubt about it. Yet Manila at times seems like one large air-conditioning unit, for virtually all the public buildings, hotels, restaurants, and theatres are comfortably cool. The hot season is from March through June. In November and through February it is cool enough for a light sweater or stole in the evening. Outside Manila you can rely on either Pacific or mountain breezes to succor you.

It is possible to make short day trips from the city to any number of interesting places. [illegible] Taal, less than an hour away[illegible] real beauty spot. EL ECONOMICS LABORATORY, INC., St. Paul, Minnesota

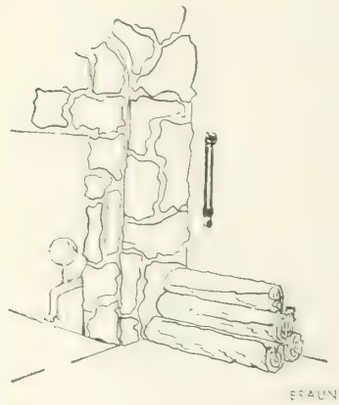
The notes of a happy housekeeper



BY MARY ELIZABETH FALTER

Today we took a walk through the woods and up to the top of the little hill behind the house. The winter view is emerging again. A distant farm is plainly visible now that it has lost its leafy veil of trees. Looking down on the comfortable shape of our own house, we realized we will be spending more and more time close to the hearth. I always look forward to the snug work of preparing for winter. It's a time of industry and pleasant routine, and the quiet enjoyment of home.

* * *

Our handy little butane torch has moved in from the terrace for the winter. All summer we used it to light the barbecue and the hurricane lamps, and now it's giving us wonderful service lighting the fireplace logs. "Star-Fire Blazer" is a slender 15-inch black wand with a brass head at the end where the butane ignites, and a brass ring at the other end so that it can be hung up by the fireplace. And it burns with a steady, adjustable flame which will also be hot enough, says Tom, to thaw the pipes in the laundry if by some unlucky chance they should freeze again this winter.

The whole family plus the Millers will be here for Thanksgiving dinner and I have been inspired to devise an extra-special color scheme for the table, which involved dyeing an old damask tablecloth.

First I washed it to remove all the old starch. Then on an old napkin, I experimented with the dye—the new liquid Rit—until I found just the shade of yellow I wanted. I put the dye in the washing machine first, then the tablecloth (wet), set the machine for the longest setting, and repeated the last cold-water rinse. As the cloth dried, I followed instructions and cleaned out the empty washer by running it through a cycle with hot-water detergent and a half cup of bleach. The whole job went off very smoothly and the old cloth looks so lovely, I'm now trying to think of something else to dye. Liquid Rit comes in 8-ounce bottles that will dye up to 3 yards or 2 pounds of material—and in twelve different colors.

One way to keep silver, brass, and copper gleaming with very little effort is to touch it up between cleanings. We keep the necessary supplies in a basket that we can tote to the job instead of the other way around. The basket holds a batch of soft cloths (worn-out sheets are the very best, for both applying polish and rubbing it up), a roll of paper towels, Q-Tips for corners, a piece of soft flannel for the last fine buffing, and the appropriate cans of polish. I have found that Brasso is good for both copper and brass, and both will stay clean and shiny for months if touched up every now and then. Every once in a while, though, we cart everything to the laundry sink to be washed with soap and water after being cleaned.

* * *

There is no doubt that the best time to do a household job is the minute you notice it needs doing. When it has to wait around to be done, it always seems to take longer and be more work. As I was getting dinner on Monday, for instance, I noticed that the seasoning and spice closet was in rather wild disarray so I started to put it in order then and there while the roast was cooking. Finished in no time at all and moved on to two more cupboards before it was time to make the gravy.

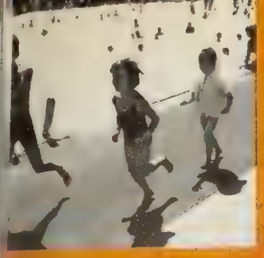
DENTAL CARE CENTER

A wonderful piece of equipment for families with children is a new oral hygiene center that not only contains a cordless power handle into which any standard toothbrush can be fitted and a storage compartment that will keep six brushes firm and dry, but a niche where an unbreakable tumbler is constantly bathed by a germicidal light that kills harmful bacteria. The kit measures 8 inches high, about 9 inches wide, and 4½ inches deep, comes in aqua and white plastic, and can stand on a shelf or hang by its back bracket on the wall. You keep it plugged into your bathroom socket for recharging the power handle and for lighting the germicidal bulb, which lasts for years and is easily replaced. If you want to sanitize your brush, you hold it briefly under the bulb in the tumbler compartment. Four brushes come with the center. Made by Hamilton Beach, it costs $29.95.



Brushes are kept out of sight in the narrow central compartment which you tip forward to open.

The spring in the power handle has adjustable tension so that it can hold any toothbrush you wish to use.

Cold germs will not be passed on by this tumbler because it is stored under a germicidal lamp.

Palisades Amusement Park in N.J. covered its pool area with Four Seasons indoor-outdoor carpeting.

Thousands of people a day splashed salt water. Dripped ice-cream. And spilled drinks on it.

At last. The perfect carpeting even for the kids' room.

Kids can't hurt Four Seasons.™ Nor can adults. Heavy traffic. Spilled food or drinks. Nothing bothers it. Now that family activity has moved indoors, Four Seasons indoor-outdoor carpeting is ideal for areas you never dared carpet before. Adds comfort and warmth to kitchens, bathrooms, basements, playrooms.

Four Seasons is made with face of 100% Marvess* olefin fiber. Spots and stains wipe off. Indoors and out, it resists wear and tear, moisture, mildew, fading, stretching and shrinking. Makes life pretty soft, eh?

FURNITURE FROM ANCIENT EGYPT

proves again nothing is new under the su

The late Hollis S. Baker, who during his lifetime contributed so much to the manufacture and appreciation of fine furniture, and whose abiding fascination with antique design led to the establishment of the Baker Museum in Grand Rapids, Mich., was keenly aware of the serious gap that existed in the published history of furniture development—the pre-Christian era in Egypt, the Middle East, and Greece. Much of the last several years of his life he devoted to painstaking examination of this period, when, indeed, the precise art of manufacturing furniture developed a degree of sophistication not to be seen again for many centuries. The result is his book, *Furniture in the Ancient World, from which these illustrations have been culled. Because of Mr. Baker's remarkable erudition and diligent research, his work may be definitive on this era.

The ancient Egyptians believed in reincarnation. So when a sovereign died, all his earthly possessions—including furniture and household items—were buried with him, for future use, in airtight tombs. Therefore much has been excavated in excellent condition. This is why the book concentrates mainly on the Egyptian civilization of 3100 to 1085 B.C., although the sections on the Middle East and Greece are equally intriguing. All the Egyptian furniture on these pages actually exists—some of it reconstructed from fragments, some restored, and some remarkably preserved in close to its original condition. It is illuminating (and perhaps a trifle humbling) to see how little has changed not only in the use of materials —reed, bamboo, wicker, for instance—but even in the basic furniture design. Much of what was in use 4000 years ago could hold its own with the best of contemporary furnishings.

CHILDREN OF CHIJNAYA AND THEIR TAPESTRIES

The Peruvian spring of 1962 is still remembered with a shiver by the shepherds and farmers who, since Incan days, have grazed their herds and tilled the land on the banks of Lake Titicaca. The rains came and came and came until the great lake spilled over, flooding hundreds of Chijnaya Indians out of their homes into a cold and roofless limbo. An appeal to the Peruvian government was answered by a gift of 1,200 acres of land far enough away from the beautiful but unpredictable Titicaca to be free of flood menace. There was built the new village of Chijnaya.

The Nativity, guarded by stars and llamas

Today, young as it is, the community is self-sufficient, with a house for every family, a school, a health center, community buildings. Crops burgeon and the livestock is sleek. For the first time in Andean history, all the children in the village are able to attend school, and all of them do. The attendance record is exemplary. But even though such crafts as spinning alpaca yarn and weaving shepherd's jackets have been introduced to increase the community's income, it is the children of the village who, because of their astonishing creativity, have held the limelight for the past two years.

Their mentor is Robert Purser, a Peace Corps volunteer. It was he who had the imagination to urge the children to embroider designs on homespun cloth—a suggestion they found both intriguing and intimidating. Few of them had ever touched a crayon or paint brush to paper, much less wielded a needle. But they were game. Armed with yarns, needles, homespun, and a lesson or two in a few basic stitches, they fell to, and made a bit of Peruvian history. If, at the beginning, the workmanship was crude (which it is no longer), the designs were delightful and have remained so. Knowing nothing

Mrs. Murphy's new bedroom carpet is Mrs. Murphy's old living room carpet. It will lead a quieter life now, but it has its memories. Mrs. Murphy, like many owners of Acrilan, has discovered that old carpets made with Acrilan® acrylic in the pile don't die; they move upstairs. In the living room Mrs. Murphy has replaced Acrilan with Acrilan. After all, she's lived and learned.

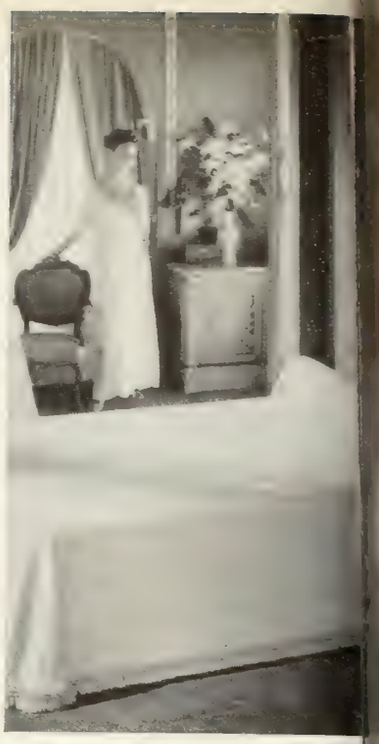
of any world except their own, the children—like Van Gogh at Arles—very wisely pictured only what they saw—the llama in the front yard (llamas are the dogs and cats of Peru), houses and condors, churches and bulls and roosters—a small world, but wide enough to be enchanting when seen through young eyes. As the children gained confidence, their artistry increased, and eventually, the little tapestries were taken to Cuzco and Lima to be displayed in the marketplace. They sold like hot cakes, orders poured into Chijnaya for more, and today over 200 children from six to sixteen spend a goodly portion of their free time at the art that gives them an outlet for their instinctive sense of color and design as well as enough pocket money for the girls to buy themselves new bowler hats (exactly like their mothers'), and the boys, new shepherd's jackets.

No child who has ever tried to make a tapestry has failed. They work in groups, laughing or quietly intent, criticizing each other's work as often as they praise it. In a beguiling blend of naïveté and sophistication, the designs are worked in marvelous colors—magentas and poison green, oranges and passion-fruit purples. Yet the tapestries are never garish. The children's Incan heritage of innate taste seems always to guide them.



Because of the tireless productivity of these young craftsmen, the tapestries are now burgeoning in enough volume to be sold in North America where their touch of exoticism makes them a very special gift for a very special person. Modestly priced from $12.50 to about $25, but never quite the same size —roughly, 20 by 20 inches—they can be found at John Wanamaker in Philadelphia, The Botolph Group in Boston, and Halls in Kansas City, Mo. Should these sources be too far afield for you, you can write to the Andean Foundation, 140 East Seventeenth Street, New York, N. Y., 10003, for the name of the dealer nearest you. If you feel that only seeing is believing, you may very possibly come across an exhibition of the tapestries—if you have not already—at one of the countrywide showings sponsored by the Traveling Exhibition Service of the Smithsonian Institution for 1966 and 1967.

DESIGN WINNERS

Cited for good looks as well as practicality

M. THOMAS

Convinced that the unsung helpers that do so much to smooth our daily living should be as good to look at as they are to use, the National Housewares Manufacturers Association has established a new award program. From nearly 300,000 products displayed at last summer's housewares market, a panel of judges nominated ninety-four, ranging from pots and pans to an automatic blanket control, which they considered to be not only well made and practical, but commendably designed. All are being displayed this fall in stores throughout the country as the "Design in Housewares" exhibit. Here is a sampling.

LAUNDRY BASKET that looks like wicker, but, because it is plastic, is considerably lighter. It might be equally useful in a garden, toting leaves. Capacity is 1½ bushels and the colors are natural wicker, white, and tobacco brown. Fesco. $2.

CARPET CLEANER that works dry-cleaning powder into a rug with the aid of six rotating brushes. By Bissell. $13.

BATH SET in unbreakable thermal plastic, prettily matched in pink, turquoise, or gold with white stripes. Set consists of a tumbler, a holder for a toilet bowl brush and a dispenser for facial tissues, plus a shower mat and wastebasket. Colony. Set, $17.

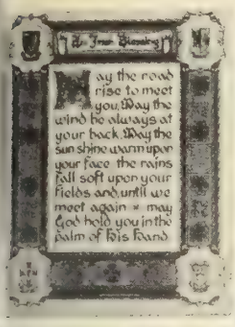
HOURGLASS STOOL of solid plastic that will not chip or peel. It might be used in bathroom, bedroom, or outdoors on the terrace. 17 inches high. By American Plastic Products. $10.

PORTABLE PHONOGRAPH, a compact, four-speed, automatic that looks like an attaché case when closed, measures $18\frac{1}{4}$ by $9\frac{1}{2}$ by $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches high. Westinghouse. $45.

BATHROOM SCALE with a fake-fur cover that might be matched to a rug and is easily removable for laundering. Borg-Erickson. $14.

FOLDING DUSTPAN that folds in the middle when you squeeze the handle, making it easier to empty without spilling. Foley. $1.

OUTDOOR THERMOMETER graded from 120 to 32 degrees Fahrenheit (freezing) on one side, and from 32 degrees to 40 degrees below zero on the other. Anodized aluminum with heavy-gauge magnifying thermometer tube. Springfield. $2.



HIGH-INTENSITY LAMP that casts its beam of light directly onto a book or piece of needlework. Ladybug by Tensor. $15.

RECHARGEABLE FLASHLIGHT of durable turquoise plastic, powered by nickel cadmium batteries that can be recharged by plugging the unit into any AC outlet. Gulton Industries. $8.

FOR SCRABBLE FANS WHO LOVE NUMBERS

NUMBLE

The newest, most challenging numbers game. NUMBLE will sharpen the wits and provide hours of exciting fun for the whole family. It's like Scrabble, and a little like crosswords—but it's all done with numbers. Up to four players can match wits to try to get the highest score. The rules are simple: The first player places from two to six numbered tiles on the board in ascending or descending order. The catch is that the total of all the tiles must be divisible by three. Then, each player in turn builds numbers on numbers, trying to take advantage of the bonus squares that can send your score soaring. NUMBLE is boxed, comes complete with attractive playing board, 87 tiles and four tile racks.

'INSTANT' MEMORY COURSE

YOU CAN HAVE AN

INSTANT MEMORY

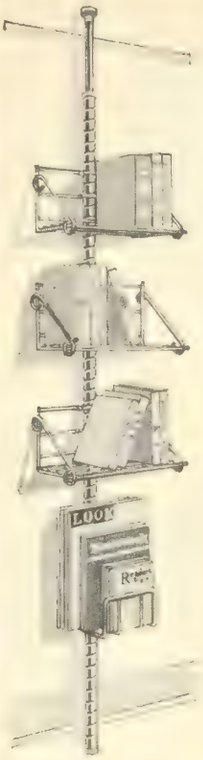
IN ONE HOUR

Amazing method taught by Harry Lorayne is one of the most remarkable and yet simple means of improving your memory. Listen to his record and realize how you can improve your memory in one hour.

When a man writes a book it is news. When the book is published it's news. BUT WHEN THE BOOK SELLS OVER ONE HALF MILLION COPIES and it's selling greater than ever, — that's really NEWS!

The title of this book is "HOW TO DEVELOP A SUPER-POWER MEMORY" and its author is HARRY LORAYNE. This man has condensed this book into one Long Playing Record that lasts one hour. The first half hour: HOW TO BURN FACTS INTO YOUR MEMORY AT A SINGLE GLANCE.

Imagine to be able to make a list of shopping items and be able to remember them in sequence as you've written them down without referring to your list! Think of setting out for your job and being able to remember the plans outlined for the day without referring to a single note.



THE SECOND HALF OF HIS RECORD DEALS WITH DOUBLING YOUR MEMORY FOR NAMES, FACES AND FACTS.

Think of the vistas that can be opened to you by merely listening and concentrating on his method of association in order to prove the positive fact that anyone can REMEMBER!

They say that seeing is believing, well, let us prove to you that hearing is believing — Buy this remarkable record today and prove to yourself how easily you can improve your memory—not only in business or school but find out how you can become the most popular person socially—through the graciousness of remembering the names of the many people you have met earlier in the evening.

Important European Art Purchase (Not Reproductions)

Original Oil Paintings from 28 Artists from France, Austria, Holland only $6.95

Beautifully Framed in Rich Grained Walnut Finish. Each oil Painting Large 12" x 15"

Imagine! Original oil paintings (not reproductions) at the incredible low price of just $6.95. And each oil painting (12"x15") comes to you beautifully framed in richly grained walnut finish hardwood! Oil paintings you will be proud to hang in your home for their exquisite full color beauty! Mail the coupon today.

Possible Increase In Value

This remarkable value is possible because a team of art buyers searched the studios, workshops and galleries of the important and promising young artists of Europe. The artists finally selected are from France, Holland & Austria. They are fine and unusually talented craftsmen . . . men who we think may achieve greatness! Paintings are selected not only for their exquisite full color beauty, but for their possible increase in monetary value.

Each Painting On Extra Heavy Canvas

The oil paintings selected for this special offering are beautiful landscapes, florals & fruits. They will beautify any decor (decorators are among our best customers) and win the praise and admiration of friends. They could be a snow-capped peak in Switzerland, a farm scene in France, a dazzling lagoon in Italy, a bowl of fruit executed with Renoir brilliance. Each painting is on extra heavy canvas, signed by the artist. Country of origin is indicated on the back. No two alike.

Hallo
Kansas City

NOW STAPLES ARE OLD-FASHIONED

Our Paper Welder makes staples and paper clips passe'. This helpful desk accessory crimps papers together neatly and crisply with a woven seam—all at the push of a lever. Since it crimps rather than clips, it never runs out or needs a refill. Later, papers can be taken apart without tearing. Fun to use, our Paper Welder is a handsome, functional design in bright chrome, 4½" long. $13.95. An essential for the executive; a unique, useful gift, too, for students, club-women, or home manager. Mail orders, please add 50¢ for postage and packing.

THE SECRET OF EASY, GOURMET COOKING

Authentic Oriental Wok

The secret of truly fabulous oriental cuisine lies within the 12" diameter of our hand-made, heavy steel Wok. The Wok is specially constructed to tender-cook meat or fish, yet keeps vegetables fresh and crisp. Just add a little oil to the bottom of the pan; as the food begins to brown, whisk it up the sides to complete cooking. Oil drains down, leaving only the succulent full flavor of gourmet cooking. Comes complete with ring stand, so cooking can be done on any flame burner—even Sterno. So easy—guests can cook their own!

A rare value at $7.98 postpaid including fabulous oriental recipes.

Naugahyde® doesn't have to look practical.

But it is practical. This beautiful Victorian love seat actually washes clean with a sponge, and takes scuffs in stride. Yet people don't see it that way. That's the beauty. Naugahyde always looks rich. Like our Zodiac pattern, above. Or any of our other 600 patterns and colors. Before you buy a new piece of furniture or reupholster, look at the Naugahyde swatch book. And fool people by being practical.

CONTINENTAL CLASSICS

'English Squire' FABRICS

Here are just a few of the many beautiful new additions to our tremendously popular "Continental Classics" collection of Waverly fabrics for slipcovers, draperies and bedspreads. This group has a distinctly British accent, with patterns and colors inspired by a Waverly designer's discoveries in English manor houses, estates and charming countryside homes. They're all Scotchgard® protected against spots and stains and modestly priced too. If you're ready to make any changes in the look of your home, be sure to see Waverly's Continental Classic "English Squire" fabrics at your favorite department or drapery fabric store.

COMMEMORATIVE PLAQUES

A 1-time collectors issue—only a limited number available in this country.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL

This is the most recent commemorative collector's plate, just received by us. It is in traditional blue and white Wedgwood jasper with a handsome raised silhouette of the late statesman, circled by a raised oak leaf and acorn border. A good example of Wedgwood craftsmanship. An original to treasure; only 300 available. 4¼″ diameter. $6.50 ppd.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

This limited edition, authorized by the Shakespeare Anniversary Council, commemorates the playwright on the 400th anniversary of his birth. In the traditional blue-and-white pattern with sculptured raised silhouette circled by raised oak leaf and acorn border. Limited quantity for collectors. 4¼″ diameter. $6.50 ppd.

PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY

This is indeed a collector's plate, one of a limited edition made in England by Josiah Wedgwood & Sons in their traditional blue and white pattern. It bears a sculptured raised silhouette of the late President, encircled by a raised oak leaf and acorn border like the others. It is a work of art, a real conversation piece for your shelf. Only 200 available. 4¼″ diameter. $6.50 ppd.

Each is $6.50 ppd; all 3, $18.95. Orders filled in the order they are received.

RYA RUGS
FROM SCANDINAVIA

THE PERFECT GIFT FOR A CREATIVE FRIEND!

This year why not choose something very special to give your friends who enjoy handicrafts?

900 years ago the Vikings made RYA wall-hangings and rugs to warm their draughty homes. The ancient art of making RYAs has been kept alive in Denmark to this day, and its popularity is world-wide.

Perhaps you have seen a RYA in an exclusive decorator's shop; if so, we're sure you have been impressed by the lush texture and deep, vibrant colors. COPENHAGEN IMPORTS now makes it possible for you to give one of these magnificent RYAs to a friend for a fraction of the cost. You will be giving him or her many hours of enjoyment and satisfaction.

The CUM RYA kit comes complete with backing material, skeins of specially spun RYA yarn, an easy-to-follow pattern, needles and a pile ruler. The yarn is moth-proof and color-fast, so the finished RYA will last a lifetime.

201. RYA wall-hanging SUNFLOWER $49.85
Available only in size 2 ft. 8 in. x 4 ft. 4 in., ¾" pile. A golden sunflower on a vibrant blue-green background. (See the article in this issue of HOUSE & GARDEN)

CUM RYA rug GREENLAND (shown below) is a blend of black, white, and greys, with accents of navy blue.

Sizes available:

202. 2 ft. x 4 ft., 2¾" pile $ 42.80
203. 2 ft. 8 in. x 4 ft. 4 in., 2¾" pile . 57.30

FREE Before You Decide To Buy the Executive MEMOCORD Recorder

The amazing XJE-IV Solid State Miniature Memocord — the Atomic Age Recorder with built-in Microphone and Speaker – will dictate, record and transcribe uninterruptedly for one full hour.

THE SPACE-AGE MINIATURE SOLID STATE RECORDER

This precision instrument, not much bigger than a package of cigarettes, is a must for every businessman, professional, student and teacher. Ideal for correspondence, dictating, transcribing. Use it to record lectures, business conferences, seminars. The amazing Memocord's faithful voice reproduction will keep for you permanent records of conversations, oral agreements, depositions, verbal on-the-spot reports of accidents or events. This remarkable instrument will even pickup and record both ends of a phone conversation. Keep it at your side constantly; use it anywhere, anytime — in your office, home, car, airplane, hotel room. A permanent record memorizer and keeper that can save you and even help you make thousands of dollars each year.

TRY BEFORE YOU BUY DECIDE FOR YOURSELF:

You can find any number of excellent machines on the market that will meet your needs to varying degrees . . .

Most of these are larger and much more costly, and even though larger they will generally only record and play for 15 minutes before the tape needs changing.
Frankly, these may be just too much machine for most executives. Our market surveys reveal that our smaller, lighter, and far less costly device better suits the needs of 87% of potential owners. The XJE-IV isn't the most expensive machine, but it does have excellent VOICE FIDELITY, your single most important consideration. The MEMOCORD XJE-IV operates for one full hour on a reel of inexpensive, infinitely re-usable magnetic tape. Its size and weight let you carry it anywhere, use it everywhere. But don't take our word for it; we want you to try it FREE for 2 weeks. Use it, compare it, work with it; if it isn't everything we claim, if it doesn't meet your every requirement, simply return the unit; there are no strings or obligations. If you decide to keep it — it costs only $79.95 plus shipping and handling. Complete price tax-deductible if purchased for business or profession.

MEMOCORD U.S. PAT. #196-514 (ONLY 3″ x 4½″ x 1½″)

Operates on battery, weighs 11½ oz., records or plays back uninterruptedly for 1 full hour. This precision all-transistor machine with a 3-year warrantee on parts has features that can only be found in large costly units:

- 5-position channel selector
- Multi-directional pivot drive mechanism
- Automatic tape-counter index indicator window
- Unitized recording/playback/erase assembly

How to GROW SLIM With Martinis & Whipped Cream:

YOURS TO EXAMINE FREE—FOR 10 DAYS

News about a revolutionary reducing plan, based on a remarkable biochemical discovery, and now available in a new book which we invite you to read for 10 days at our risk.

INCREDIBLE BUT TRUE! You may eat and drink foods like martinis and whipped cream and grow slim, says Sidney Petrie, the man who reduces people who can't reduce or stay reduced by any other method – people referred to him by doctors!

What's more, Petrie says you may eat more than you ever thought possible . . . at TV time, between meals, at fancy restaurants . . . and never gain an ounce!

It isn't the fact that you consume calories that matters, says Petrie. What matters is the kind of calories you consume. All foods contain just three kinds of calories. To lose weight you need eliminate only one of them!

This is the* CARBO-CAL . . . the calorie that piles on pounds . . . the unsuspected calorie, found even in such so-called "diet foods" as skimmed milk, carrot sticks, and—of all things – melba toast!

Now, in the most thrilling book you've ever seen – a fascinating, down-to-earth, easy-to-read book – Sidney Petrie explains this amazing fact about your body's chemistry, and shows you immediately:

- How to eat three good, full meals a day and STILL lose weight safely, comfortably, steadily –without having to count calories, go to bed hungry, measure food helpings—without doing anything at all, except cutting out a few Carbo-Cal foods you're probably not fond of anyway!
- How, having once attained the weight you want, you can keep it and still eat hearty meals – even frankfurters and fried eggs, whipped cream, butter, etc.—without putting back the weight you've lost!
- How you can eat every kind of fried food except one, every kind of appetizer except certain soups, actually eat custard desserts, ice cream, drink cocktails, enjoy steaks, and much more—and stay slim!
- Why it doesn't matter how you prepare food, and why you don't have to follow any special recipes—so long as you follow one simple rule!
- How to walk into any restaurant—and be limited in your food choice ONLY by price!
- All the things you CAN eat, as opposed to other methods that tell you only what you can't eat!
- How to recognize foods that have the Carbo-Cal, avoid them, and keep eating the "good" calorie foods.
- Why foods that contain the Carbo-Cal don't really satisfy you even though they leave pounds of fat on you—while good calorie foods make you feel like you've had a good, satisfying meal, even though the body quickly consumes them!
- Why doctors may recommend this diet to people with various glandular troubles who could otherwise eat practically nothing on a "regular diet"—and why this diet system may be used by those with low blood sugar counts —and by vegetarians!
- How this revolutionary reducing plan is linked to a low cholesterol count, better skin condition, resistance to colds, freedom from minor aches and pains, increased virility, and a 15 to 25% longer life span!
- Why many sauces, gravies and dressings—taboo by other methods—are perfectly acceptable by this one (and this includes one of the greatest, pleasantest surprises of all, if you've ever suffered through a starvation diet)!

Makes Weight-Reduction Easy, Pleasant, Effortless

The new Carbo-Cal method is backed by case histories of lost weight totaling 20,000 pounds. The author of this book, Sidney Petrie, perfected this remarkable method after 8 years of private practice involving difficult obesity cases referred to him by physicians and other specialists.

During that time, his method melted away the pounds like magic, helping people even the reducing "experts" couldn't assist! What's more, close observation by physicians found no ill effects. (In fact, many difficulties being treated lessened or even disappeared with the new flood of vitality that accompanied loss of weight.)

That's why we urge you to read and use this book at our risk for ten days. It will really open your eyes to a breath-takingly effective reducing system that helps you reduce without drugs or pills, fatiguing exercises, starvation meals, or even straining the will-power. And, perhaps best of all, weight loss may be yours permanently.

That's right! After you've reached the slimness you want, Sidney Petrie promises you this —

"You can enjoy a hearty breakfast, a mid-morning coffee break, a Madison Avenue lunch, an afternoon cocktail hour, a gourmet dinner, and a TV snack—and still remain slender!"

CASE HISTORIES OF CARBO-CAL IN ACTION

CASE HISTORY OF HELEN G., typist. Weight: 141. Diagnosis: 20 lbs. overweight, severe migraine and high blood pressure. Use of standard thousand-calorie-a-day diet brought no weight loss. Treatment with Carbo-Cal system; 20 lbs. lost in 2 months; migraine vanishes; blood pressure down.

CASE HISTORY OF JEAN J., housewife. Problem: developed serious weight condition after birth of second child. Treatment: various diet systems involving pills, exercise, even hospitalization. Result: No weight loss. Treatment with Carbo-Cal system; all excess weight lost in only 9 weeks. Later check-backs showed loss permanent, no weight having been added after end of treatment.

CASE HISTORY OF FRANK ST. J., accountant. Weight 275. Active life, although tied down to desk job. Although careful about calories, remained overweight. Doctor switched him to treatment with Carbo-Cal system: 105 pounds lost in just under 5 months. Loss of weight seems permanently retained.

1965 JOHN F. KENNEDY COIN SET

UNCIRCULATED

On July 31 the Treasury stopped producing these 1965 dated coins, making this one of the shortest mintages on record. 1965 coins have always been difficult to find — especially the Kennedy half dollar. This scarcity should now increase. These brilliant, uncirculated sets are an investment in your coin future . . . almost certain to become more valuable. In a sparkling, protective plastic holder.

FAMILY ARMS RESEARCH REPORT!

A unique service for those who wish to order the coat of arms recorded for their family name. The 'Research Report-folio' consists of the findings of the research departments investigation of the name submitted in your order. This includes the heraldic description and the source of reference where the arms are recorded. You receive a comprehensive drawing which indicates the colors and illustrates the charges on the shield. The supplementary material outlines the symbolic meanings of the majority of heraldic elements found on a coat of arms.

For those who wish to have a report-folio and drawing of the arms of any name prior to ordering, you may request this service and the completed report will be sent to you. For this service there is a fee of $5.00 ($2.00 of which is deducted on future orders. No additional charges if you care not to order thereafter.) Please allow the customary 4 week delivery time. ices to go? Go ahead!

Dinner will be ready and waiting automatically–with a Roper Gas range: first to bring you twin "Cook & Keep"® new color: Avocado . . . also available in Coppertone or White

Now you see it, now you don't! Mirror fronts on ovens reflect your kitchen–until oven light is lit. Then you see through to what's cooking inside. Turn light off, mirror's back.

Set it–then forget it! That's the wonderful worry-free convenience you get with "Cook & Keep"–now yours on a top burner as well as in the extra-capacity lower oven. It's the easier time-saving way to cook. And only new Roper Gas ranges have it!

Whole meals can be prepared in advance, timed to cook while you're away. When food is done just to your liking, the heat turns down automatically to the true holding temperature that's possible only with Gas.

Another Gas exclusive: no smoke or splatter when you broil. Big separate compartment broils to perfection with the door closed. Oven-cleaning is a snap, too, with disposable aluminum liners. See this great new Roper range at your Gas Company or your dealer's. AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION, INC.

For clean, modern cooking

Gas makes the big difference . . . costs less, too

SWEDISH DISCOVERY BRINGS RELIEF FROM

BACK FATIGUE DISTRESS

When your back muscles ache with fatigue from bad posture stress, strain, or tension, why endure hours of discomfort? Relax on a KIFA Backrest and enjoy wonderful, soothing relief.

This remarkable KIFA Backrest, created by Swedish physical therapists, is designed to support the spine's natural contour and muscle structure. Like a cradling hand, it helps over-tense, over-strained muscles to relax naturally...without belts, heat or drugs. Helps encourage your back to resume its normal good posture, when you lie on it.

Try a KIFA Backrest. Rest on it. Use it in your chair. See how quickly posturally fatigued back muscles feel soothed and relaxed. Great for the whole family. This light, strong, preformed wood laminate fits any figure. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED! Agree it's wonderful, or money refunded without question. $9.95 postpaid

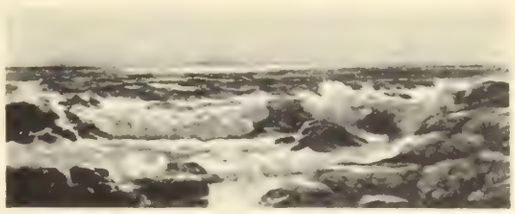
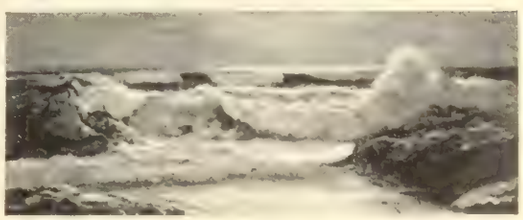
Splendors of the Sea



At Last! 4 Famous Artists' Greatest Triumphs! The Brilliant Climax of Lifetimes Dedicated To Painting the Natural Splendors of the Sea.



"Evening Tide", M. Myer

"Rockbound Surf", Westal

"The Sea in Sunset", Robert Wood

"The Golden Sea", Philip Shumaker

Fabulously Beautiful Original Oil Paintings NOW YOURS as Full Color Murals all 4 for Only $3

NEVER before in the history of art have 4 famous artists so successfully captured the exquisite beauty and grandeur of the swift-changing moods of the sea.

Robert Wood, America's most famous seascape painter, magically shows how a setting sun turns the whole sea copper. Prize-winning artist Philip Shumaker paints the rugged New England coast so faithfully you can almost hear the crash of wave on rock. Westal's and Myer's expert marine studies, too, are treasured by art collectors and home decorators.

But the small black and white illustrations here cannot show you the beauty and enchantment of the sea captured by the artists. Only when you see the exquisite changing colors in large full-scale can you appreciate the beauty and color they will bring to your home. These are the artists' greatest achievements—the exciting climax of 4 lifetimes dedicated to painting the natural splendors of the Sea. We are privileged to offer these magnificent reproductions to you.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED

Act now. Take advantage of this Special offer by ordering your full-color reproductions now while supply lasts. We will rush all 4 to you for $3.00 postpaid. Each Giant Mural is a full 13" x 31" and you will be thrilled with the fresh color and beauty they will add to your home or office.

WHAT CAN YOU BUY TO:

1. Add beauty to your hair;
2. Improve cooking and beverages;
3. Increase the life of stockings and lingerie;
4. Protect baby's formula;
5. Make your own "distilled" water?

It is the versatile Spa® Filter!

Used for years in laboratories to deliver pure water from any tap, instantly. The universal Spa now adapts to any household faucet.

Wherever pure water will improve results, you should use a Spa. It is a 3 in 1 household development that is revolutionary in performance. It easily fits on your kitchen tap and with a choice of 3 different filter elements you get water that is:

(1) free of chlorine, bad taste, bad odor, color, gases or sediment, or
(2) de-mineralized or "distilled water" in limited quantities, or
(3) high fluoride removal.

The SPA is made of Celcon*, and will not rust or corrode. It filters hot or cold water and can be washed in hot soapy water just like other kitchen utensils. Can be cleaned in seconds. Comes in 4 beautiful colors, white, aqua, beige and yellow. PRICE $9.95 parcel post prepaid, complete with universal faucet adapter, and complete set of 6 elements.

(Price, $12.95 if you wish to be billed.) Full purchase price refunded if not satisfied.

"The thing"

Feed coin into bank . . . "Eternal" revenue man's hand emerges, grabs coin . . . puts it away!

No one can resist seeing this ingenious bank quiver and shake . . . as you feed a coin to set gears grinding! Then—it's fun-and-snatch-time. Box starts to shake . . . lid slowly rises . . . and a pale green hand reaches out and quickly grabs the coin . . . just in time to miss lid banging tight (with coin safely banked within)! Children can't resist saving this way. It makes a unique business gift. It's a rousing conversation desk piece . . . and it's absolutely diabolical and a sure fire party pepper-upper on your home bar. Opens from bottom. Uses just 2 "C" batteries (not included). About 4"x4½"x3½".

The Art of SCRIMSHAW

. . . developed on the rolling ships of old New Bedford has almost disappeared. Only a few men still follow in the footsteps of the seamen who painstakingly and with great delicacy engraved the ivory from the whales they caught.

Our work is done in this ancient tradition, on genuine ivory and entirely by hand.

The decoration on each piece we show is an old whaling ship. Mountings are heavily gold-plated. The ultimate gift for those you particularly wish to please.

Personalized Electronic

MESSAGE MINDER

Why waste time scrawling a hurriedly written note that may prove difficult for someone else to read? Merely flipping a button and speaking into Message Minder creates a sharp & clear voice message on a tape that never needs changing. When the absentee returns he merely turns the switch which automatically causes the message to repeat continually. Another flip of the button erases the message clearing it for the next. Compact, completely portable and simple to operate. Uses standard batteries. Batteries & tape included. 6" tall x 3" x 2". Makes a wonderful gift—put greeting on tape before giving. Personalized with raised gold initials. SAME DAY SHIPMENT.

Merry Christmas

You'll be saying it a thousand times in a thousand different ways. You'll be writing it on cards to friends at home and at the end of long, warm letters sent to the other end of the earth. You'll call it out to people at the market . . . in the five-and-ten . . . and in church. You will carol it, shout it, whisper it, proclaim it with a great big guess-what smile. You'll wrap it up in tiny packages for people you'll see on Christmas Eve and you'll tie it to the weighty unwrappables that will answer big, big dreams.

Among the nicest ways to say Merry Christmas to those on your gift list who truly love their homes . . . who spend lots of time and effort making them beautiful indoors and out . . . who delight in sharing the pleasures of their houses with frequent guests . . . is a gift-subscription to House & Garden.

Giving House & Garden is so easy. (And inexpensive: 12 issues for $5.) Simply fill in and mail the order card facing this page. We do everything else for you. We sign your gift cards, as you tell us, and mail them for at-Christmas delivery. Then, once a month for twelve months, we'll mail another of your gifts of House & Garden . . . echoing your wish of Merry Christmas to each friend throughout a

THIS IS A MAGNIFICENTLY-DETAILED 1/24th SCALE MODEL

1896 ENGLISH LIVE-STEAM TRACTOR

COMPLETE TO BRASS BOILER, COPPER STEAM PIPES,
STEEL FIRE BOX

Raises steam in 3 minutes, travels 1/3 mile in a 10-minute run, can be used to operate other stationary models

The English traditionally make fine toys. This is one, beautiful in gleaming brass and copper, with flywheel and other parts in green and red enamel. Everything works as original did in 1896. Develops strong 1/15 hp at 3000 rpm, will haul a good-sized log. Brass steam whistle blows, cylinders and pistons are brass, axles and shafts steel. You still see the old ones in the English countryside winching timber, etc. It was a brute, and this is some toy. 1 ft. long. Uses alcohol. $35 and worth it!

POVERTY PUP

THE DOG THAT PUTS THE BITE ON YOUR FRIENDS

NOW!
A Poverty Program of Your Own

To put your program into effect, suggest to friends that they put a little "dough" into poor pup's bowl. Poverty Pup barks a little. . . . Then slowly cautiously emerges from the dog house. . . . Grabs the coin and quickly jumps back inside. . . . Keep feedin' 'em, he keeps eatin' 'em. . . . Pennies, nickels or dimes. . . . The dog with the perfect "scent". . . . No bones about it!

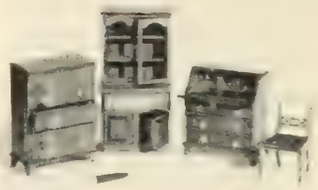
THE ONE GIFT EVERY MAN NEEDS NOW IN STAINLESS STEEL



Used and recommended by Doctors as the one SAFE, easy way to remove unsightly hair from both nose and ears. Blunt end scissors can't cut or stick. Spoon shaped ends push flesh away from cutting edge. Curved blades permit cutting where needed. Doctors warn that pulling hair from nose or use of pointed scissors is dangerous and can produce serious infection. For fastidious men who care how they look; send only $2.00 each; or buy 3 for $5.50 postpaid.

The great PATTERN EXPLOSION

Some say op art triggered the fireworks, but if you think back, you'll recall that the pattern build-up began long before that. You could see it coming when, after years of discreet one-color carpeting, we began to like the look of pattern on the floor. When the ban on hanging pictures against wallpaper was lifted (whoever decreed it in the first place?) and pattern breezed up the wall. When wallpaper was emulated by fabric and fabric didn't stop until it wrapped the whole room, furniture and all.

Today pattern is exploding all around us. Bold patterns, prim patterns, big patterns, little patterns, stripes, checks, dots, scrolls, geometrics, florals, and animals' spots. More pattern than anyone has seen at one time for the past hundred years.

Certainly taste has changed. It always does. But the human eye has not changed. As far as we know, it never does. The eye delights in pattern—even pattern on pattern. But there is a point beyond which it becomes too much for the eye and turns into chaos. Then, as far as the eye is concerned, pattern ceases to exist.

Opposites, however, usually go hand in hand. If you take a close look at the rooms and houses in this issue, you will see that the explosion of pattern has already been countered by a return to one-color unfigured surfaces, plushy, perhaps, or sleek and shiny, but indubitably plain. Walls that might once have been covered in fabric (only yesterday, in fact) have been painted an even color or white. Chairs that might once have been covered in a patterned weave or a print have been upholstered in unfigured velvet or smooth leather. All the better to show off the pattern that appears somewhere else. For just as light is hard to assess without shadow, so pattern is hard to savor without plain accompaniments to set it off. Even those traditional enthusiasts for pattern—the master decorators of the Middle East—are aware of this. Turn to page 236 and you'll see a contemporary house where connoisseurs of the richest pattern legacy in the world show they know when to stop.

BROWN +WHITE

Almost as exciting as finding a new stripe in the rainbow is the discovery of a fresh new color team like this year's dashing partnership of brown and white. In its new role, brown snaps right out of its old neutrality and reveals itself as a positive color that is rich, warm, and clean. Sharpened by just a glimmer of white, a mostly brown room can be marvelously hospitable, while a mostly white room seasoned with small parts of brown can be as subtly luscious as fresh-from-the-dairy cream. Or brown and white can work together on equal terms, as they do in the room on our cover, their union all the stronger for a few clear bright contrasting accents.

The browns that appear in almost any room—furniture finishes and the rich gleam of wood floors—are heartily welcomed in a brown and white room as active members of the two-color scheme. Leather, tortoise shell, and fur, all brown as nature made them, contribute their varied textures also to the brown side of the team. A brown and white print can be as lively as that enduring classic, black and white. And brown silks and velvets can be distinctly ladylike, especially when they upholster chairs with delicately shaped white lacquered frames.

Rescued at last from being type cast as the suitably earthy tone for a strictly masculine room, brown, brightened with white, can create any mood you want in any room in the house. In a living room brown can be tremendously elegant. In a dining room, its mood can be genial, and in a bedroom, soft and pretty.

You can dramatize brown plus white by adding accents of bold contrasting colors

Browns and whites sparked by a few strokes of H&G's Ultramarine Blue give an invitingly mellow air to Mr. and Mrs. David Kassin's New York living room. The effect is all the richer because the browns include a whole range of textures — natural linen on the walls, suede on the chairs, barundiki fur on the pillows, carved walnut in the old French cabinet, sleek beige travertine framing the fireplace. Interior design by Joseph Braswell Associates.

OTTO MAYA

MAYA

To a mostly white room you can add soft strokes of creamy brown

Whites that run a gamut of textures from a rough white-painted brick wall to a glossy ceramic tile floor establish a cool, quiet mood in the Manhattan town house living room of interior designer Howard Perry Rothberg. Against the whiteness, the soft browns—suede-covered armchairs, an antique Spanish table, a trompe-l'oeil painting of a post box—stand out as distinctly as the white-matted, white-framed sepia drawings on the walls.

For shopping information, see page 306.

You can light up a mostly brown room with sparks of radiant white

The opulent one-color look (see September H&G) transforms a small living room into a velvety jewel box for white bibelots and white-matted pictures. The room's narrow dimension is expanded visually by a mirror on one wall and, on the opposite wall, a coat of H&G's Espresso in a finish as glossy as patent leather (radical departure after years of flat wall finishes). Contrasting with this sleek surface are a mélange of furry textures: suede on the sofa, an ocelot throw, an ocelot-patterned wool rug. Interior design by Burt Wayne.

SBY

In a bedroom, you can team white with dark rich browns or pale cool beiges

Ticking-stripe fabric on the walls and a dark stained floor make a marvelously sympathetic setting for antiques in fabric designer Doy Rittgers' New York bedroom. For bedspread and hangings he chose a companion fabric—the ticking stripe overprinted with a floral motif—then lined the curtains with white banded with the plain stripe. Interior design by Louis M. Bromante.

Pale clear beige teamed with white can be as cool and serene as the dark browns are warm and rich. In designer Howard Perry Rothberg's bedroom in his Coconut Grove, Fla., house, beige and white striped fabric covers the bed and one whole wall (cupboard doors and all), and hangs at the windows. Everything else is white—but the pale combination is rescued from blandness by the leopard rug and narrow brown band on headboard.

You can link adjoining rooms with complementary versions of brown and white

In the tandem living and dining rooms of painter Ralph DuCasse's house in San Francisco, two versions of brown and white complement each other like the two sides of a coin. In the mostly white living room, ABOVE, the browns are restricted to a few pieces of furniture, sofa cushions, bands on the curtains. Beyond the velvet portières, the dining room, RIGHT, is like a photo-negative, —mostly brown except for ceiling, table top, a few accessories. Paintings by Mr. DuCasse.

HOUSE OF MANY TREASURES

In Beirut, a fascinating blend of Middle Eastern enchantment and European elegance attuned to the taste and tempo of the twentieth century

Intricate arabesques in wood and stone, inlaid marble floors and fountains that conjure up the opulence and ease of the Arabian Nights tales, an exceptional collection of Phoenician, Egyptian, and Roman artifacts, and an equally notable collection of icons—these are the obvious splendors of Mr. and Mrs. Sami Shoucair's garden-wreathed villa in the heart of Beirut. Equally splendid but less obvious in the Villa Shoucair are the style and comfort with which the demands of these treasures are harmonized with the living requirements of a busy young couple with three small children.

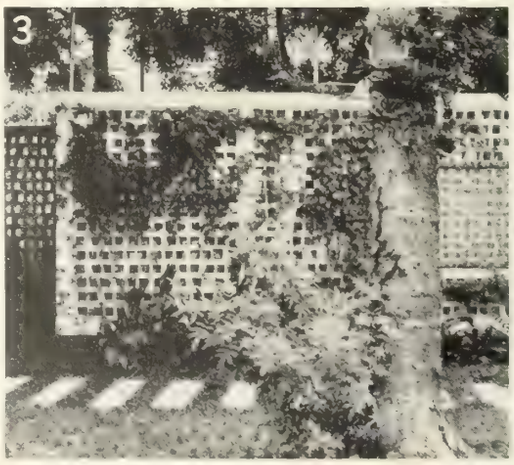
The traditional styles of living and decorating of Europe and the Middle East are equally a part of Mr. and Mrs. Shoucair's heritage. Beirut has for centuries been a converging point of Eastern and Western cultures, and the widely traveled Shoucairs are as at home in New York or Geneva as in Beirut, as fluent in English or French as in Arabic. In altering Mr. Shoucair's family home to their own needs, tastes, and interests, they have drawn on all the worlds they move in so easily, mixing, adapting, and adding inventive touches of their own.

Their interest in the antiquities of their own region led them to acquire for their house a quantity of beautiful architectural detailing—floors and fountains, carved wood and stone panels—from an old Damascus palace condemned to destruction. These they have incorporated into their house and garden in ways that are faithful to the spirit of the original palace, but adjusted to suit present-day needs. A little Arabic sitting room, for example, is ringed with comfortable modern sofas instead of the traditional wood or stone banquettes piled with Persian rugs, but the arrangement of furniture, the rich color and soft lighting duplicate the mood of the palace room that furnished the floor and the carved stone niches.

The double motive of creating rooms of more manageable and welcoming proportions and of providing space to display Mr. Shoucair's collection of antique jewelry and Egyptian objects sparked one of their major remodeling projects: the transformation of the formidable two-story-tall reception room that originally ran the length of the house. By inserting a second story consisting of the Arabic sitting room, an open gallery lined with vitrines and an ample stair hall, they were able to create a cozy, family-size living room on the main floor and still retain, under the gallery, a spacious reception room for large parties. In these rooms the decoration, French in flavor, reveals the Shoucairs' European affinities and their mastery of the delicate art of shifting cultures. (Continued)

Resplendent with elaborate ornamental stonework from an eighteenth-century Syrian palace, two freehand adaptations of traditional Arabic rooms. The blue sitting room, opposite page, is furnished with modern sofas and tables, but, faithful to Middle East custom, they are arranged to ring the room and draw guests into one sociable circle. Exotic accents: antique silver and bronze armor, jewel-hued mosque lamps, camel saddle rugs, some of them made into pillows. The only furniture on the triple-arched loggia overlooking the garden, below, is the tessellated quatrefoil fountain. A ravishing setting for parties, the loggia may be filled with tables for four one night and the next night with comfortable chairs for cocktails and conversation.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY ROGER SARN



An adaptable personal world for an active, hospitable family

With the same talent for reconciling apparently conflicting enthusiasms, the Shoucairs have arranged the gardens that circle their house not only to accommodate a variety of different activities, but also to delight the eye. At one end of the back garden, attractively screened from the street by a series of openwork panels, an arcaded terrace and two marble fountain courts from the Damascus palace offer party settings of fairy-tale charm. At the other end, separated by a few trees and a patch of lawn, a swimming pool and a tree house cradled in a grove of pines make a center for informal entertaining and family relaxation. Another complex across the entrance court from the house contains tennis courts and a pavilion with a recreation room, an exercise room, and above them, a luxurious apartment for the Shoucairs' house guests. (Continued)

1. In a traditional gesture of hospitality, Mrs. Shoucair adds an aromatic splash of orange water from a silver oumoum to one of the tiny cups of Turkish coffee that is served on any visit, no matter how brief, to a Lebanese home.
2. Family headquarters and gathering point for guests is the cozy paneled sitting room decorated in a play of soothing beiges. In the vitrine, a Hittite gold pitcher, a miniature Roman gold chariot, Phoenician glass paste vases from the Shoucairs' collection.
3. Overlapped across the back of the garden, openwork panels of brick set with Persian tiles and framed in concrete make an airy, ornamental, and effective substitute for a wall.
4. An eighteenth-century selamlik—traditionally the court where the men of the family received guests—beckons enticingly from the felicitous if unconventional shelter of a grove of trees.
5. A pavilion with a purpose, this little iron kiosk with its green peruke of vines is actually a shower stall on terrace near swimming pool.
6. Traditional and charming party decoration, Lebanese style: a carpet of carnations in the inlaid marble fountain on the dining terrace.
7. With its canvas curtains open, a breeze-swept aerie, with curtains closed, a snug retreat or a changing room for swimmers—the sturdy, spacious tree house is a magnet for children of all ages.
8. Traditional and elegant party decoration, European style: an array of silver and crystal candelabra in the dining room, the scene for the Shoucairs' winter entertaining. On the walls, a small part of Mr. Shoucair's collection of icons.

The inviting domain of a dedicated and imaginative collecto

Garden and house alike are enriched by the lections that are Mr. Shoucair's preeminent thusiasm. Like all born collectors, he has fo it impossible to limit himself to just one f of interest, even one that embraces such a s of time and diversity of cultures as the ar the ancient Middle East. In addition to Middle Eastern antiquities—a collection of seum quality and quantity that ranges fr Chaldean carvings of 2500 B.C. to eighteen century Arabic artifacts—he has gathere spectacular array of icons as well as sev minor collections. And he and his wife h displayed them with imaginative attention only to the beauty of the objects themsel but also to the varying ways they can contrib to the beauty of their surroundings.

1. Backed by cascades of deep blue morning glories, a Roman portrait bust from the ruins of Palmyra, at the entrance to the Shouca house. The morning glories, supported on tall wire fences, are an ingeniously attractive device for getting privacy in spite of an ordinance forbidding walls.
2. One of the jewels of Mr. Shoucair's icon collection, a Russian pilgrim's folding icon, lat sixteenth-century, sheathed in silver-gilt, that represents Christ surrounded by saints and ang
3. Adapted by the Shoucairs and their decorat Roger Cachard, to ornament the guest apartme antique carved and mirror-studded Turkish woodwork from a room in a Damascus palace.
4. An unusual and lovely Coptic icon depicting a black Madonna and Child.
5. A collection from collections, flowerpots th the Shoucairs decorated themselves in mosaics of broken, leftover bits from antique marble floo
6. A pre-Christian Roman lion guarding an ornate eighteenth-century inlaid marble founta
7. Antique Anatolian and Caucasian rugs arranged to make a play of patterns on the crisscr marble floor of the reception room. In profile, a black basalt Venus-Astarte, found in Syria.
8. The gallery, its sumptuous mural of antique jewelry and objets d'art composed in a band of gilt-edged, velvet-lined vitrines. A Roman eagle from the Bekaa (the central valley of Lebanon) is mounted on a broken Roman colun gifts

In happy observance of the tradition that began with gold, frankincense, and myrrh, H&G presents its annual panoply of diversified gifts for the discriminating shopper. For the list that includes everyone you know, here are

77 UNHACKNEYED DELIGHTS FOR UNDER $7

1. A white porcelain ashtray, matchbox holder, and cigarette cup—gold-rimmed and sprigged with April's first violets—to enchant any lady. Bonwit Teller. $7.
2. From Jordan, a trio of carved olivewood candleholders with a honeyed gleam. 5½, 6, and 7 inches high. Respectively, $2, $2.50, $2.90 ppd. Gallery Shop, Brooklyn Museum.
3. Caught like a fly in amber, but far prettier, a cornflower that lives forever in a clear plastic paperweight. Inspired choice for a favorite bachelor. Seabon. $6 ppd.
4. A ceramic watering can from Italy, not quite big enough for the Villa d'Este gardens, but fine for an American window box. Exactly 5½ inches high. B. Altman & Co. $5.
5. Portuguese tiles, most of them patterned with fruits, vegetables, and nice fat roosters. They would make a wonderful frieze for a kitchen, can be hung like pictures, or just sit, trivet-wise. The Gallery Shop, Brooklyn Museum. $1.50 each ppd.
6. To make letter-writing a self-contained pleasure, a portfolio bound in a fanciful fabric and lined, for practicality's sake, with blotting paper. 9½ by 13½ inches. Elder Craftsmen Shop. $3.85 ppd.
7. To keep unanswered letters in plain sight and good order, a Florentine starfish-holder with the look of wrought gold—at a whisper of the price. Bonwit Teller. $5.
8. Cardboard-castle components, designed by John Waltz, to be added to, tower by tower, until you have a Camelot. Tallest tower is about 28 inches high. Van Keppel-Green. Large, $4.50; smaller, $3 each ppd.
9. Silver-collared Argentinian gourds, exotically striped and mottled, to hold charming tiny bouquets. 3½ inches high. Argentine Imports. $2.40 each ppd.
10. Of papier-mâché, an amusing paperweight-ornament that sports an initial painted differently on each facet. By Gretchen Dow. 4½ inches square. Scarabaeus. $5.75 ppd.
11. Christmas ornaments from Hawaii, as fine for fir trees as palms: a reindeer and a mailbox, a hornless baby Blitzen in his cradle. Emgee Corp. $6.25 and $4.75 ppd.
12. For a busy girl, the gayest possible excuse for a briefcase in vinyl-coated fabric—non-stick, water-repellent. 11¼ by 14¼ inches. The Forum. $4.50 ppd.
13. Not for squares, a 14-inch-square metal tray—just op-artish enough, and a nice change from oblongs. Pottery Shop. $3.50.
14. Old favorite, and a cockle-warmer: ceramic jar studded with a sweet-tooth quorum of cookies. Abraham & Straus, $6.99.
15. For a Mother Carey gardener: sprayer to wash African-violet leaves or supply extra, airborne moisture for orchids and such. ½ pint capacity. Mistifier. $2.98 ppd.
16. A perky little timer from West Germany, to restrain any egg from coddling longer than three minutes. Of painted wood, 5½ inches high, it hangs on the wall. The Store Ltd. $3.50 ppd.
17. New chic for the good old kitchen match: papier-mâché wall holder in polychrome sunset colors. India Imports International. $7 ppd.
18. A highly civilized leopard, benign and smiling, to serve as a plate for goodies or a king-size ashtray. Measures 9 inches from ears to chin. Bonwit Teller. $7.
19. A felt travesty of Minerva's owl, fat, sleepy, to hold all the pins a lady needs for skirt shortening or—next year, perhaps—lengthening. Treasure Trove. $3.25 ppd.
20. Christmas ornaments that began as shells on a Floridian beach and now, trimmed with velvet and braid, look like mushrooms, figs, and ear baubles. R. & R. Robinson. Respectively, $4.75, $4.25, and $2.25 each ppd.
21. For a tidy host-barman, a pop-art apron of blue chambray with a giant Scotch label by way of stomacher. P. Kays. $4.50 ppd.
22. For a gourmet's kitchen, a white enamel 6-inch-square skillet wearing a flourish of love apples. Fine on the fire, nippy on the wall. Hammacher Schlemmer. $7.
23. Pretty inducement to thrift, flowerpot bank, complete with Disneyesque bloom. 8 inches high. Abraham & Straus. $6 ppd.
24. Zing for a plain-Jane bathroom, a tissue box upholstered (via lamination) in a lively Paisley. E. Braun. $5.50 ppd.
25. Mute, but big enough to reflect the fairest, ceramic-framed mirrors handcrafted by Elizabeth Constantine. Both about 7 inches in diameter. Wilburt. $6.50 each ppd.
26. For an enologist who believes in keeping his or her corks wet: wicker wine stand in brilliant colors. About 9 inches high and stackable in groups to the point of becoming a sizable wine cellar. B. Altman & Co. $5.
27. Lacquered canapé trays, wonderful for hors d'oeuvres in the French manner—a different delicacy in each tray. Also in pink, black, orange, aqua, blue, red, green. About 5 by 7 inches. Azuma. Set of six, $3.50 ppd.
28. Hand towels of heavy embroidered cotton lit up by the sun, always a cheery greeter. From Mexico, the pair would spell a droll welcome in a powder room or guests' bath. Pampered Kitchens. $2.50 each ppd.
29. For collectors of the small and exquisite, a Japanese cachepot of Imari ware, 4 inches high. It might hold potpourri or a tiny dwarf pine tree. B. Altman & Co. $5.

Six new fantasy finishes

The mineral kingdom inspires beautiful new patterns you can create yourself

For centuries, the craftsmen of Italy and France have explored the world of fantasy finishes in their marvelous mimicry of wood, marble, tortoise shell, and semiprecious stones, leaving the palazzi and chateaux of their countries as an enduring testament to their skill. Now, a new mother lode has been discovered—rocks and ores found, for the most part, in the western hemisphere, and so dramatically and colorfully patterned that, if they could be used to adorn furniture as a mineral like malachite is used, they would be far more familiar than they are. Unfortunately, these lovely curiosities are either impossible to slice or do not exist in large enough strata to be of practical use. But, with a deft hand, they can be interpreted in paint, and—inspired by their sheer dazzle—Isabel O'Neil has done exactly that in a series of small table tops in original finishes so jewel-like they would be quite at home in Ali Baba's cave. Since a fine jewel deserves a perfect setting, H&G asked Inman Cook to design for these tops a group of metal bases—complementary "plinths" which would be as distinctive, in their way, as the finishes themselves. His answer was a series of perfect marriages that make a collection of brilliant accent pieces, all pilots for do-it-yourself projects, that you can use in your rooms in a dozen different ways.

A single table in a quiet, neutral room can brew up a small storm of excitement. Two or three tables in the right colors will create superb "shock" accents in a predominantly one-color room. As a display stage for crystal or blanc de chine or ivory (the bibelots should be white or transparent), any of the finishes would do the same trick richly colored velvet does for pearls. They can also echo and deepen the intensity of a painting's radiance, warm the cool austerity of contemporary furniture—particularly when it is made of steel—and provide vivid anchors for pale and lonely chairs. One table in a white bedroom would glow like a flower, and a series of tables throughout the house will give you a whole garden.

The table tops are small enough—15 to 20 inches across—to assure an easy-to-work-with "canvas," yet large enough to do the pattern justice. They are made of ¾-inch plywood which you can have cut at a woodworking shop or lumberyard; the bases may be ordered through decorators or department store decorating departments. For the step-by-step instructions, developed by Isabel O'Neil for her six new finishes, see shopping information on page 306. You will find them highly detailed, but worthy of all the attention you can give them. And if you are hesitant about tackling a table as your first project, you might try one of the finishes on a mirror frame or a cigarette box or a very simple obelisk—a Czerny exercise in fantasia.

CEDAR AND GLASS

build a dramatic house in the Pacific Northwest

Settled comfortably on a hill outside Seattle, just a notch or two above Puget Sound, is a rambling, partly two-story house of dark-stained cedar crowned by a series of cedar-shingled, hipped, and gabled roofs. You can see at a glance that its design reflects the contemporary wood-and-glass idiom of the Pacific Northwest. But it takes a discerning eye to realize how much it owes as well to the traditional architecture of Japan. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stewart, who live there with their two children, Philip, Jr., fourteen, and Susan, nine, had never, in fact, been interested in duplicating a typical Japanese house. But they had traveled in the Orient and had admired the structure and spaciousness of Japanese houses and the intimate relationship of house and site. These were the qualities they wanted, qualities they knew were inherent in the work of architect Roland Terry when they first consulted him. The essence of his design lies in the basic construction—exposed posts and beams supporting graceful peaked roofs. Since the exterior walls have nothing to support, they are applied to this framework like curtains—as opaque walls wherever screens are needed for privacy or as sliding glass doors wherever they open up a view.

Having approved the plans, the Stewarts returned to the Orient and this time spent two years there, living and working in Tokyo. On their return, they found their new house completed, found, too, that the furniture and objets d'art they had acquired for their house in Tokyo fitted into the new one as if it had been built around them. Some, in fact, they were able to incorporate into the house itself—a 36-foot-long Japanese screen, for instance, and a set of Japanese antique door panels. Other prizes from Thailand, Hong Kong, and elsewhere have found homes here and there throughout the house—none of them on display as a collection, but loved and lived with every day. So close is the affinity between the house and its furnishings that it is difficult to tell exactly where the West stops and the East begins.

On the front gates are two bronze hands from Thailand raised in a gesture meaning "peace in our house."

CEDAR TRUNKS SUPPORT EXPOSED BEAMS

The posts that support the beams and roof are natural cedar trunks, the bark removed, the irregularities carefully preserved. Stained deep walnut and rubbed to a satin finish, each post indoors and outdoors is set in a pewter-colored plinth of cast concrete from a design the Stewarts saw in a Kyoto temple. On the dining table, designed by Charlotte Horstmann of Hong Kong, are gilt paper ornaments used in Thailand to cover food for begging monks. Chairs were designed by a Japanese sculptor, rug made by Tai Ping of Hong Kong.

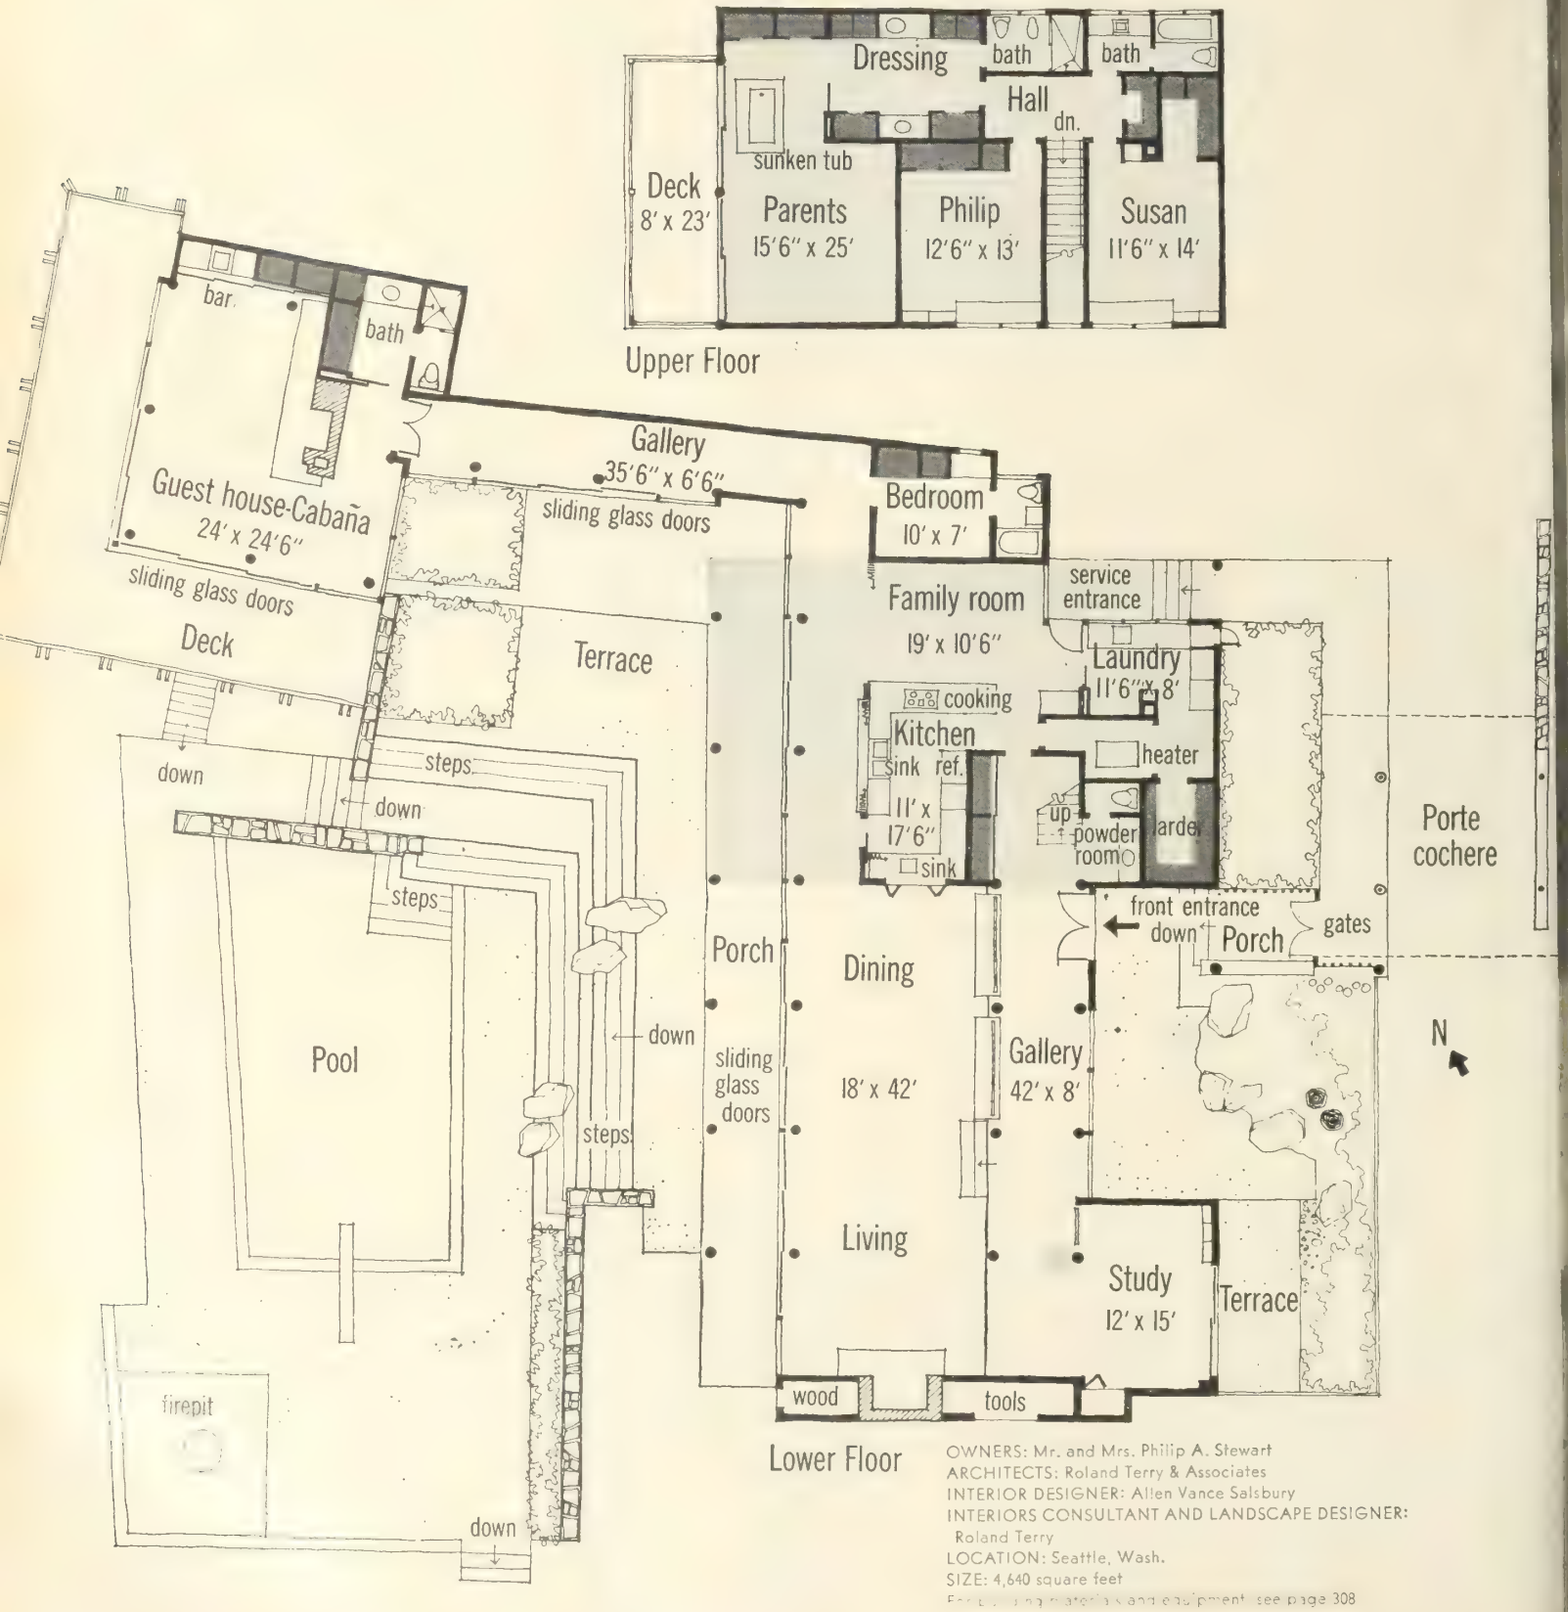
THE HOUSE FORMS AN ANGLE AROUND THE POOL

The back of the house, above, looks straight across the swimming pool toward the Sound. From the main section at right, a long gallery leads to a guest house-cabana, creating a continuous L-shape sweep of 156 feet of window wall. Foundation walls of natural stone, meticulously laid, and decorative boulders on steps to pool hint again of Japanese influence.

The living-dining room, far right, a magnificent space 42 feet long, is walled entirely with glass on one side and open on the other side to the entrance gallery a few steps above it (see plan, page 262). Over the dark-stained posts and beams, the peaked ceiling of reeded hemlock boards stained a light honey color seems to float like a lightweight canopy. Dark-stained hemlock panels the fireplace wall where a 300-year-old Buddha occupies the place of honor. The coffee table is an antique Thai bed. Opposite the piano, a pair of limed oak cabinets, right, stand on the low parapet divider, and above them hang framed panels of pale gold silk that screen the dining area from the entrance hall.

The guest house-cabana, opposite page, top, a one-room wing perched on a promontory jutting into the Sound, has a panoramic view and makes a wonderful lookout for observing the antics of a Northwest storm. Here the Stewarts often serve cocktails before dinner. The sofas are convertible beds for overnight guests, and the adjoining bathroom doubles as a dressing room for visiting swimmers. To this far-out spot, Philip, Jr., a jazz drummer, can bring his friends for practice sessions without disturbing the whole house. His parents, on the other hand, use it as a quiet room.



TWO-STORY PLAN GIVES ALL THE MAIN ROOMS A VIEW OF THE WATER

The two-story core of the house, indicated by light gray shading, is a complete little house within a house—the dining-family room, kitchen, and laundry, downstairs, and the three bedrooms, upstairs. The location of the stairs, which start upward from point close to front door, back door, family room, and kitchen, cuts down considerably on traffic through the rest of the house. To simplify serving, the kitchen opens in three directions—toward the dining room, the terrace, and the family room. Even the study in its isolated corner at the front of the house has a view of the Sound, since no partition separates the entrance gallery from the glass-walled living room on the level slightly below it. At the front of the house, a small garden containing boulders, rhododendron, and a gigantic madrona tree (see page 329) screens the glass wall of the entrance gallery from the driveway and from the road above.

Behind two of the slid-anels is a countertop cabinet, below, that incorporates sink and a small refrigerator stocked with soft drinks.

Back wall of gallery leading to cabana was planned as a display space for the Stewarts' paintings, but turned out to be exactly the right size for their 36-foot Japanese mural. Clearly visible through glass doors, it makes a handsome background for the swimming pool terrace.

The family room and the hall leading to the dining-living room both have direct access to the kitchen. Only the kitchen's cooking counter and the ceiling-hung cabinets above it separate the kitchen from the family room at the left. Along the hallway side is a higher counter (the back of the kitchen sink—see bottom of page and plan, page 262), topped by a series of folding doors that can screen the kitchen from hall and terrace. Below the counter are shallow cabinets, below left, for bowls, cups and saucers.

KITCHEN AND FAMILY ROOM OPEN TO EVERY SIDE

At the far end of the kitchen, below left—the end toward the dining area—is a bar counter containing a small sink and topped by two sets of folding doors, one at the front of the counter, one at the back. Normally the doors along the back are closed and hung with an antique Japanese screen. At party time, everything is reversed: the doors along the front of the counter are closed, the doors along the back are opened, and the bar becomes part of the dining area.

The family room, which looks straight across hallway, porch, and terrace toward guest house and Sound, is a room of many purposes. Here the Stewarts have breakfast and occasionally dine. When a large party is going on, the folding doors that span one whole side of the room can be closed to give the two children privacy during their supper.

HOW TO WORK WITH A LANDSCAPE A

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in H&G's series on how to find and work with the four professionals whose design talents may be enlisted in creating a home. Last month we outlined the role and practices of the kitchen planner. For the architect, see August H&G, and for the decorator, September H&G.

In many respects, the operations of the landscape architect closely parallel those of the other professionals who contribute to the beauty and livability of your home. But there is one significant difference. You cannot, strictly speaking, begin to enjoy the work of the architect or interior designer or the kitchen planner until that work is finished. And, once finished, you hope it will stay that way, at least for a few years. A landscape, on the other hand—even after every detail of the plan has been completed—will not reach its optimum beauty for several years. For the essence of a landscape is change, since a landscape is composed primarily of plants, and change is the essence of a plant's magic. Watching the changes as they occur season after season is a major part of your enjoyment of the landscape designer's art. Consequently, the landscape architect, who may well be the first professional on the scene (one of his most valuable services is helping to select a house site), is likely to be the last to whom you will say good-bye. So finding the best man for your purposes and knowing how to work with him is of more than passing importance.

A landscape architect is a specialist in creating a living environment. He is an ecologist, a geologist, a botanist, a meteorologist. He knows what plants grow best in your region (or if he doesn't, he will quickly find out). He knows how far down the frost goes in winter. He can under-drain a wet spot in the lawn. He knows where to plant a tree so that it will not only look well now, but look even better ten years from now. He knows how to locate a good stonemason or a 35-foot cedar. Above all, he understands the way a good landscape improves with age. Thresholds may wear, curtains fade, and refrigerator doors crack their gaskets. But trees come to bud and flower, bear their fruit, and grow in beauty to bloom again. To be sure, a landscape may become overgrown, but it can also come to a rich maturity that is possible to no inorganic element of daily life. A landscape architect understands this, and if you will let him, he will communicate a good deal of his understanding to you.

What does a landscape architect do?

The primary role of the landscape architect is to help you make the most of your land—and if you are building a new house, to help your architect, too. This would mean advice about the placement of the house on the lot and suggestions on how to preserve the existing trees and other natural assets. Beyond that, a landscape architect can work out a complete plan which will not only provide an attractive setting for your house, but also give you whatever your family needs in the way of outdoor living areas, recreation, working, and storage facilities, the kind of garden you will find most satisfying (according to your personal tastes and talents), and vistas you can enjoy from inside the house as well.

He starts by drawing up a flat plan plus sketches, if necessary, to show you what the plan means. He makes a list of plants, keyed to the planting plan, which will form the basis of nursery bids and orders. And he draws up specifications for grading and for whatever paths, pools, paving, lighting, and structures may also be included. Then he recommends a nursery and contractors for the various types of work involved and advises you about bids and contracts. But he does not sign any contracts or orders. You do that, and you pay all the bills direct to the contractors and suppliers.

Naturally, a reputable landscape architect will recommend only nurseries he believes can fulfill the contract. but he is not responsible for the plants. Your contract with the nursery may include planting and a guarantee of the health of the plants for a specified period, or it may call merely for the delivery of the plants in good condition (which your landscape consultant will certify), leaving the planting to be done by anyone you choose.

A complete landscape plan is not, of course, the only purpose for which you might want to consult a landscape architect. Perhaps more than any other of the four professionals, he is prepared to undertake a less than complete project—to design or redesign a limited area of your property or to work out a plan for the whole on a limited basis. You might, for instance, ask him for a detailed plan, including specifications and general supervision, for a small garden, or a planting screen for privacy from the neighbors, a terrace, or a swimming pool, or a poolside shelter. Or you might ask him to plan for your complete site a long-range program which you can carry out yourself year by year, perhaps with the help of a nurseryman (whose advice is included in the cost of the plants you buy). Nothing so pleases a dedicated landscape architect as to have a client stay with a program and enjoy it all the way. He may have given you only a day's consultation and a plan, but years later he will bring other clients to see what a fine job you did.

Working with other professionals

When you are building a new house, or revising various aspects of your environment at the same time. which consultant does what? A slightly rough and ready rule of thumb has it that the architect is responsible for the design of the house out to and including its walls, and that the landscape architect is responsible from the walls out to the lot lines. Naturally, their areas of expertise will touch ne percentage fee is based on the ost to you of the materials and equired to complete the job. The percentage ranges between 10 and 20 per cent (usually closer to 10) and, like the flat fee, does not cover reimbursable expenses. It is usually limited to projects whose entire scope is known at the outset. As with the flat fee, you pay the percentage directly to the landscape consultant, since, unlike the interior designer, he receives no discount from the suppliers of materials or services.

The third method—time-cost formula—is based on the landscape architect's customary charge for consultation by the hour, or more commonly, by the day. In addition to his consultation charges, he will bill you for time spent in preparing blueprints, specifications, and contracts, and for whatever supervision of the work you ask him to undertake—plus, of course, the reimbursable expenses. For less than complete site development, or for projects that may be limited to basic consultation or extended over a number of years, the time-cost formula may be the one that makes the most sense both for you and for your consultant. It is a sort of cash-and-carry arrangement that is well suited to many less-than-complete landscape projects such as building a terrace or pool, rearranging an undesirable view, creating a special garden or simply the recommendation and placement of a few important trees on the lawn.

Any one of the three payment methods may include the preparation of certain plans or parts of plans to be carried out at some future date. And a project paid for by an over-all or percentage fee may well be followed by a time-cost arrangement for later work.

How to find a landscape architect

In many cities, especially those far from large metropolitan centers, a full-fledged landscape architect may be hard to come by. There are at least twenty times as many architects as landscape architects in the Yellow Pages of the New York City telephone book, and the countrywide ratio is probably higher than that. But if you are willing to do a little digging, your man can be found. First recourse is to an architect—if not the architect of your own house, then the designer of a friend's house that you admire. All the good architects of a community know all the local landscape architects and some may be willing to state preferences. Any architect should be willing to suggest a choice of names. In most large cities, the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects can also suggest names.

The American Society of Landscape Architects—to which many, although by no means all, landscape architects can belong—has some eighteen regional chapters. By writing to the Society's national headquarters (2000 K Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., 20006), you can locate the chapter nearest you and obtain the names of its members. Or you might write to the dean of your state university for the names of professionally qualified alumni, since most good graduate schools of design offer degrees in landscape architecture as well as in architecture.

Your search may lead you to a landscape consultant who is not a graduate of a design school, not even an experienced plantsman, nor formally trained in the construction field. That is no cause for alarm, providing you have good evidence that he conducts himself as a professional and his work meets professional standards. Such consultants are rare birds, but they do exist, and they may well make up in sensitivity, dedication, and ability what they lack in training.

Landscape architects, like other professionals, have their individual fortes—an important matter to consider in the course of your search. Which man is the best one for you will depend on the nature of the work you want him to do. One you might choose, perhaps on the recommendation of your architect, because of his competence (Continued on page 306)

ESPALIERS

For orchardists, earlier fruit; for gardeners, beautiful patterns

BY JEROME A. EATON

Espaliering is the art of training plants to a predetermined shape through the selection and direction of buds and branches. In the small gardens of old France, where the practice and term espalier originated, orchardists developed espalier techniques as a counsel of necessity, for espaliering made possible earlier and more intensive fruiting of familiar species, especially apples and pears. Since the old Anglo-Saxon word, orchard, refers by definition to a walled enclosure for fruit trees, it was natural that when espaliers reached England, they should have been placed against protective walls, even though the decorative results could hardly have been anticipated. Now it is a question whether espaliers are more appreciated by fruit-growing enthusiasts or the everyday run of gardeners. At all events, under today's rules, any tree or shrub, with or without fruit, is fair game for espaliering.

Plantsmen of three centuries ago, whether monks, keepers of the royal grounds, or simple villagers, passed along their special techniques of espalier pruning from generation to generation. But it remained for scientific minds of more recent times to explain these techniques, predict and test the results, and record the recommended procedures. Now, all the mystery has been removed, and whatever the desired objective—production of fruit, embellishing a fence or wall, or the simple pleasure that espaliering itself can give—this honorable and dramatic art is well within any interested gardener's competence.

WALTERS

In moving out of the orchard and into the garden, espaliers of all sorts have found new uses that formerly were practical for only a limited range of plants. From the walls of an orchard, for example, it is but a short remove to the walls of a house. Commonly the preserve of vines, walls, whatever the style of their architecture, also are well suited to an appropriately espaliered plant. Geometric structural lines can be either accented or softened by an espalier. Formality can be played up or played down. And of course a well-trained espalier can create a pattern all its own. Few plants are better suited than Pyracantha coccinea lalandii, the orange-berried firethorn, to creating an inviting framework for an entrance door, left, or to being trained in horizontal cordons beside a courtyard gate (see next page). In this day of built-in garages, a blank, windowless garage wall is not unlikely to present a real decorative problem, but it is one that a trained plant or series of flat-patterned plants can handsomely cure. Horizontal cordon is probably commonest and simplest espalier form. Firethorn, above raised beds of pansies and abetted by hollies, covers wood fences enclosing motor court of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald P. Rose, Oyster Bay, N.Y.

Six-arm cordons are well suited to grape vines trained on wood picket fence at a farm in Maryland. Similar cordons have long formed standard pattern for grapes.

Belgian fence is one of the traditional espalier forms, made up of series of Y cordons spaced so overlapping arms form diaper pattern. Height may vary from 4 feet up. Apples and pears are especially successful in diagonals.

Party strategy

Tips from five great hostesses

hostess's way with a party is as personal as her smile. So ıen H&G queried five talented hostesses, from Long Island Hawaii, on the essentials of their party strategy, we were not rprised to discover a number of personal quirks. Some of ır hostesses prefer small parties—twelve people at most—ıd one makes a point of doing everything herself from cook-g to cleanup. Others are happy to count their guests in three gures and to call in as many extra helpers as they need. ›me of the five always ask their guests to dress for dinner; me, never. Some favor after-dinner entertainment; others y you can't beat good conversation.

But the areas of agreement, we found, were far more gnificant. All of our hostesses are rule makers rather than ıle followers. Intentionally or not, each has worked out her wn party pattern, and after years of testing and revising, as brought it to a state of perfection.

All of them always pay careful attention to detail, or as one put it, "I love to fuss." Whether their parties are simple or elaborate, they think through every step of the timing, the seating, the service—for them, happenings are out. And each has developed her own party specialty. It might be a marvelous dish, an engaging way of presenting it, or a pretty constant in her table settings, but having discovered that her guests enjoy it, she never hesitates to repeat.

Above all, these winning hostesses have a clear concern for people. You can see this in the care and trouble they take in making out their guest lists, in arranging the seating, and in dozens of other little attentions to their guests' comfort and pleasure. For a good party, they all agree, is neither a ritual to be performed for its own sake, nor a display of the hostess's virtuosity. A party is a gift to your friends—from beginning to end, solely a matter of giving them a good time.

"Fluidity is important. I like my parties to move."

At her summer parties at East Hampton, N. Y., Mrs. Amory, a member of the Fine Arts Committee for Blair House, keeps things moving by serving cocktails on the terrace, then leading her guests across the lawn to the old commodious carriage house that she had remodeled and furnished expressly for comfortable seated dining. She likes large parties in summer, and between the round tables in the carriage room, opposite page, and the banquette tables in the stalls (see next page), she has ample room for fifty guests. To help them find their places, she has devised a conceit that is part game, part decoration. On a table on the terrace, she sets out a three-dimensional paper model of the dining table arrangement, each little paper table decked with a tiny toy animal and set with place cards. The animals—all jungle denizens—are the vital clues: they are keyed to the ceramic animals used as centerpieces on the dining tables. "I spend hours working out the seating," Mrs. Amory says. She likes to mix people of different ages and occupations, and she keeps spouses well apart—"not even in the same room if I can help it."

Each of the animal centerpieces is ringed by ceramic candlesticks in the shape of palm trees. "In the country, the palm tree is our trademark," Mrs. Amory explains; "there are palm trees on the match folders and also on the invitations." Except for intimate dinners of less than eight people, the invitations always specify black tie. "Pretty clothes make the evening more festive," she feels. "The single most festive element at a party, I think, is lots of pretty women."

She invites dinner guests for 8:00 and counts them on time if they arrive by 8:30—but no later. Promptly at 8:45 dinner is served (Continued on next page)

Banquettes have been built into the stalls that flank the stable room adjoining the carriage room.

—partly from a buffet, partly at the tables. "I always set up a huge buffet because I like the way it looks, and serving every dish at the table tends to be an intrusion. But I also have waiters—one for every table of six—who pass the platters for second helpings and serve the dessert."

After dinner, there is almost always dancing to the music of the accordion and the electric guitar that have been playing during dinner. Sometimes instead of dinner in the carriage house, Mrs. Amory will invite 200 guests to come at 10:30 for dancing in a rented tent. "The first rule for a dance," she insists, "is not to skimp on music. We have five pieces and I make sure the players take their breaks one at a time so that the combo never stops playing. Silence breaks the spell—makes people think of going home." During the dancing, champagne is served, followed at midnight by hot oyster stew. "We serve it in heavy white bowls along with heaps of oyster crackers. I always have gallons of it made, and there has never yet been a drop left over."

On the narrow banquette tables, the place settings are staggered.

"I have everything laid out before I ıe office," she explains, "including pots and pans vegetables. The bar is prepared, the coffee cups gnac glasses are on their tray. The tables have et and the centerpiece arranged the night before. ıe silver has been polished two nights before." repared ahead of time and waiting in the re- tor and freezer are the main dish and the dessert. Irs. Hollensteiner says she "cares desperately" her table settings, chooses her linens in colors with her living room. She places lots of candles ound the room, and when dinner is ready, turns lamps—"that's one way to get everyone to go table; it changes the mood." To carry things to om the kitchen, she uses lightweight fiber-glass "And I won't let anyone help me because that the whole routine. When we've finished dessert, ove across the room for coffee and liqueurs, then everyone's back is turned, I clear the table and ange the furniture. Bob helps me, and it takes ore than ten minutes to change the whole scene."

By arranging everything on trays and tables within arm's reach, Mrs. Hollensteiner avoids having to jump up from the table during the meal.

She likes plain but elegant crystal and silver but "rather crazy centerpieces." This one—not so crazy—is a crystal rivière packed with variegated green leaves and tiny white flowers. Others include vegetables stuck with daisies: a ceramic cow with flowers spilling out of its back.

LOUIS BENOIST:

We mix all kinds of guests and we've always found: the more mixture, the more gaiety."

The Benoists are fond of giving luncheons at the 1852 farmhouse that stands at the edge of their Almadén Vineyards at Los Gatos, Calif., and Mrs. Benoist has so perfected her party pattern that she can schedule one at the drop of a hat. Often a call comes from the U.S. Department of State asking if they would be willing to receive some visiting foreign dignitary interested in American vine growing, and as likely as not, the date suggested is less than a week away. But over the years, the necessary preparations have been so well rehearsed that it takes only a signal to get things underway.

The party itself, in fact, varies little (except that it is held indoors in winter). It is the guests and the Benoists' aptitude for mixing people that make each occasion seem unique. Limited as a rule to twenty (the capacity of the farmhouse dining room), the guest list is usually a potpourri of personal friends, business associates, neighbors, young people, and occasional senior citizens well past fourscore years.

Many of the party's most delightful flourishes are inspired by the locale. In fine weather the tables are set up on the lawn where the guests can enjoy the view of the Santa Cruz foothills as well as the enormous sweep of vineyard. Great bouquets of roses from the garden always make the centerpieces, set off by pink and white plaid cloths and plain white china. Little grape leaves from the vineyard adorn the oeufs en gelée that are almost invariably part of the menu. And often there is music—a mariachi band recruited from the families of Mexican vineyard workers who live nearby. "The only trouble is," Mrs. Benoist says, "they get so good after a little practice that some restaurant hires them and we have to organize a new one."

What about cocktails? "We serve champagne before lunch and dinner," says Mr. Benoist, who is president of Almadén, "and whatever each guest prefers as well. Nearly everyone I know likes a cocktail or something in the way of hard liquor, and I don't think it interferes at all with the wine that, naturally, we serve with the meal. I am much more disturbed—when we go to other people's houses—to discover that there is no wine. But that doesn't happen as much any more."

The Benoists usually allow about an hour for cocktails and tend to be tolerant of latecomers because of the vineyard's distance from town. "People are never prompt," Mrs. Benoist says. "They start out in good time, but they always seem to lose their way in spite of all our printed maps and directions. While we are waiting, though, there is usually someone who would like to be taken through the wine buildings."

All the food is served at the tables.

Mr. Benoist makes the rounds of his guests.

Even for as simple an event as cocktails after swimming, Mrs. Green's antique Scottish library table is arranged with as much care as for a party: Liquor in decanters, ice in a crystal compote; candles in sticks of different heights for a varied pattern of light.

Homemade ice cream in a melon mold is a frequent party dessert.

Even for very large parties, Mrs. Green has all the food cooked at home, and she makes a point of repeating dishes or even whole menus that guests have especially enjoyed at her house before. "If you turn over everything to a country club chef or a caterer," she says, "I think you lose the whole spirit of giving a party."

As chairman of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund balls Mrs. Green is used to thinking in large numbers. Her own parties in Miami Beach, where she winters, and Norwalk, Conn., where she summers, include seated and served dinners for as many as thirty-four and buffet suppers for as many as 300. Clearly, the cooking as well as the planning must be done well ahead. "I have to plan menus that we can also freeze," she explains. "Sometimes we cook fifteen or twenty briskets of beef—we have a restaurant stove—then we freeze them, and when they are heated up again, they're divine. We do our desserts in advance, too. Ice cream we can make a month in advance."

She never orders party food by telephone—"everything must be hand picked." But she always uses the telephone to invite her guests, no matter how long the list is. "I've never mailed an invitation in my life," she says. By telephoning, she knows immediately who cannot come and how many extras to invite. And she doesn't have to follow up to find out whether an unanswered invitation has been lost in the mail or its recipient is simply a procrastinator.

Even at large buffet parties that require extra help and rented equipment, Mrs. Green's guests always sit down at tables and always find place cards. Putting people together who enjoy being together is the most important step in making any party a success, she thinks. "Out-of-towners make things interesting. We have a lot in Miami—people stopping over en route to Mexico or the Islands or South America—and I always try to combine them fifty-fifty with people who live there."

What about decorations? Fine for a ballroom, an outdoor party, or a rented tent, Mrs. Green feels. "But I don't like party decorations at home. The beautiful things you love to live with should be quite enough. Just those, and armfuls of flowers."

MRS. ALICE SPAULDING BOWEN:

"I never stop looking for new ideas for food, decoration and entertainment."

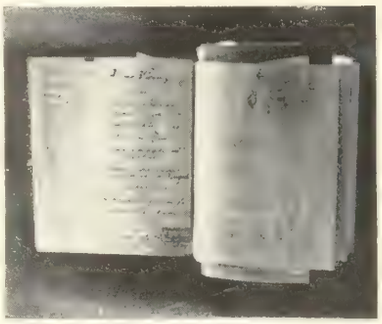
From her home on Diamond Head in Honolulu, Mrs. Bowen travels constantly—to the West Coast states, to Europe, to the Orient—and always she takes along a notebook-sketchbook in which she jots down recipes, serving ideas, and any other delightful notions she comes across which she thinks might enhance her parties. The canopy that shades her outdoor dining table, for instance, she adapted from one she saw at a maharajah's encampment in India.



On her peregrinations around the world, Mrs. Bowen gathers table accessories and bibelots, too. As the original organizer of the Honolulu branch of Gumps and the current head of the Oriental Art Gallery in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, she is an expert on oriental art and artifacts, and makes imaginative use of them in her table settings. The white plates on the table, opposite page, for instance, are white jade. The cigarette cups and ashtrays are green jade borrowed from tables in her living room. And the little cups standing in the compotes at each place on the outdoor table, left, are old wine taster's cups. Her collection of china and crystal is enormous, but with few exceptions she has no more than eight of anything, because she finds large matched sets make boring table settings.

Her favorite kind of party is a seated dinner for twelve for which she sets two tables—one in the dining room, one on the terrace just outside the dining room door. The linens and dishes on each table are different, but the colors are the same on both, and the lavish masses of flowers. As an additional visual link, two of the dining room's red upholstered chairs are brought out to the table on the terrace.

The first step in Mrs. Bowen's preparations for such a party is a tour, three days in advance, of the local markets. Then she plans the menu and the flowers according to the best the season offers. In early spring, inspired by baby lamb and the first asparagus, the dinner might be French, but at another date, it might be Chinese or traditional Hawaiian, for (Continued)

Mrs. Bowen's notebook reads like an international cook book.

Many of her ideas have been prompted by realistic solicitude for her guests. To avoid spoiling good conversations by the interruptions entailed in refilling glasses, she has designed ice wells with little martini containers that hold enough to supply two guests with two drinks each, without their having to nab a waiter or make a trip back to the bar. And she arranges a complete selection of hors d'oeuvres on each of several small trays so that each small group of guests can have one within easy reach.
